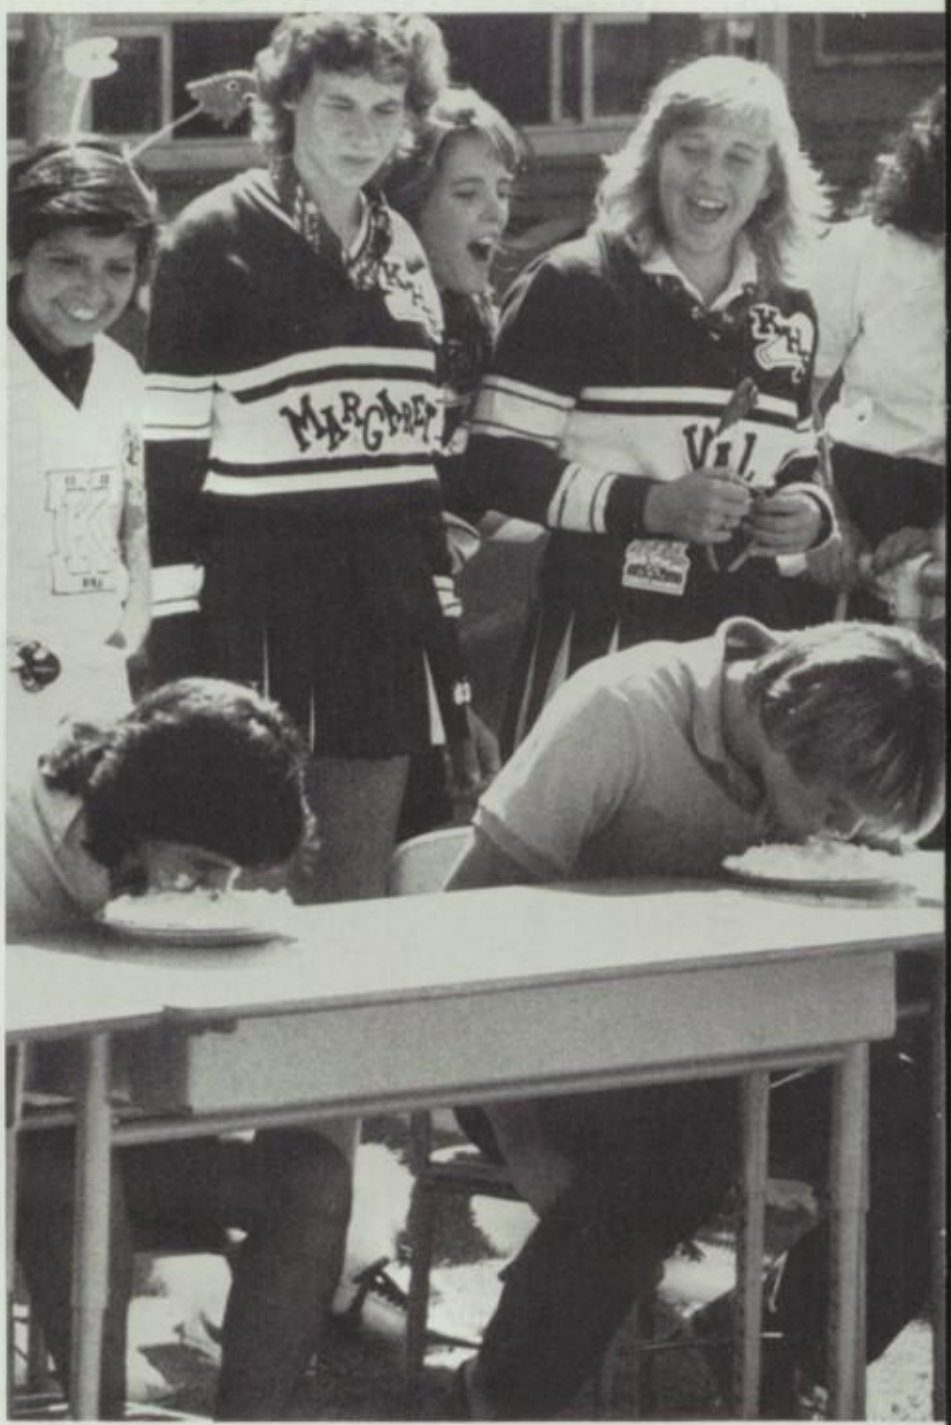
The familiar facade of Kearny High was a greeting to all people as they entered the school as a student, staff member or visitor.

DURING THE LUNCH BREAK, George Putnam and Teresa Sommerfeldt laugh about the events.



MEMBERS OF THE BAND discuss the next song at one of the many lunchtime pep rallies.

Playing a Part

High School is a time for people to not only learn the skills that they will need in the future but to grow and make individuals of themselves. A time to become adults and face the world on their own.

This book is a record of these years in High School and each person plays a part, no matter how small it is in the play of life here at Kearny.

The people and the part that they play are the most important part of this campus. So that is what we have devoted this book to. (cont.)

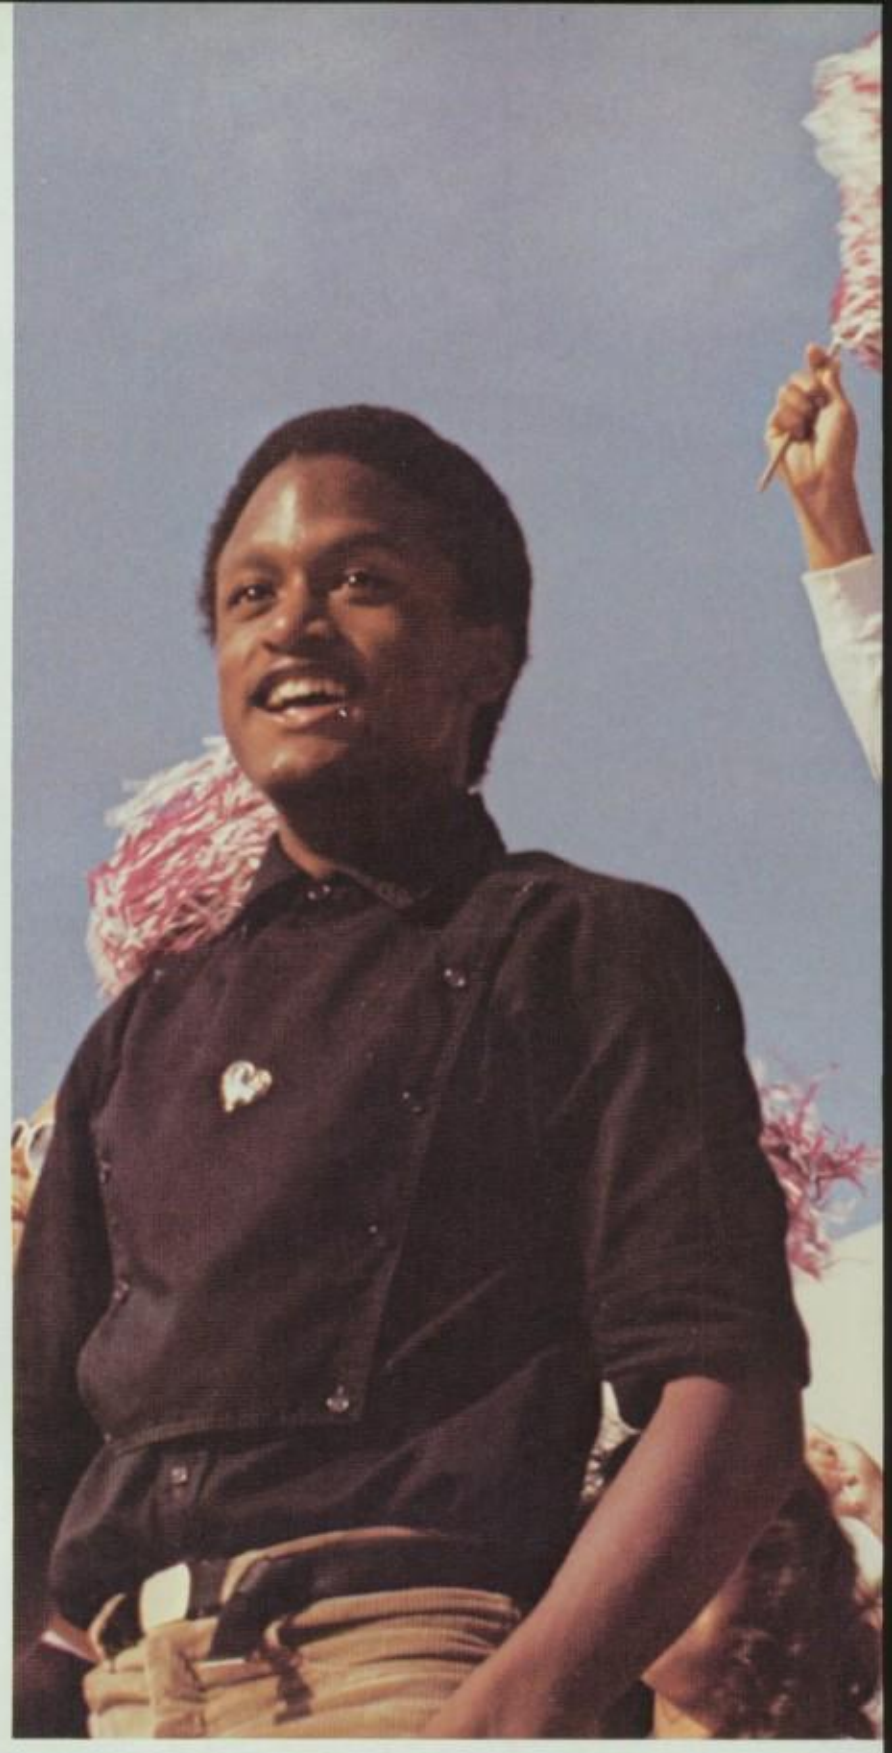
AS CHEERLEADERS look on, contestants indulge themselves at the pie eating contest.

DURING A BREAK from the pep rally, Darcie Kirby, Troy McLaughlin and Debbie Waggoner plan the next activity.

In The Play of Life

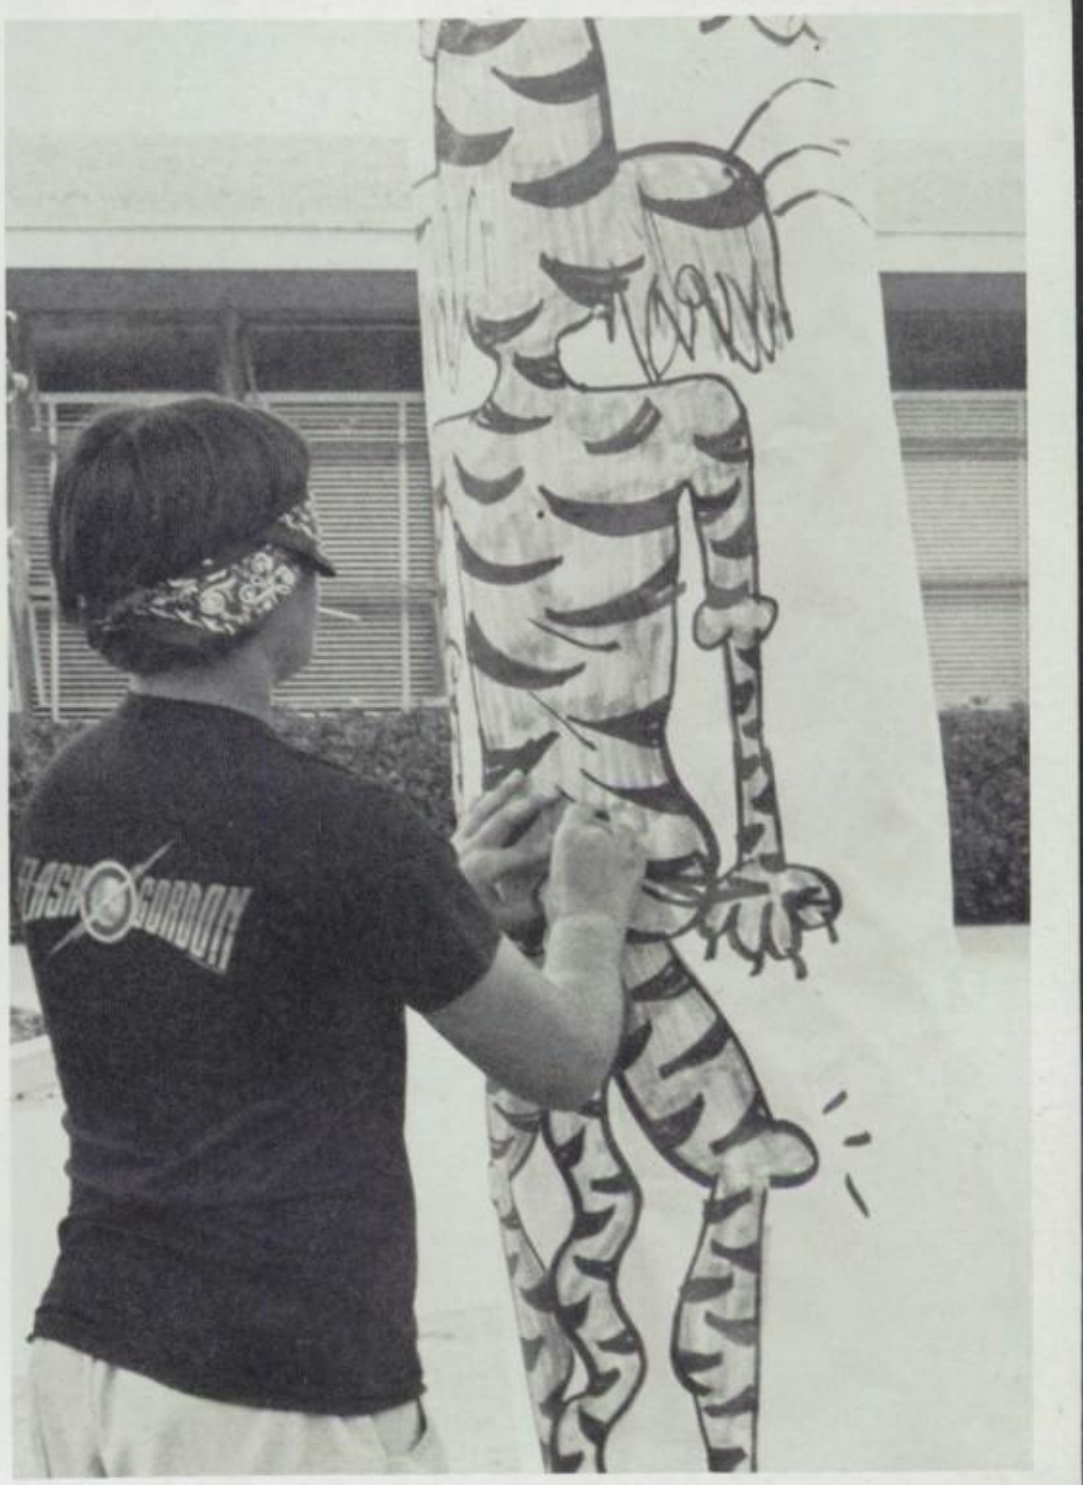
There was a lot of variation among the students here at Kearny so much so that it caused a few conflicts. But everyone was special and no one was better. Of course there were a few stars that stood out above the rest but we were all the players that made the whole thing happen.

As you read through the book you will realize that not everyone is in the book more than once. This is true in all yearbooks. But we would like to say those of you and to all of you that you all play the lead role in the play of your own lives.



CHEERING KOMETS arouse their team as they go into the second half.

LUNCHTIME ENTERTAINMENT is offered by Bill Walsh as others listen.



PINNING THE TAIL on the tiger, Homer Gibbs places the winning tail.

SIGHING IN ANGUISH. Tony Griffin tells the team what to do.

MEMBERS OF THE PEP CLUB watch their Komets as they stave off the opposing team.

PERFORMING AT HALF-TIME, the drill team accompanies the marching band.

Student Life

All work and no play is definitely detrimental to the life of an individual. So to relieve themselves from all the work, students get involved in many activities. Activities that make up Student Life.

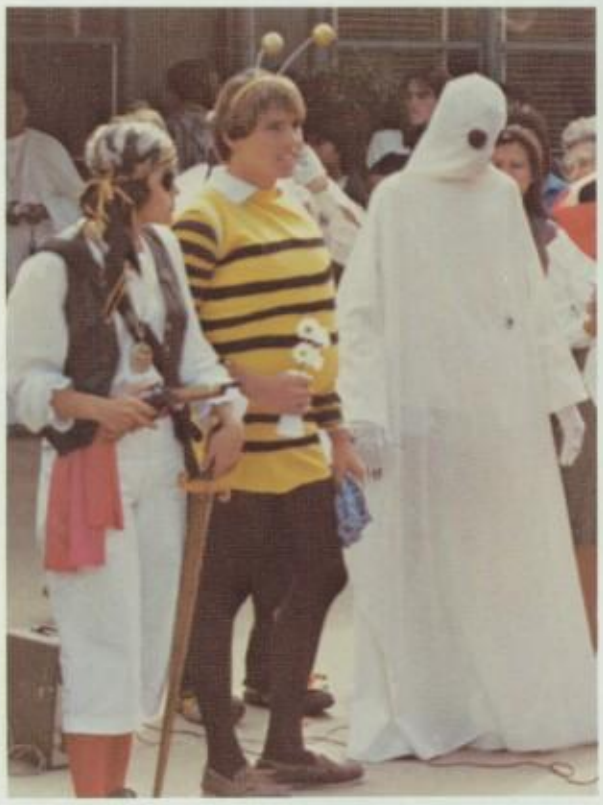
Throughout the year, many school oriented activities occurred. Among them were Spirit Week, Homecoming and Drama Productions.

Not all things that students did were school oriented. Partying, local sporting events and movies were just a few of the things that students did to occupy their time.

The following section of the book is devoted to those things that students did to relieve themselves from the burden of the books.

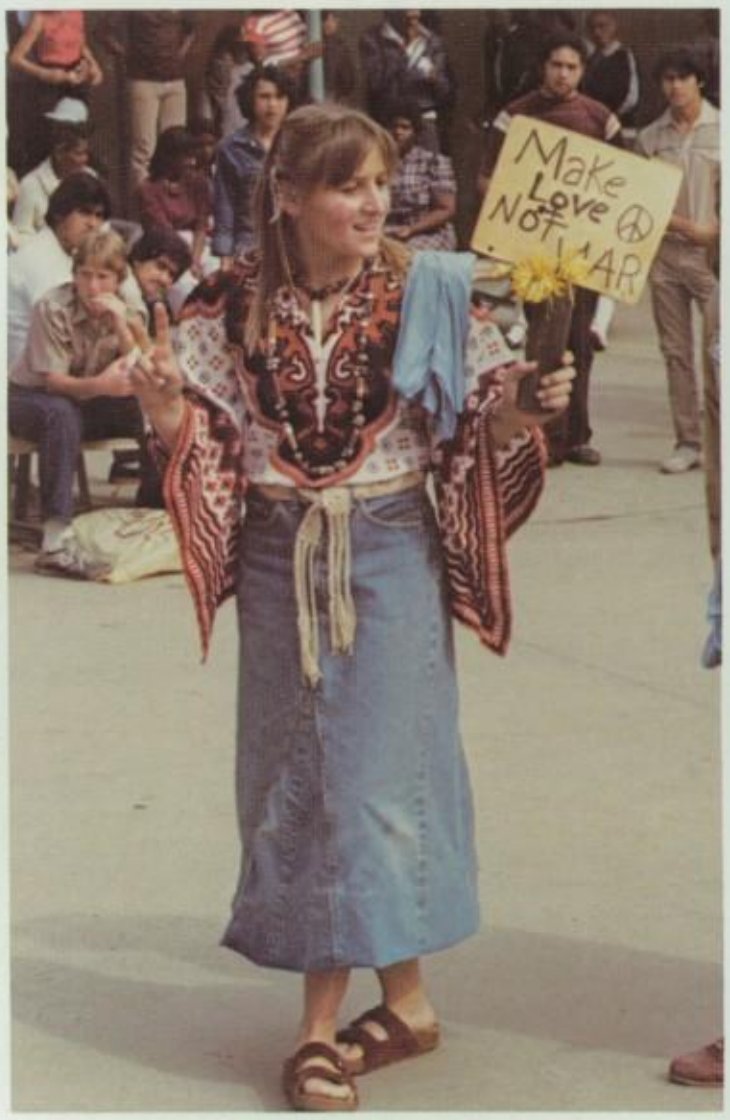
ENJOYING A LUNCH together, Georgia Ruckdeschel and Tanya Binkley chat on the grass.

IN COMPETITION for first place, contestants prepare for the final elimination.



SPOOKED OUT AS A GOBLIN, a fellow Komet gets the crowd's attention with his eye catching costume.

GETTING INTO THE ACT, teachers show that they too have spirit.



TAKING US BACK into the 60's, Kim Brown pickets for peace not war.

Beings From Another World

There was certainly no limitation to the colorful costumes created on Costume Day last Halloween. From a buzzing bumblebee to a hideous looking skeleton-man, it was one of the most memorable Costume Days that we have had in quite a long time.

So realistic were the costumes, that one could forget where he was. Even a few of our teachers got into the spirit of things by dressing up in their own wild get-ups.

At lunchtime, the costumed entered the judging contest. Taking first place in the contest was George Putnam with his rendition of a giant killer bee. All of the judges admitted that judging was so hard because the costumes were so original and realistic.

All in all everybody enjoyed themselves at the costume festivities and during Spirit week.

THE GALACTIC VILLAIN, Darth Vader was a real contender in the judging contest.

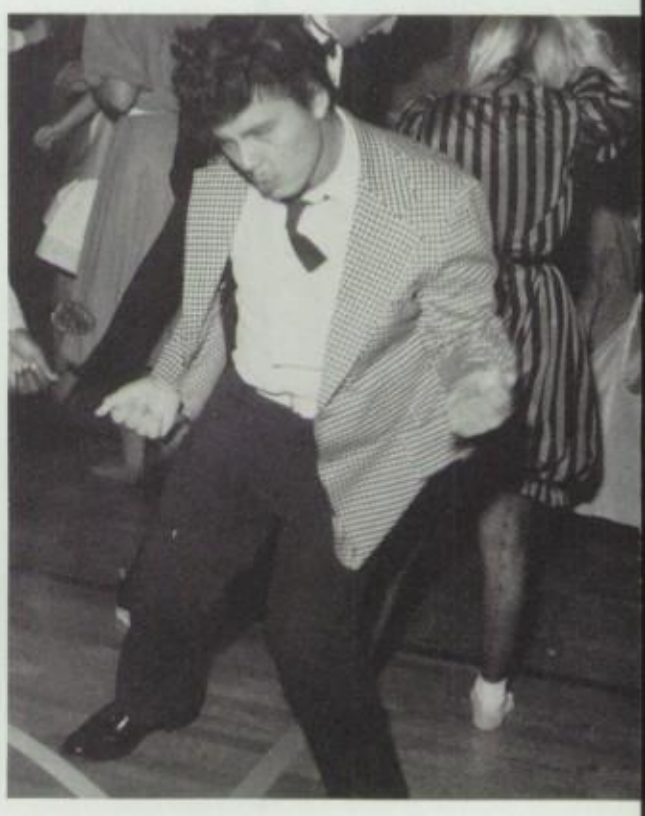
POSING FOR THE CROWD, Mike (King Arthur) Hall and David (Monsignor) Price form a Medieval pair.

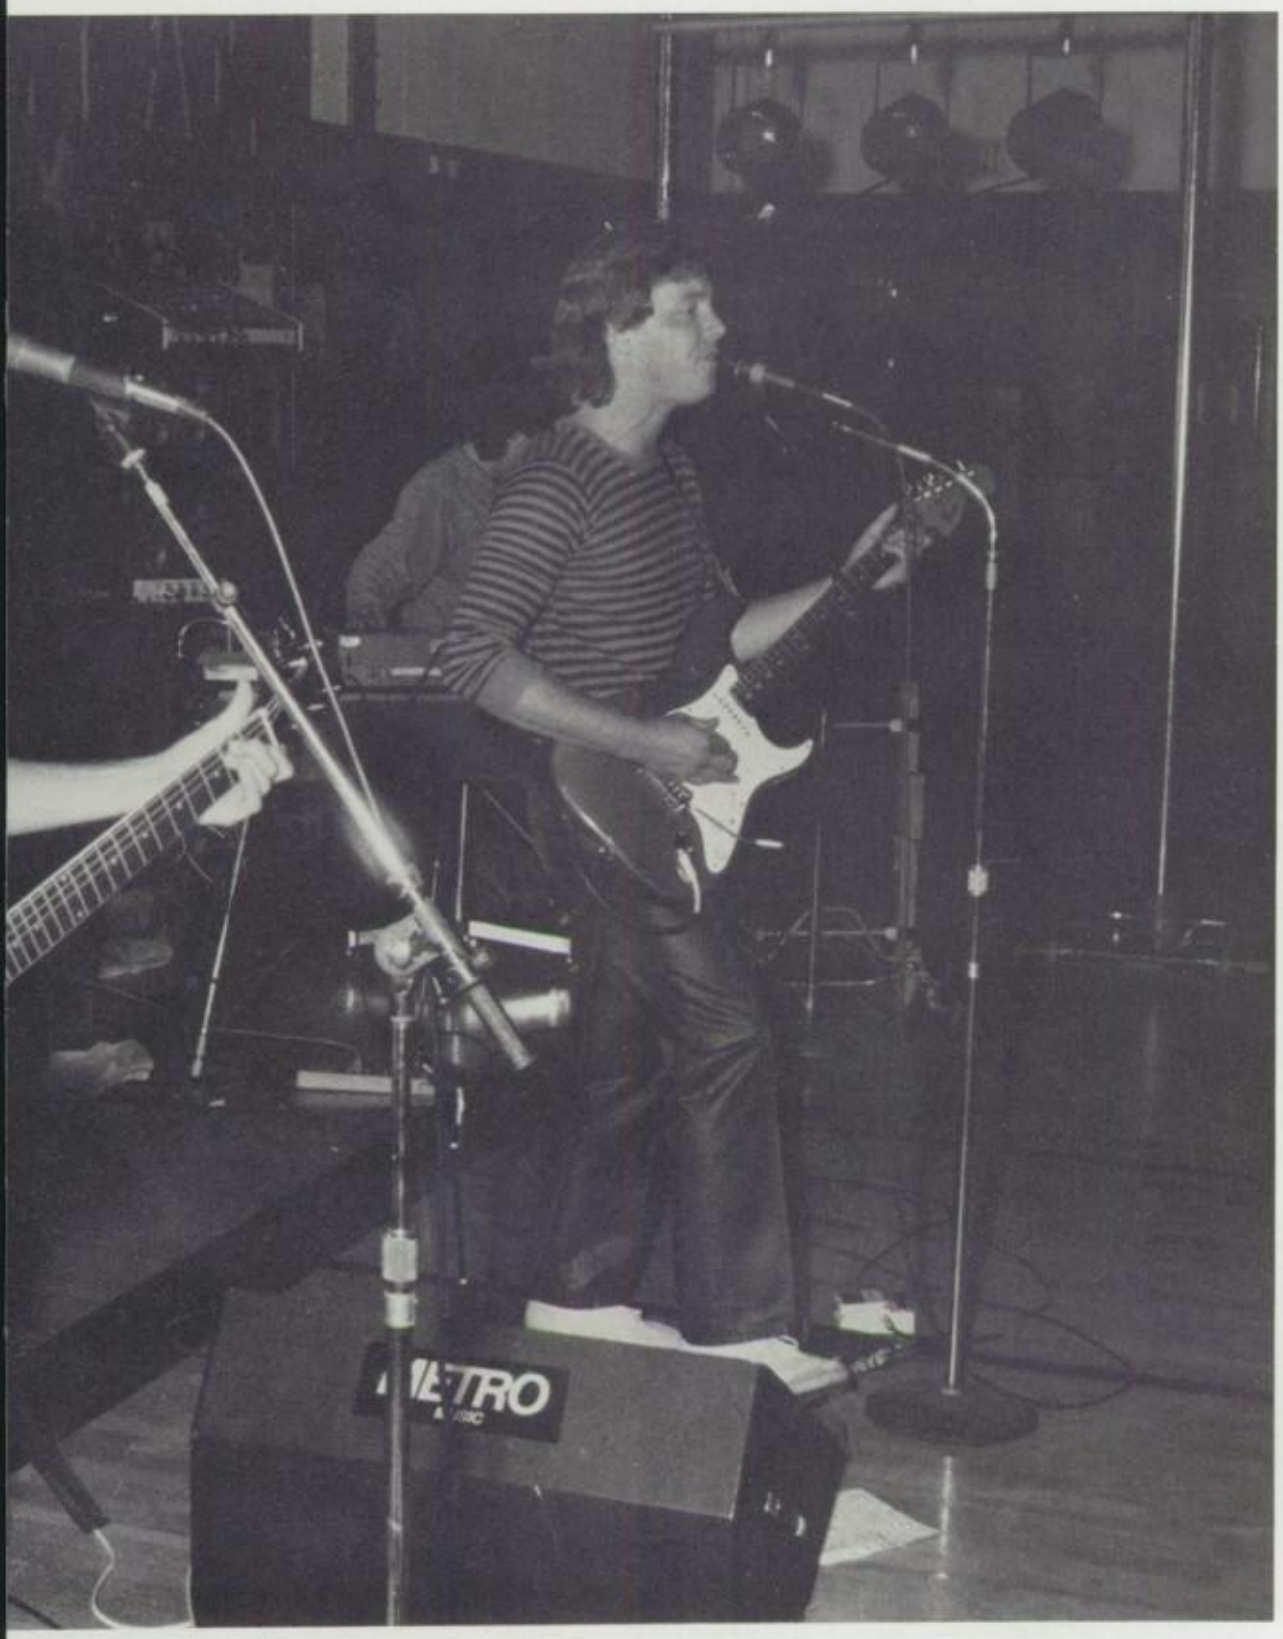
TAKING TIME OUT from dancing, Karl Almryde, Yvette Herera, Becky Herera and Paul Almryde watch friends.

ROCKING THE GYM, Metro sings out Van Halen's Dancing in the Streets.

SHOWING HIS STUFF, Mr. Short and his partner rock out to the music.

BE-BOPPING AROUND, Jodie Warring dances to the tunes of Metro.





Still Hot! Formal or Not

Dancing the night away at the Homecoming Dance, the students showed what they could do. But they weren't the only ones on the dance floor, many faculty members joined them. The mood was right and they danced until midnight.

Dancers had come with mixed feelings concerning the dance because it was held in the gym and was semi-formal. But when the music started and the feet started moving, no one seemed to care how they dressed or where it was at.

There were two types of entertainment, a D.J. and a band called Metro. Metro started the night out with a couple of rock tunes and new wave hits like Stray cat strut, Shake it up and Hurts so good. The D.J. came out at 10:00 PM to finish out the night.

The Homecoming Dance has been a tradition for many years and no matter what the circumstances will be in the future it will still have its sparkle.

ROCKING OUT to the beat of Metro, Brenda Portwood, Ken Emmons, Suzanne Mansfield and Gary Manson have the time of their lives.

SLOW DANCING near the end of the dance, Derek Pasnak and Loretta Martinez enjoy a memorable moment.

HOMECOMING COURT: Heini Lampinen, Marcella Alvarez, Cherette Bellamy, Maxine Espinoza, Chanti Burks, Cathy Alvarez, Evette Thompson, Lisa Bowen

HEINI LAMPINEN and Evette Thompson patiently wait for the decision.

A Change For The Better

"Out with the old, in with the new." This phrase applies perfectly to the Homecoming Court. For the first time in Kearny's history, a Homecoming King was crowned. The one to receive this honor was Chanti Burks, a varsity football player.

Also, on the court were Queen Marcella Alvarez, Senior Attendants Heini Lampinen and Cherette Bellamy, Junior Attendants Cathy Alvarez and Maxine Espinoza, and Sophomore Attendants Lisa Brown and Evette Thompson.

Certainly, this was a year of changes and it was most evident in the Homecoming structure.

DRESSED FOR THE GAME, King Chanti Burks poses with Queen Marcella Alvarez.

ECSTATIC OVER WINNING, Marcella Alvarez is congratulated by her court.

Coming Home With Style

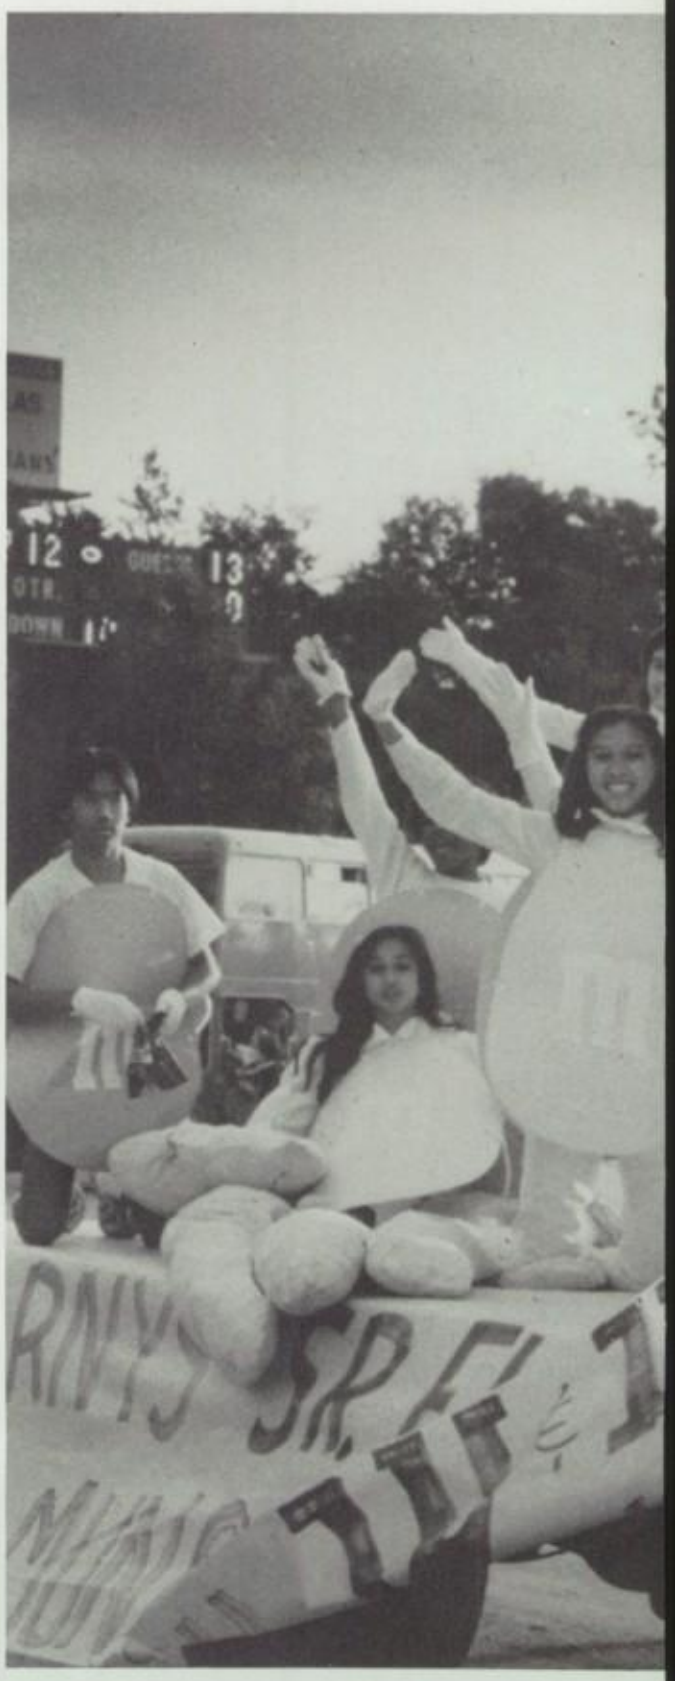
It's half-time and the Homecoming festivities are underway. Leading the parade are floats designed to fit the theme of television commercials.

Hard working students took time out from their busy schedules to make their colorful floats. The Senior Class' float got the most attention when they won the first place trophy but the Samoan C & H Sugar float came in a close second place.

Also on hand were the alumni cheerleaders from the class of '73. They brought on a totally different atmosphere to the feeling of Homecoming. The cheerleaders from other years also came to show the crowd their spirit of long ago.

A change of pace faced the students during the voting process to elect the Homecoming Court. Requests from students sent the A.S.B. busily searching for candidates for a Homecoming King. Never before in the school's history has there been a King.

Homecoming has long been a tradition here at Kearny and as the times change, the structure or process of Homecoming may change but the Homecoming is here to stay.



M & M'S the word as the Senior class wins first place for their delicious float.

RIDING IN STYLE, Junior attendants Maxine Espinoza and Cathy Alvarez cruise past the crowds.

SOPHOMORE ATTENDANTS Lisa Bowen and Evette Thompson ride in on time for the Homecoming half-time activities.

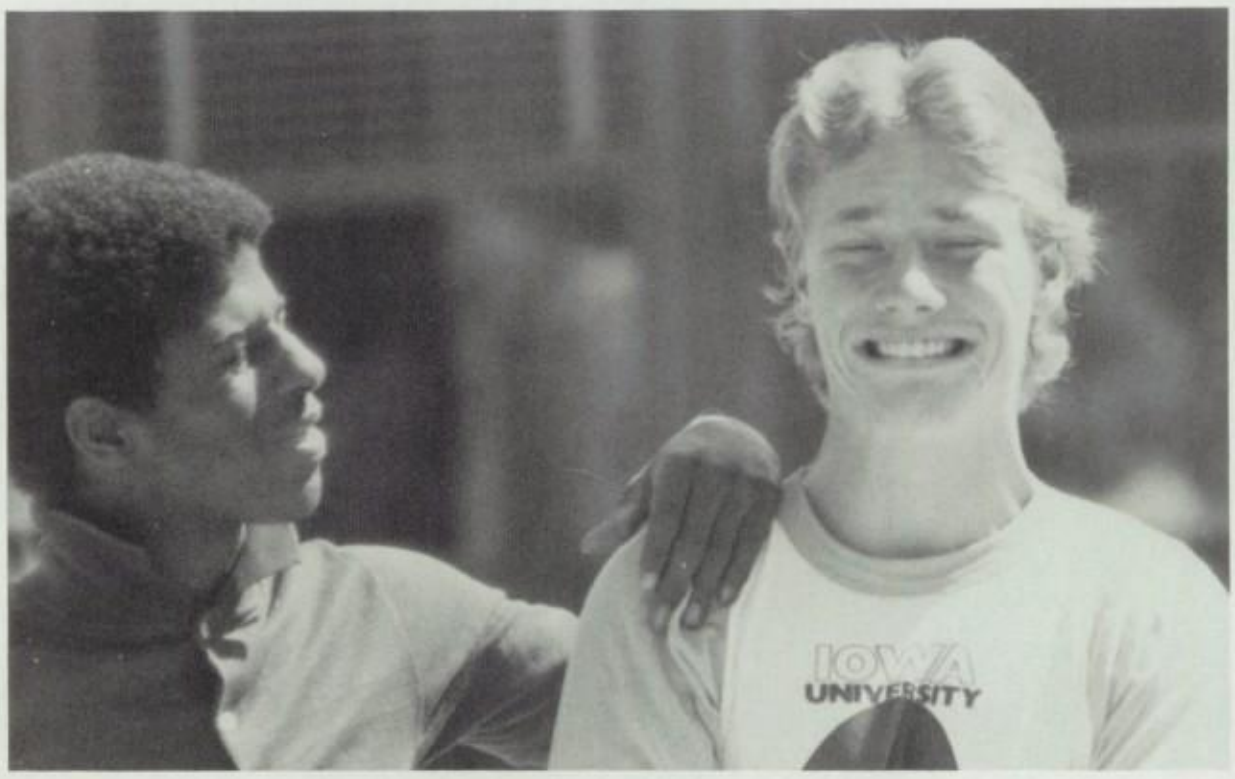
ECSTATIC CHEERS come from the cheerleaders as they make their way in this old double decker bus.

A.S.B. PRESIDENT, Jon Shigley makes his appearance in a ritzy 1949 Hearse.

WHILE BUSILY VOTING, Emma Alvarez, Sonia Durant and Lilian Barboza carefully choose a candidate.

"ARRGH! THAT'S COLD," yells Jay Edwards as Edwin Hunter cheers him on.

BLINDFOLDING Felix Leyva, Sandy Rapallee is making sure that he can't see.



COLD FEET are the reason for Jay Edwards' agonized expression in the ice standing contest.

COVERED WITH CHOCOLATE cream, Rosanne Perez looks down in disbelief that she ate the whole thing.

Spirited Competition

Fierce yet friendly battles went on almost every week at lunchtime Class Competitions. Leading the rallies at lunchtime, the A.S.B. and the cheerleaders helped to put it all together. From the pie-eating contests to pinning the tail on the tiger.

In the pie-eating contest the object was to find an object at the bottom of the pie. Whoever found it first was the winner. The results were anything but clean. Pie was everywhere except in the pie tin. At the end of the fiasco, George Putnam came in first.

To pin the tail on the tiger, first you had to be blindfolded, then turned around a few times and let loose to try to find the tiger and pin his tail on. Homer Gibbs came in first.

The spirit of competition was contagious, and as the year progressed, so too did the excitement of the games.

PINNING IT WHERE IT COUNTS, Kim Brown makes a regal attempt for her class.

The Subject Was Drama

Entertaining students and parents this past winter, the drama class put on a fine performance with their version of "The Subject was Roses."

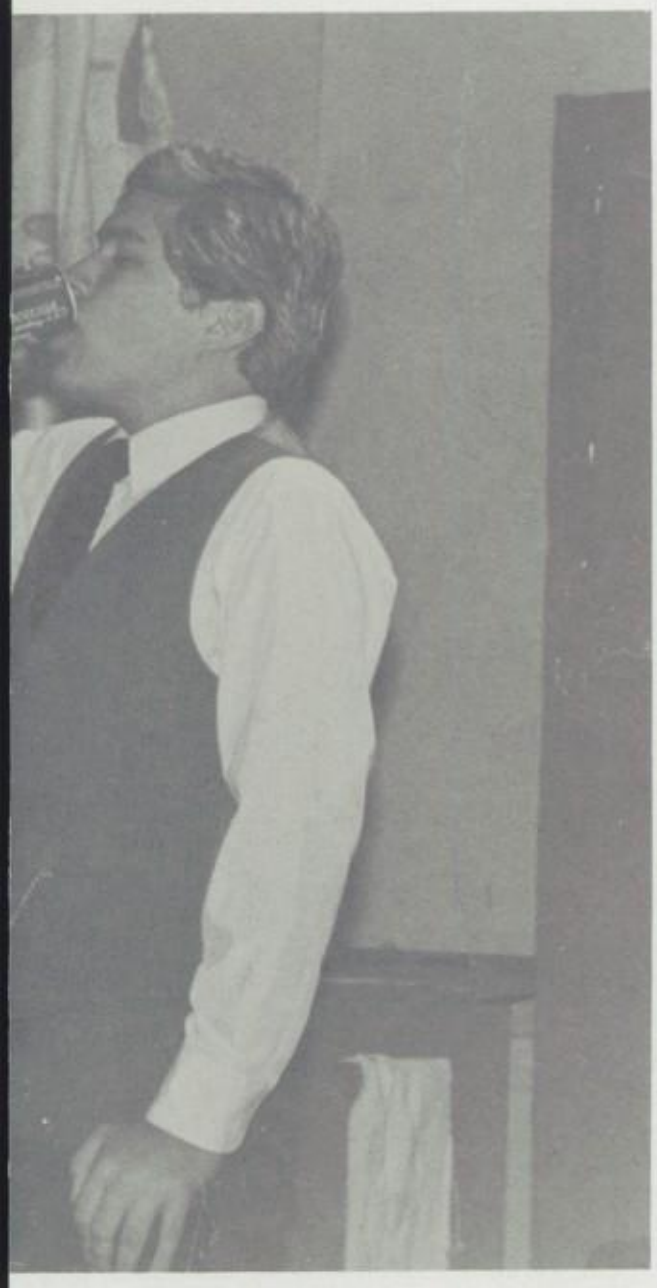
The play was based on a boy named Tim who went off to war. When Tim, played by Jody Warring, returned, he had grown up. He soon found out that family life was very complicated. His father, played by Michael DeLeon, helped in coping with his new life.

Tim turned to alcohol as a way to forget his problems. His drinking problem only got worse. When his father started drinking. This upset his mother, played by Mary Goldkamp.

The actors did so well that they were invited to perform a scene of the play at Occidental University at the High School Theatre Festival last January.

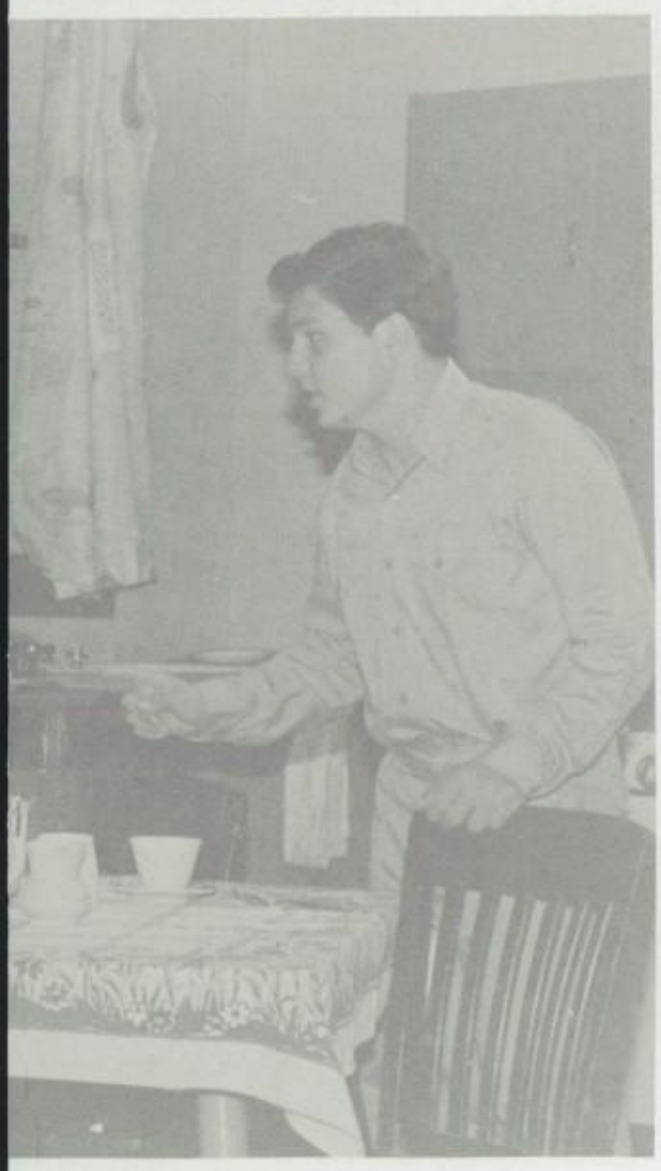
SITTING PATIENTLY, Tim wonders where his mother Nettie has gone that night.

TRYING TO ARGUE with his mother, Tim gets no response.



PROBLEMS ARISE when Tim and his father start drinking.

TURNING AWAY from Tim, John is very upset at the way his son has turned out.



COMING HOME drunk, John bursts through the door in a cheerful mood.

CONCENTRATING INTENSELY, Harris Clarke tries to rescue a damsel in distress at the top of the building in the video game "Crazy Kong."

ATTEMPTING TO SHOOT the winning point in a game of Foosball, Angela Adams spins the players.

Games People Play

In the ever-changing world, one of the most popular pastimes was video-game playing. Many students and people of all ages enjoyed games such as "Pac-Man", "Frogger" or "Donkey Kong". However playing the games wasn't always considered reasonable. They could cost a lot of money and took a lot of time up.

The money didn't seem to bother the students because at 25¢ per game, the games were cheap, but those quarters added up.

Controversies arose concerning different facets of the issue. Many people accused the arcades of attracting undesirable people.

The most common reason for playing the games was the sense of competition that was produced by the games, and the availability of tokens didn't hurt.

EATING AS MANY POWER PELLETS as he can, Brian Carter works his way through the Pac-Man maze.

LOOKING AT THE RADAR screen, Mikee Schmitten tries to find out where the next ships are coming from in the game "Defender."

Moving Ahead In The World

Did you ever go into a store and see a familiar face behind the counter? If you did, that face probably belonged to a student from Kearny. Students worked at fast-food restaurants, movie theaters, clothing stores and many other places.

There were many reasons for having a job, ranging from buying a car, paying for college, moving out of the house to just everyday expenses. It also gave teenagers a chance to display their independence and responsibility.

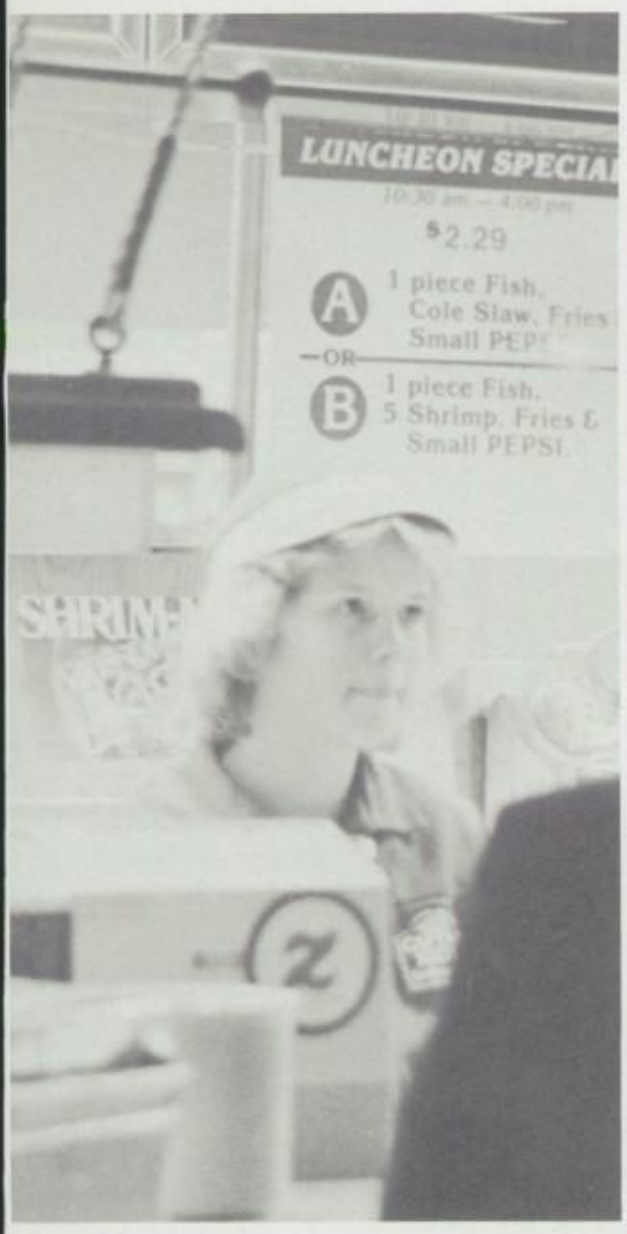
Students found their jobs by talking to friends who knew about openings, the newspapers, and just talking around. The Career Center was also eager to help out with much information concerning how to find just the right job.

Some people argued that jobs interfered with school work. But working students disagreed and argued that a feeling of responsibility was equally as important as an education.

TELLING HER CUSTOMERS the flavors of yogurt that are available, Rose Malonzo puts in hours at the Yogurt Cup.

CHEERING UP SANTA, Carmen Munnelly offers Dan Higdon a rose.

PULLING CHICKEN OUT OF THE OIL, Scott Dempsey admires the golden-brown breading.



LISTENING PATIENTLY, Kirsten Johnson waits on customers at Captain Kidd's Seafood Galley.

WAITING ON A CHECK WRITER, Kelly Wilson jokes about the day's events.

THE MOST POPULAR FAD for the 80's were polo shirts. Tigers and Alligators were just two of the many designer logos.

REVIVING A 50's FAD with bright colors, Chona Lagasca wears a sleeveless sweatshirt.

Changing With The Times

Ever notice the different fads that went around? Sure you did! how couldn't you, they were everywhere. Fads ranged from the modest to the outrageous.

At the beginning of the year, Valley Girls roamed the campus in their mini-skirts inspired by the Frank Zappa song. A few kept the look while others switched to the more formal look of tuxedo shirts. Mods, left over from years past, grew quite a following. Preppies went strong the whole year and a fifties revival died out before it could really get started.

Bright colors were a welcome change from the usual colors of blue, black or brown. But clothes weren't the only fads that were noticeable, hair went through a metamorphosis too. Students were more selective with their hair styles and weren't afraid to experiment.

The different clothes and hair styles gave Kearny variety, and one of the things that makes school bearable is variety. Fads will definitely be welcomed as long as students are allowed to express their own creativity.

DECKED OUT IN AN ARRAY of fads, Michelle Powell leaves school for an afternoon of fun.

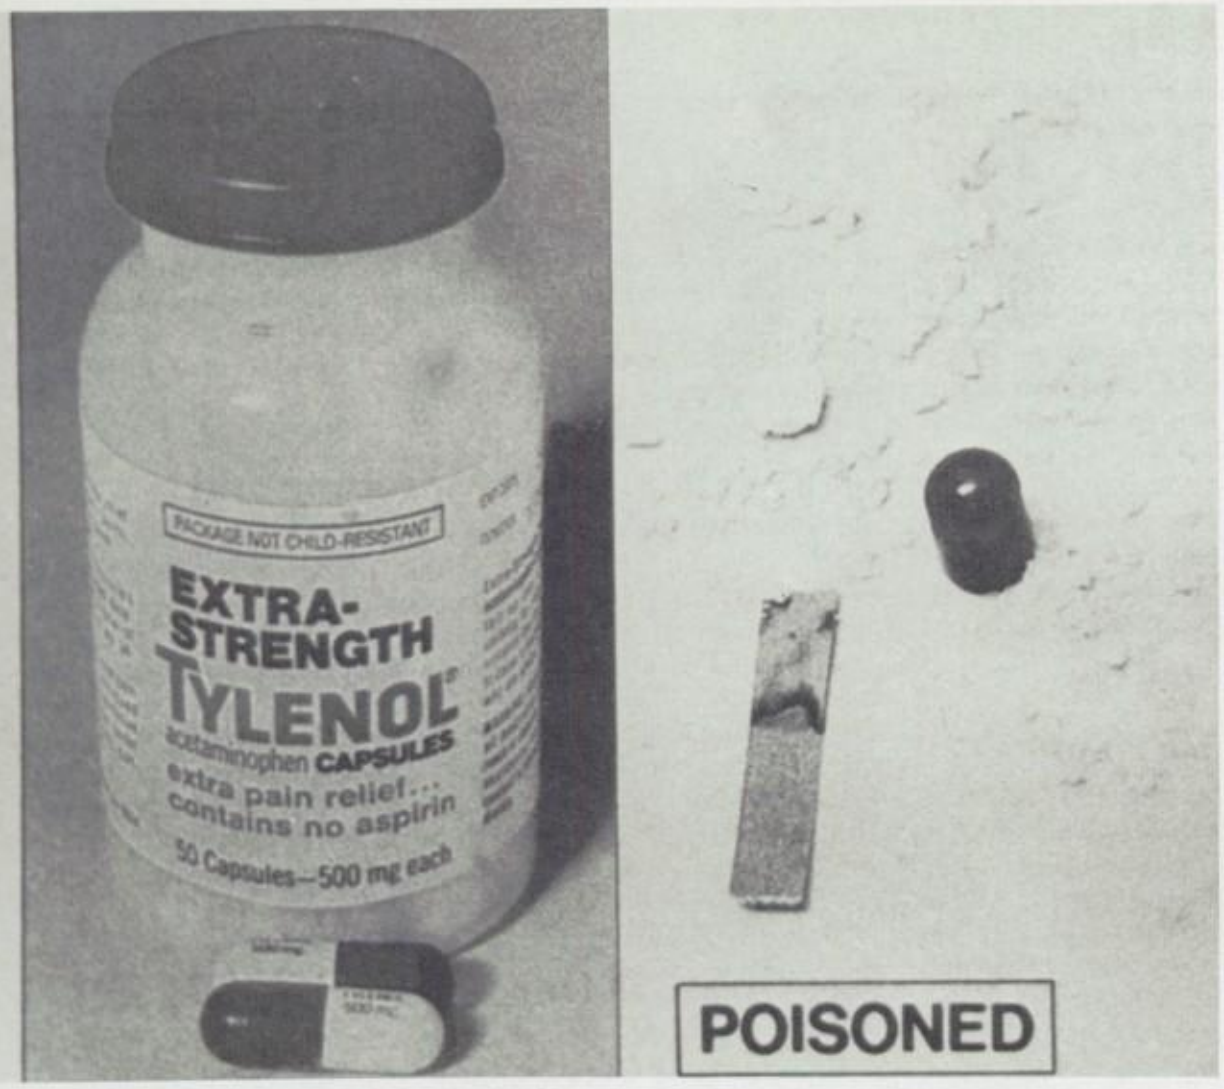
NEW FOOTWEAR ON THE SCENE were soft corduroy flat-boots which were stylish and comfortable.

VISITING BETWEEN CLASSES, Lani Heller and her friend Jennifer wear apparel brought back from the past.

AMERICANS MOURNED over the news of Princess Grace Kelly's death in a car accident.

WHILE VISITING the Scripps Institute of Oceanography, Queen Elizabeth of England signs the guest book shortly before receiving a gift from the people of San Diego.

WHO IS E. T.? He's the little creature that inhabited our hearts during one of the most popular movies of this time.



The Year In Review

This past year proved to be very memorable. With a variety of things happening. Starting from the rise of the space shuttle Columbia to the US Festival. Even the little creature from space that wanted to go home.

Locally San Diego got a taste of the good and the bad life. The city had a chance to see a really good football team go to the playoffs for the 4th consecutive year only to lose it in the second round. The concert of the Who's last American tour.

Like the saying though, good always comes with bad. Along with the local events nationally the story was a bit sadder. The deaths of John Belushi and Grace Kelly were a bit shocking and the nation mourned over these happenings.

On a brighter side nationally we had the opportunity to watch our shuttle Columbia be used over again.

All in all 1982-1983 was a year that no one would soon forget.

SHOCKING NEWS HIT THE SHELVES of grocery stores and pharmacies. Someone had poisoned the Extra-Strength Tylenol capsules killing a number of people.

SAMURAI COMIC John Belushi's unexpected death from an overdose of drugs sadden all of his fans lives.

Bad Tidings

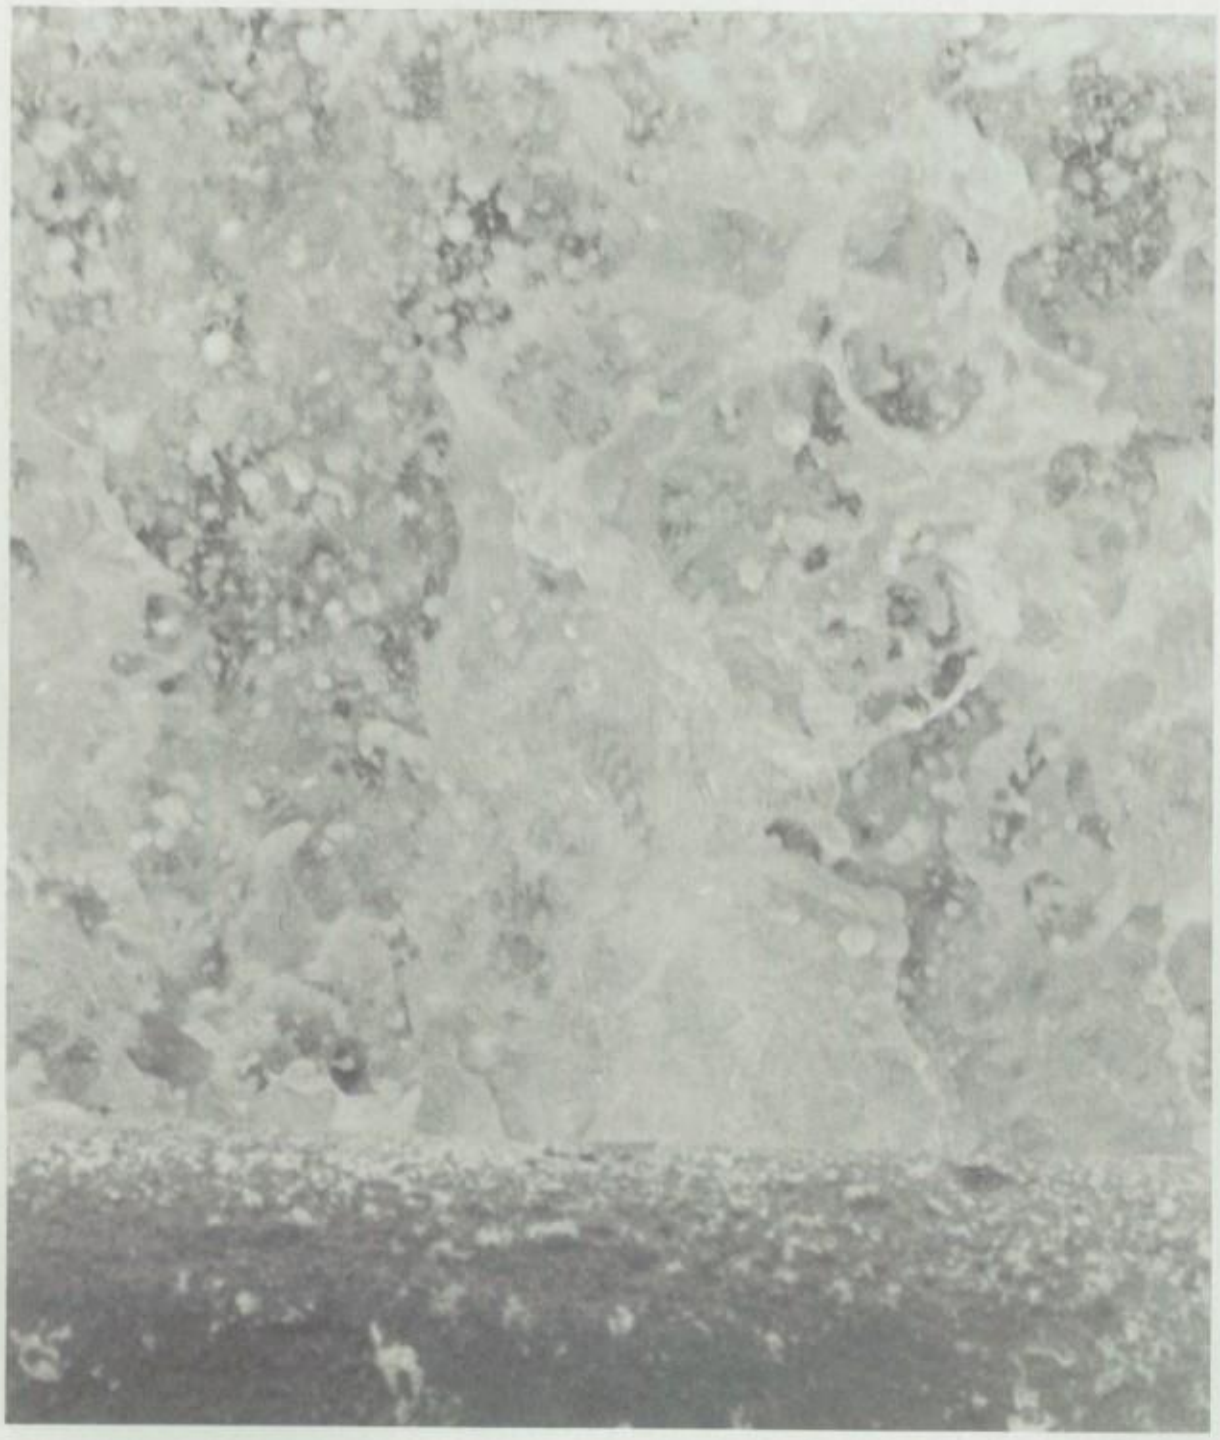
High tides combined with high surf made for bad results for beach front homes and property. The waves swept away much of the sand at many beaches and a good part of Crystal Pier. Property damage was not only the bad thing that happened. Three people died when the wall they were standing on was swept away by a huge wave and swept them away.

Millions of dollars of damage was done to property in coastal areas, areas when high tides came past retaining walls and into many homes.

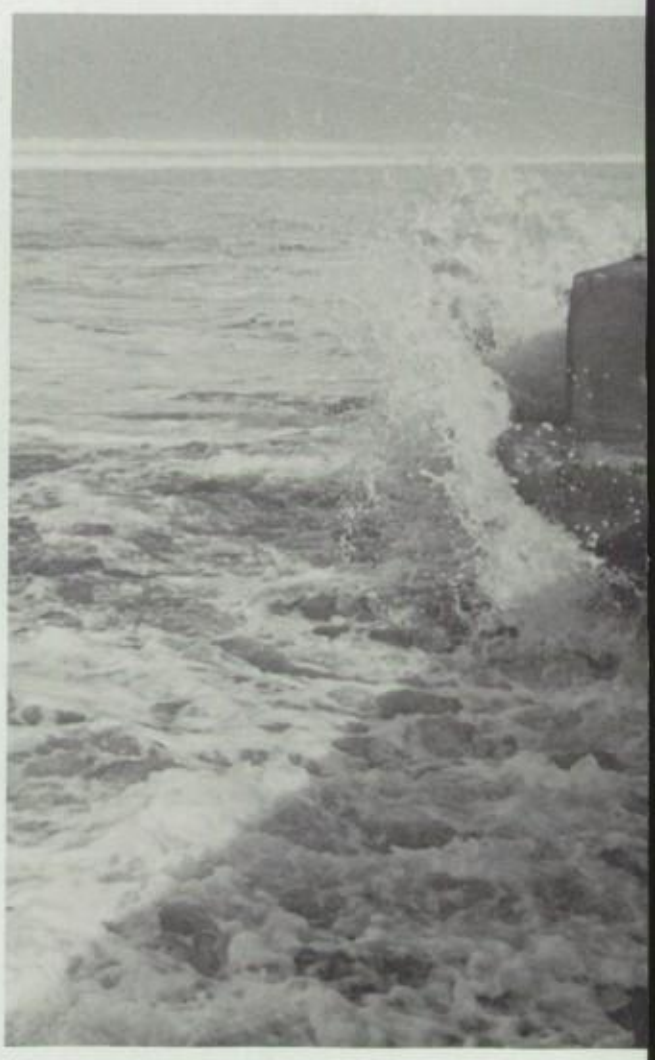
Several restaurants suffered damage including the Marine Room. Repair for the restaurant was started and waves from an earlier storm washed away what had been repaired, making it necessary to start over.

Many of the usual places had flooded once again. Mission and Fashion Valley were the most popular flooded areas. Many of the dams were over flooded as well.

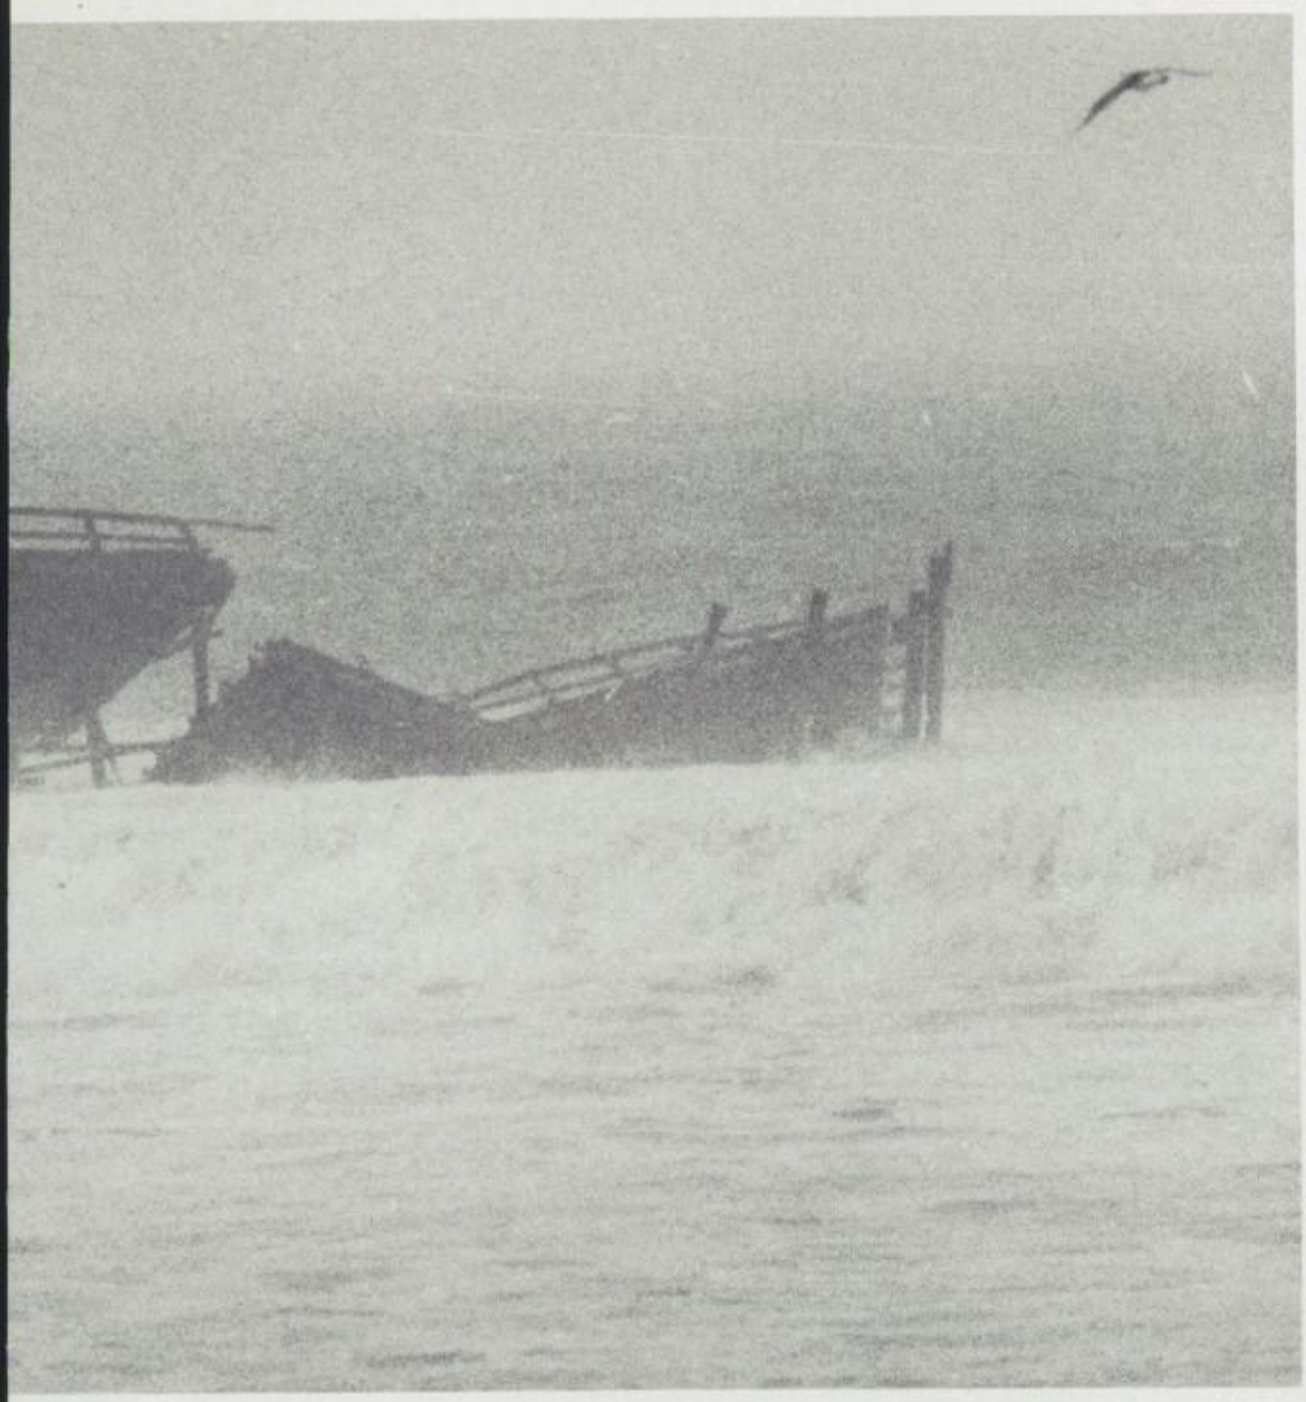
Nationally the weather was even worse. In Los Angeles a tornado touched down at one point. This past year was one of the biggest stormy winters.



THE SEA WALL looked a bit different when looking down on it. Waves at Mission Beach were high enough to climb over the wall.

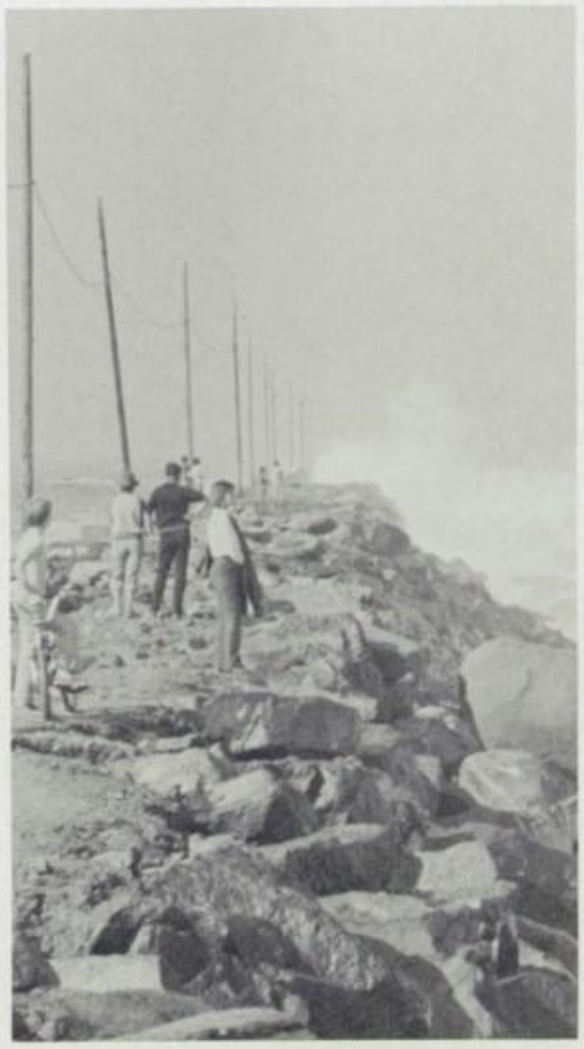


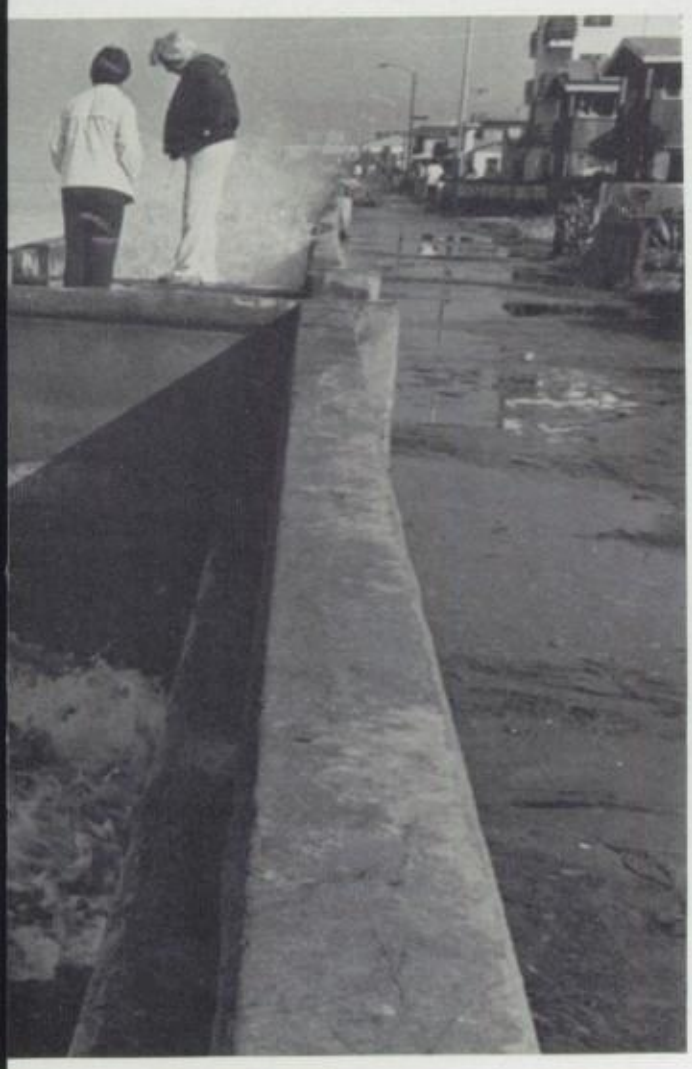
PEOPLE DRENCHED and streets covered with water, the waves ripped over the walls and into homes and businesses.

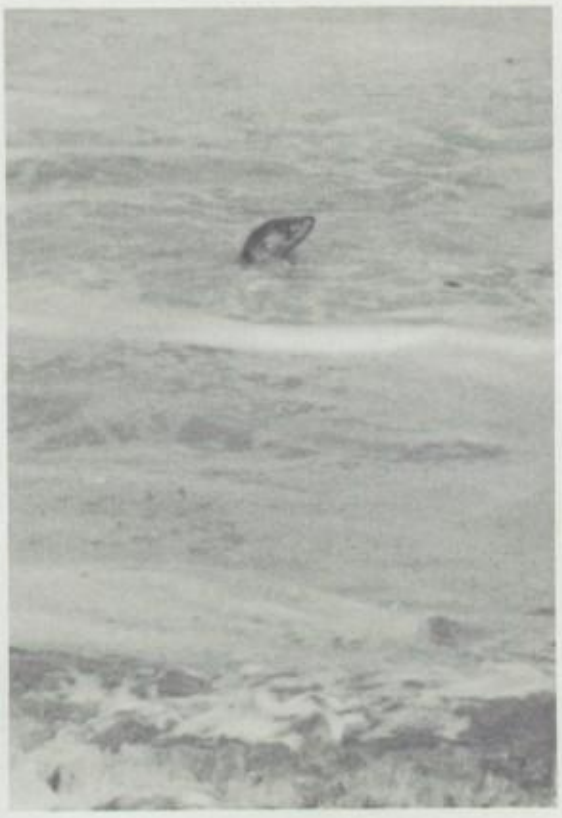


MOST OF THE DAMAGE was done when huge waves, ranging from 10 to 17 feet, tore away 260 feet of Crystal Pier.

BRAVING THE WEATHER these students try their luck at viewing the ocean from the jetty at Mission Beach.





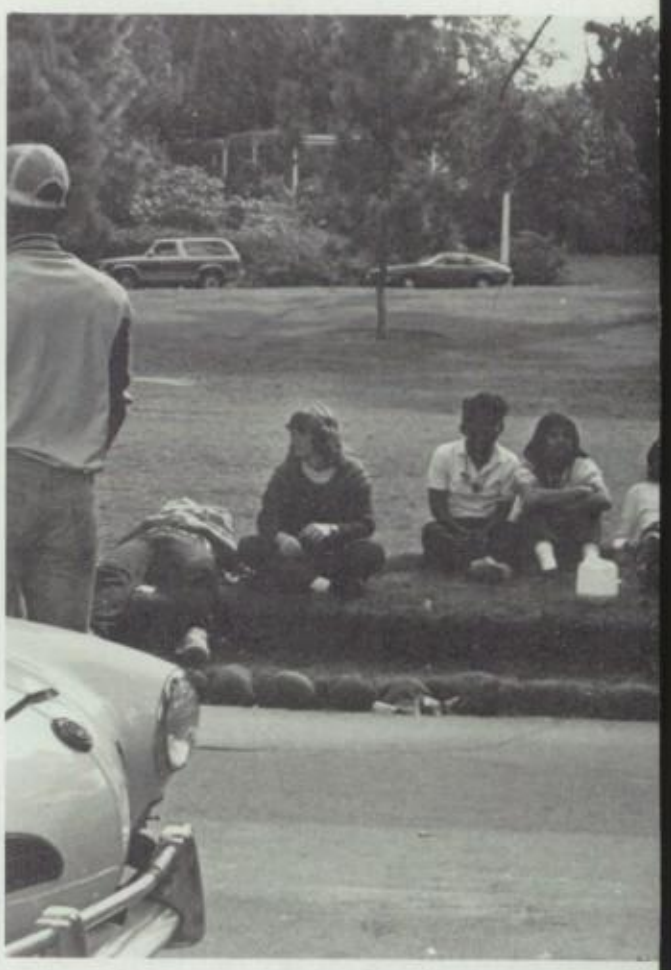


STRONG RIP TIDES kept this little seal from trying to fight his way through the stormy, rough currents.

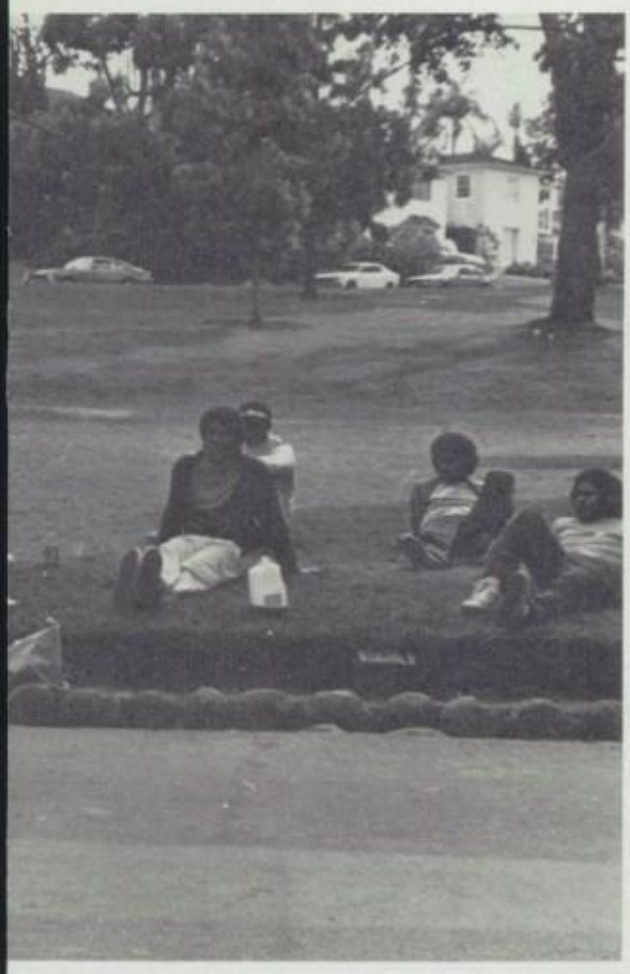
ONE BRAVE SOUL was found when this surfer tried to surf the enormous waves.

Missing Persons

Rrring! There goes the tardy bell, but where are all the seniors? Some uninformed teachers were astonished at the unusual silence and emptiness of their classrooms. Have all the seniors become sick, or was there a newly declared holiday? Actually, nobody was sick. It was Senior Ditchday! Seniors put aside all their worries and forgot about schoolwork for one free day. Favorite ditch spots included Presidio Park, the mountains, Fiesta Island and Seaport Village. Those at home didn't even bother to get out of bed. Back at school, all senior classes were left bare with the exception of one or two loyal students. By chance, Dr. Payzant, the new superintendant of schools, was touring the campus that day. On the whole, teachers were good sports about it and some even welcomed the free periods.



UPON THEIR ARRIVAL, those at Fiesta Island gather to make plans.



TIRED FROM A LONG DAY, seniors rest on the lawn at Presidio Park.

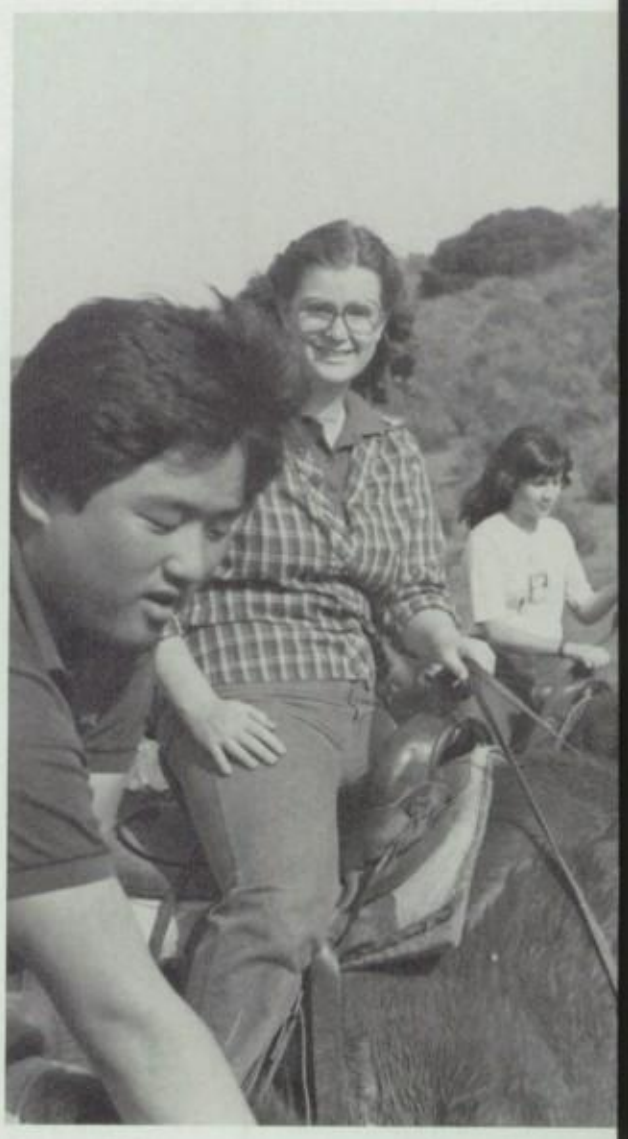
THESE BRIGHT SMILES express exactly how seniors felt about their ditchday.

SPIRITED SENIORS AT PRESIDIO show no guilt or regret at all for ditching.

AT FIESTA ISLAND, another group of seniors enjoy the fair weather.

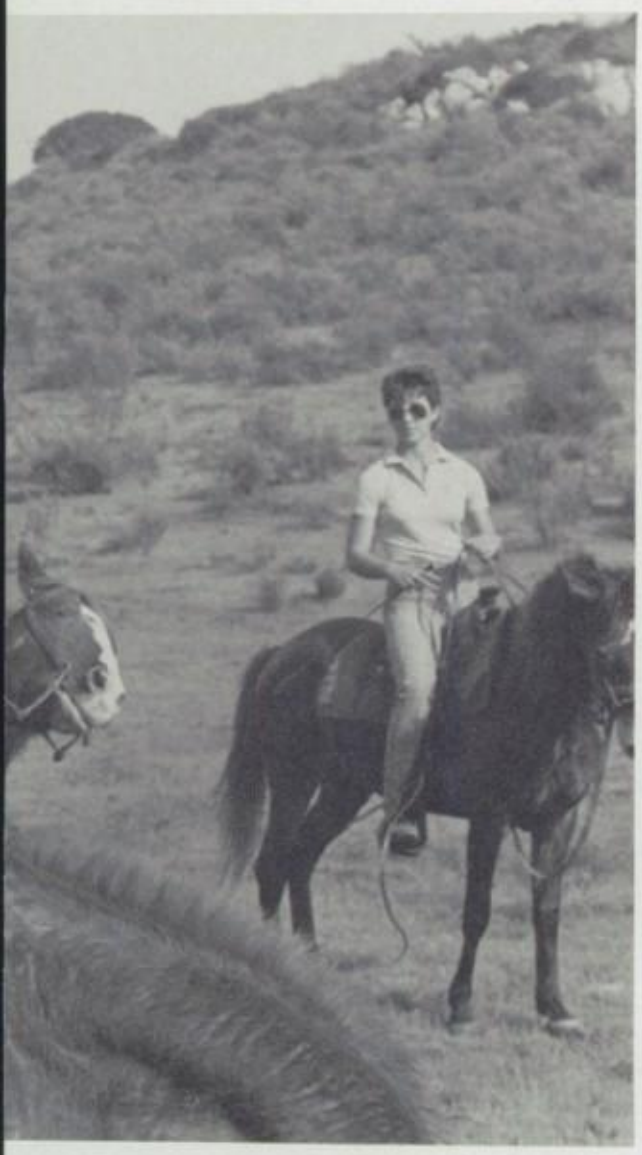
ENJOYING THE FREE TIME, students play a friendly game of tackle football.

GOING HORSEBACK RIDING, Jesse Park, Erin Rooney, Felecia Conrique, and Amy Kropp let their horses take a rest.



TACKLING THE QUARTERBACK, the defense prevents the offense from scoring a touchdown.

GETTING READY FOR THE HIKE, the defense yells "blitz" and rushes in.



Time Off!

It's only the beginning of the week, and you're already wishing it's Friday. Time just seems to go so slowly in class, and you watch the clock click. A big part of student life are the weekends away from school. It's a time for relaxing with some friends, and forgetting about homework. Other more studious pupils use the extra days to catch up on late or important assignments.

Sports are a main part of weekends. Students can be seen playing football, tennis, basketball, and baseball everywhere. Horseback riding, beach walking, and surfing are just a few of the many activities to do on weekends. Nighttime activities also make time fly by quickly.

By the time you know it, Friday has arrived and you have the time off to do anything you please.

GLANCING DOWN, Felicia Conrique checks to see if her stirrups are adjusted.

JAMMING ON THE GUITAR, George Piper shows his abilites as Chris Dumont and Robert Hyuarinen listen in.

GARY CLARK undoes his arms holding a plastic can holder.

Let's Party!

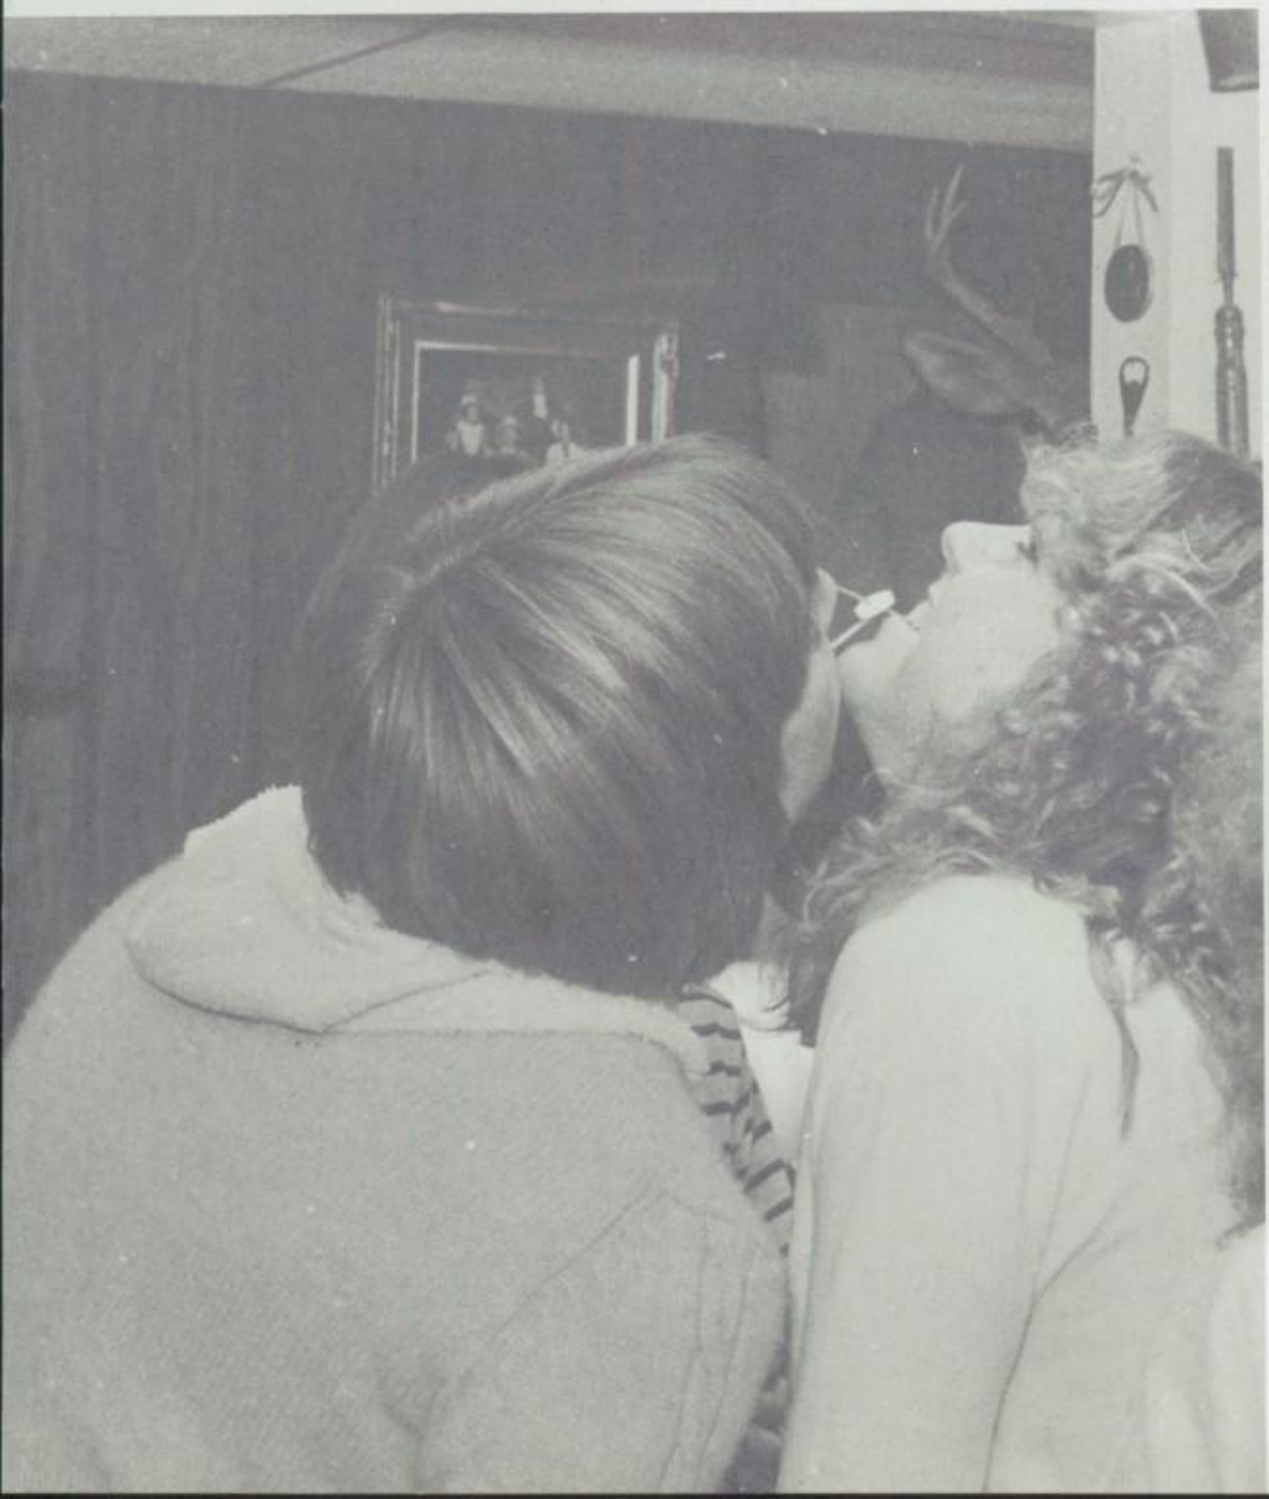
Where are the parties? This was one of the most asked questions this year. The party scene was high and the atmosphere was great. Everyone was out to have fun.

What happened at the parties? They ranged from playing quarters to dancing. Some of them were small and some were big. It didn't matter how big or small the party was. All that mattered was being with your friends.

Bands were at bigger parties to play all night long. Students danced on the patio, while those who didn't dance, talked with their friends. Students enjoyed going to parties because there was always the chance of meeting someone new.

ATTEMPTING A LONG SHOT, Joe Wilcox makes the shot as Ed Kenworthy watches.

USING TWO QUARTERS, Ed Kenworthy throws a winning shot in the glass, as Gary Clark and Joe Wilcox look on.



TAKING THE LIFESAVER AWAY from Darlene Bartlet, Ed Kenworthy succeeds in his attempts.

Kearny Lunch Krunch

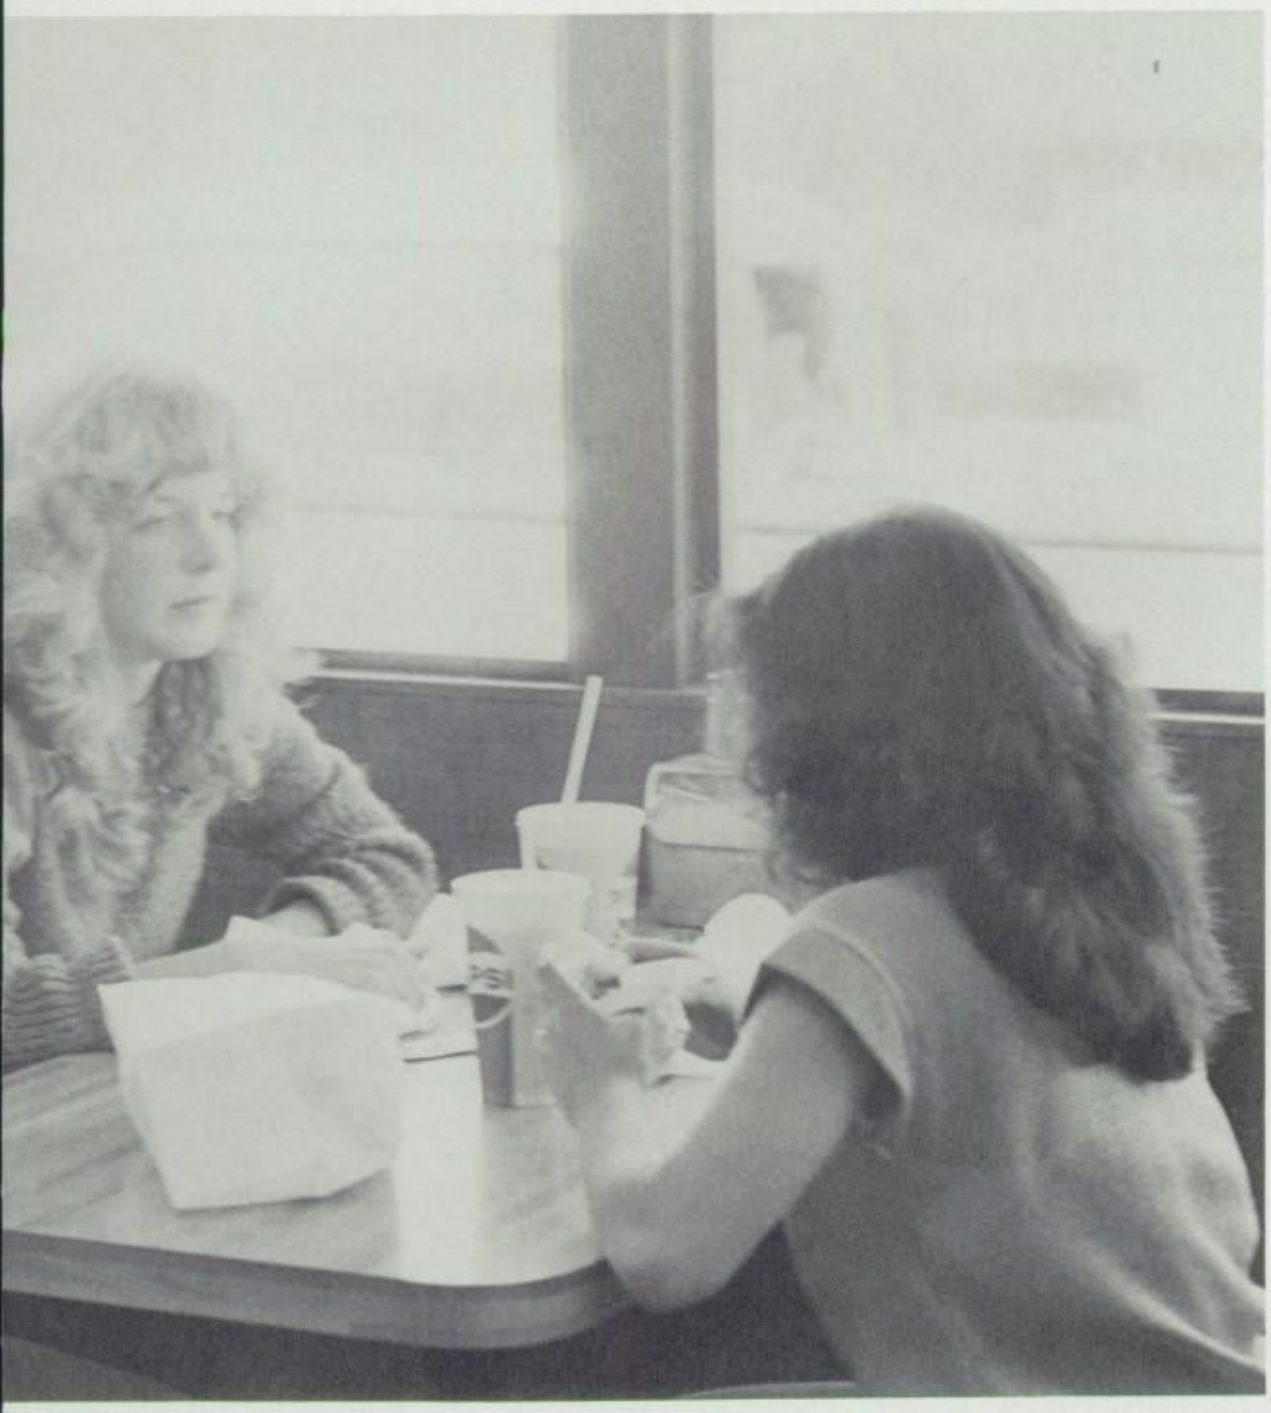
Seems almost like everybody goes to Square Pan Pizza. That was a familiar place to go for lunch. And with only half an hour for time to eat, why not?

With transportation you had to make it a quick stop at a fast food place. Usually the local John's restaurant or McDonald's was a place to catch students munching on burgers and fries. Seldom students had time to even finish their lunch but they managed it.

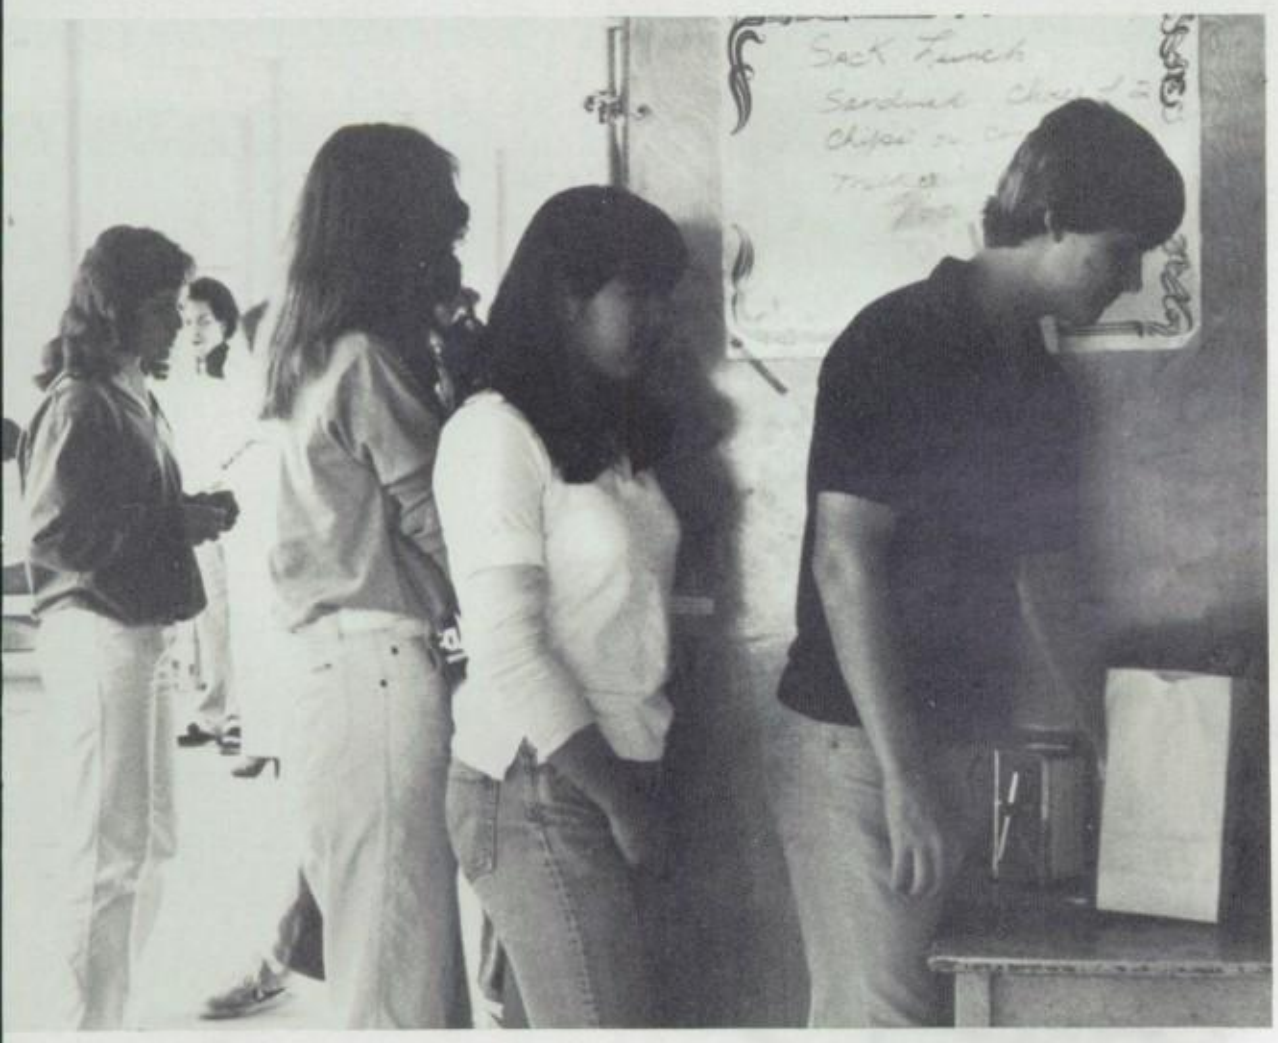
More nutritional places included the Yogurt Cup. Ever since it opened, students were attracted to it and still haven't stopped going there. The Yogurt Cup is a great addition to the new center there, for it gives students a new variety of lunches and also it isn't fattening. With new places popping up everywhere students in the future will have better places to go to and also a newer choice of foods.

ONE OF THE MORE POPULAR places to eat was at the Yogurt Cup. Maxine Espinoza enjoys one of the many flavors of yogurt.

EATING THEIR LUNCH, Jon Hostetter and Mark Peterson watch passers by in the comfort of G & D's Donut shop.



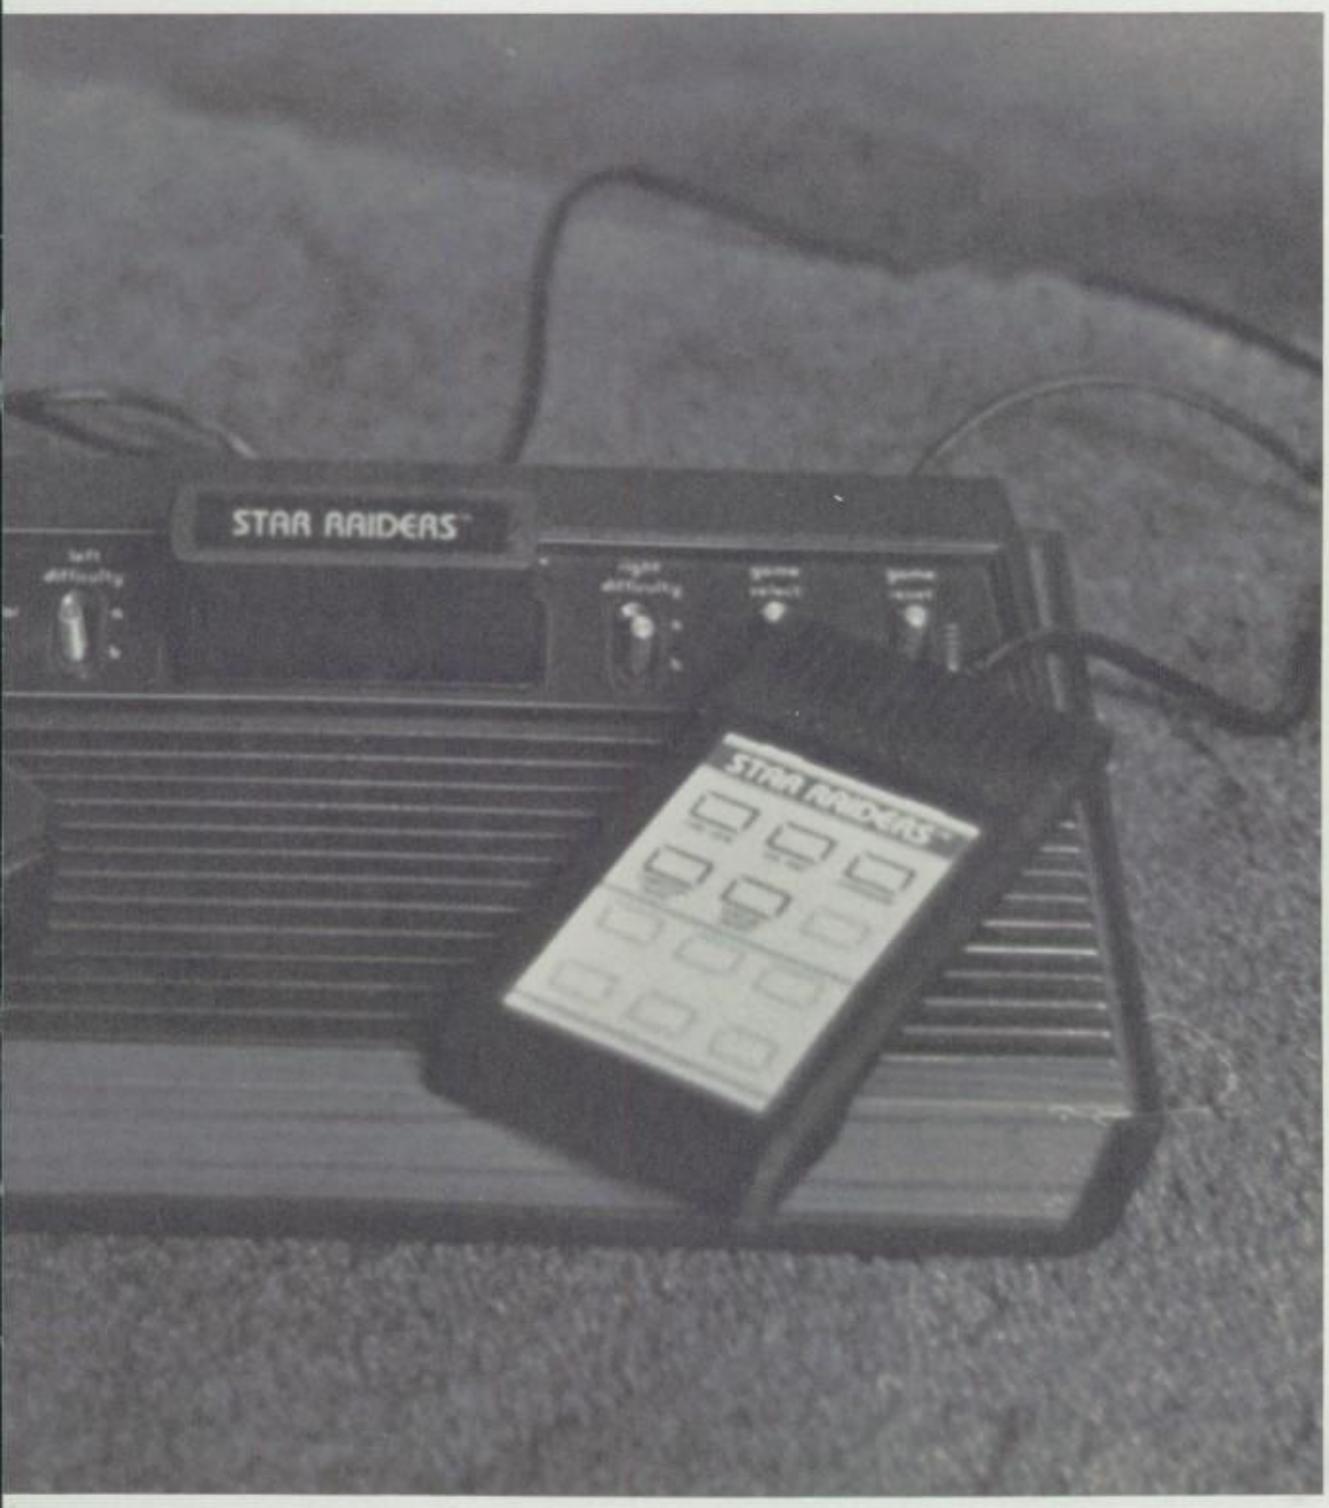
JOHN'S had more of the usual foods like hamburgers and fries that Denise Madden, Jayme Guardiano, and Brenda Johnson had the pleasure of eating.



TRAVELING FAR? No problem. Eating here, students tried sack lunches in the junior patio.

HAVING A VARIETY OF DIFFERENT CASSETTES, the Atari 2600 computer was a big-seller.

HOME BOX OFFICE (HBO) is one of the many pay T.V. services. On Golden Pond was featured in the month of December.



A VAST ASSORTMENT of video games are available by Atari in many stores.

PERCHED UPON THE ROOF of the Media Center, a Satellite Disk transmits and receives television signals from all over.

Future Vision

Many years ago, the television set was used to watch programs that were limited to certain channels. Recently the television set has been used many different ways, from playing a favorite video game to watching music being performed. There were many such music television stations in Southern California like MV-3 and M-TV which were both block-busting hits.

THE MARRIAGE OF TELEVISION AND STEREO produced a highly popular form of entertainment.

Many home computers were being hooked up to the television. Manufacturers of the home computer like Atari, Coleco and Apple were aiming their advertisements to the average consumer.

Also a big hit was pay-television. Stations like HBO, Showtime and the Z-channel provided alternative viewing for a monthly charge.

PULLING AN OFF-THE-LIP, Randy Palomino attempts to ride the wave to it's fullest.

SKI CLUB: Bottom row: G. Trego, E. Labonte, D. Avery. Top row: K. Altman, J. Greeson, S. Rapalee, B. Breeze, M. Wright, B. Tracy, K. Knagge, C. Acera, K. French, M. Barney, C. Muro, B. Sanchez.

READY FOR THE SURF, Joseph Cagle wades out to the waves at La Jolla shores.

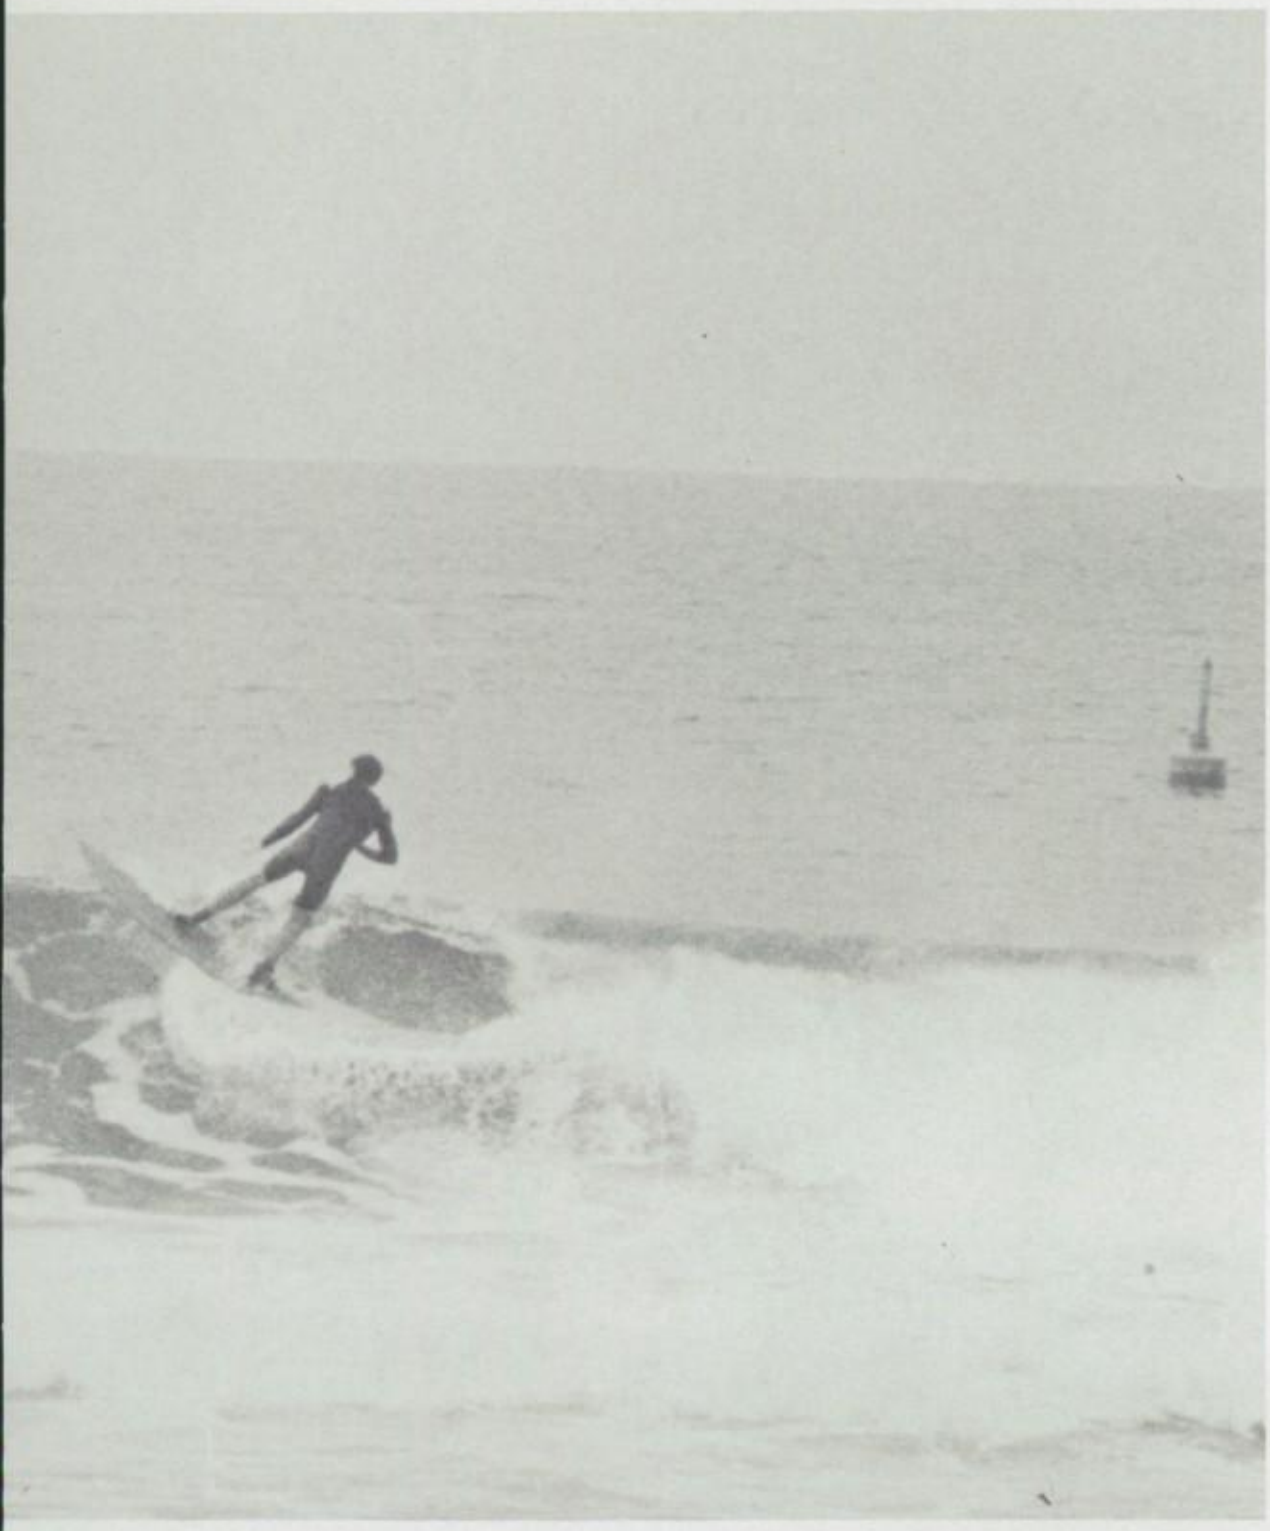
LAURIE:
SO, WE MADE IT HUH? YEAAAH! "CRISPY"! WERE OUT! I HOPE YOU HAD FUN THIS YEAR, BECAUSE I DID AT THE BIG "K". IT WAS NICE KNOWING, NOTHING TO GET A BONER ABOUT OR NOTHING BUT IT'S COOL. STAY COOL AND HOPE SEE YOU AT MESA. "HOOK UP SOMETIMES." 475-7227 NAK

P.S. SEE ME ALL "CRISPY" ON THE SLOPES!

THIS GUY IS SOOOO CRISP!



Water Works

Two favorite weekend sports that many people enjoyed doing was surfing and skiing. To students, they were both fun and challenging.

This winter many students braved the large waves that hammered the coastline and frigid temperatures to get in some excellent surf during the holidays. Surfing has become a popular sport and one may find more and more students at the beach enjoying the waves at all times of the year, especially in the summer. Due to difficulties in finding a replacement for Coach Griswald, there was no surf club, although attempts were made to get it started.

A group was organized under Coach Janc for snow skiing. There was a good turn out for the two ski-trips to Brianhead. Many of the students went on both trips. The average price for each trip was about one-hundred and fifty dollars. The trips took the advantage of the three day weekends due to the Lincoln and Martin Luther King holidays. When the weekends came around, students were usually enjoying the slopes or the swells.

SLIPPING, Karen Davis is helped by Eric Meins to keep her balance.

Taking The Good With The Bad

All around school, most of the talk was unfortunately not just about after school happenings or hobbies. Much of it concerned complaints that students had. Many students complained about little things such as crowded locker halls and the brightly painted blue and pink bathrooms.

The short lunch period was the subject of many complaints. Luckily, there were many local eating places.

School Spirit around campus was near extinct, and lack of spirit was another complaint. Many school sporting events had very low attendance and team support was just as low.

Trash filled halls were on the minds of many students, but the Campus Beautiful Contest proved that our school could be attractive and beautiful.

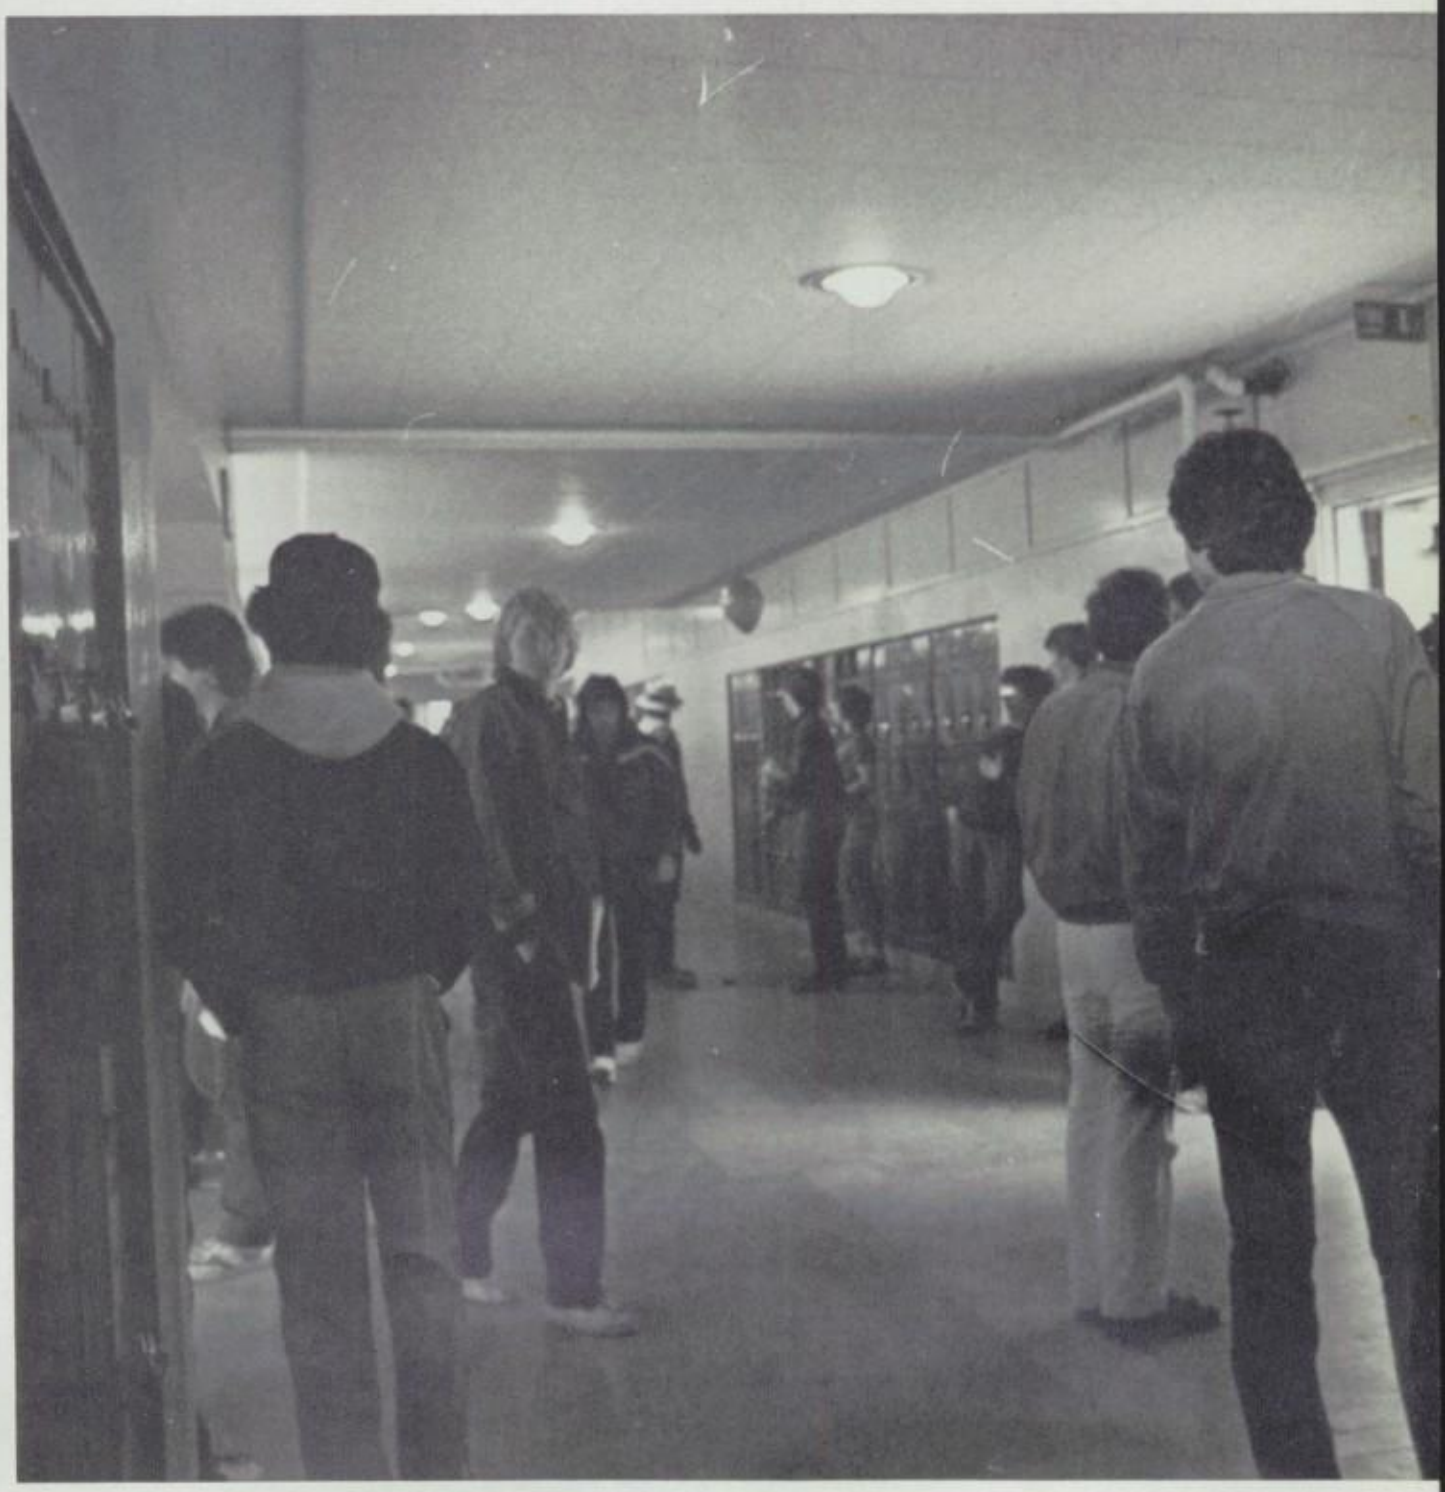
The graffiti inside the bathrooms was solved by the new "remodeling" by the A.S.B. The bright pink and blue colors did turn a few heads and a few minds, but after a while the students got used to it.

The year was filled with many compliments to accompany the complaints, which let the students take the good with the bad.

COPING WITH THE SHORTENED LUNCH PERIOD, students rush to eat at local restaurants rather than travel to farther places.

ENTERING THE BLINDING PINK BATHROOM, Tammy Gallagher tries to be inconspicuous.

CONGESTION IN THE HALLS was observed constantly. Crowded halls caused a lot of problems for students passing through.



SCHOOL SPIRIT, evident at the beginning of the year at events such as pep rallies, soon died out and after the 1st semester, was rarely seen.

After Hours

In an effort to increase the knowledge of the people around Kearny, and to attract others to the school, there were many classes for high school and college students after school and at night.

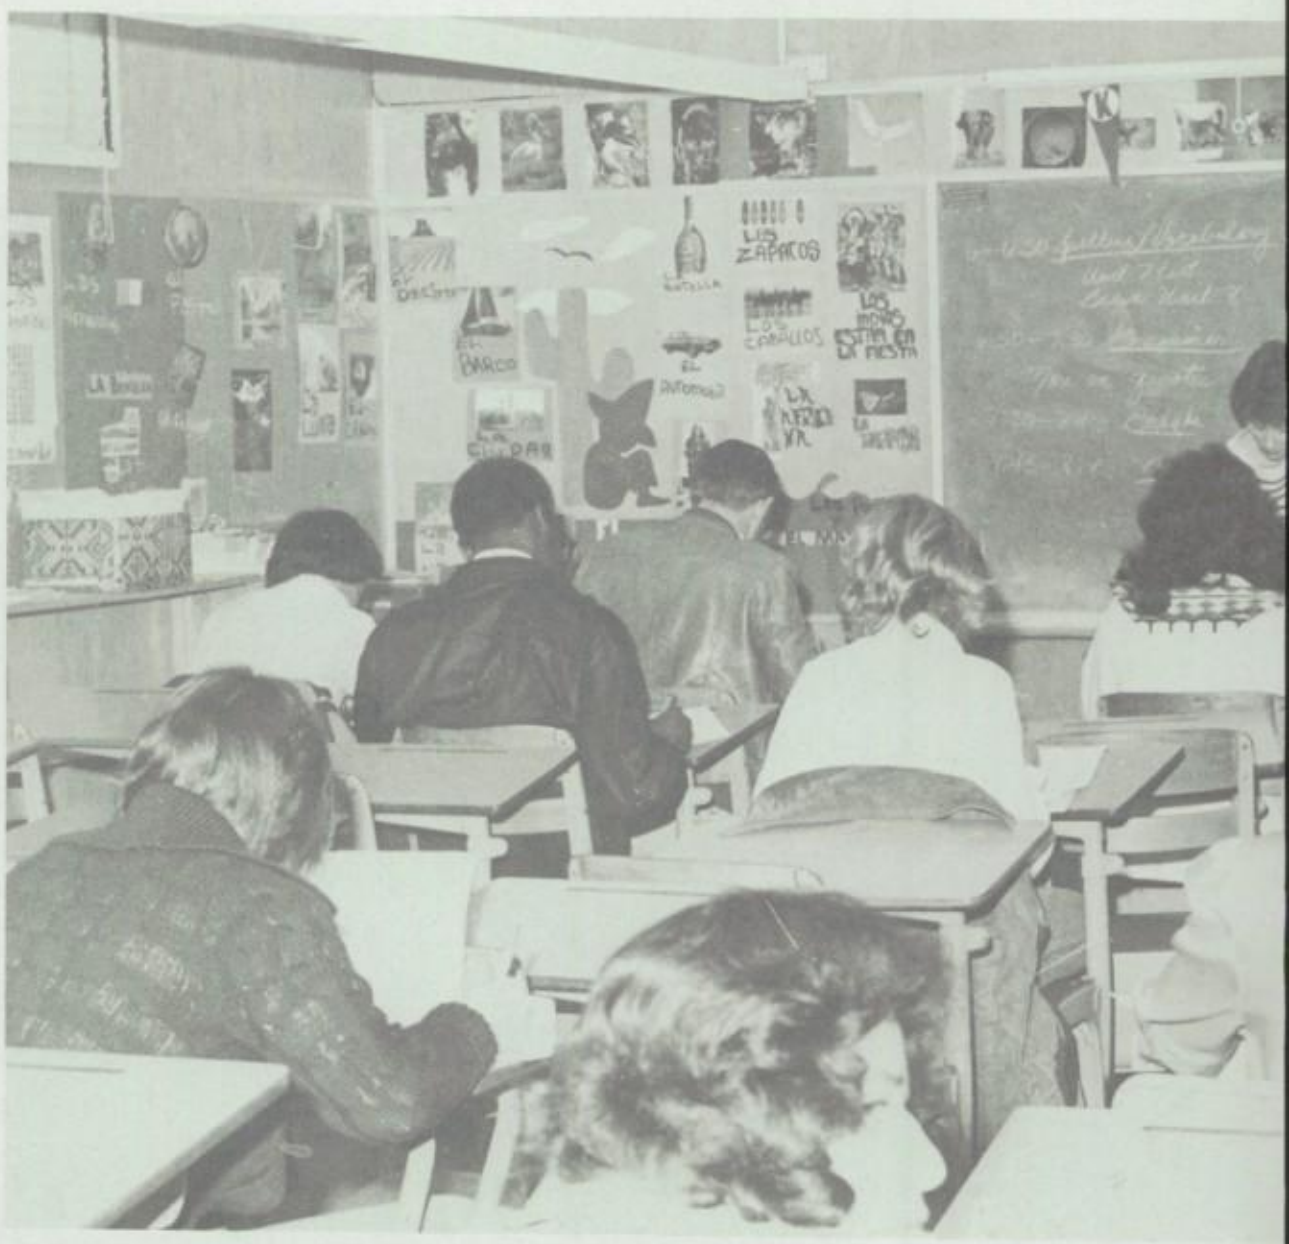
There were many types of classes offered. Office and business skills were taught with training in things like typing and bookkeeping.

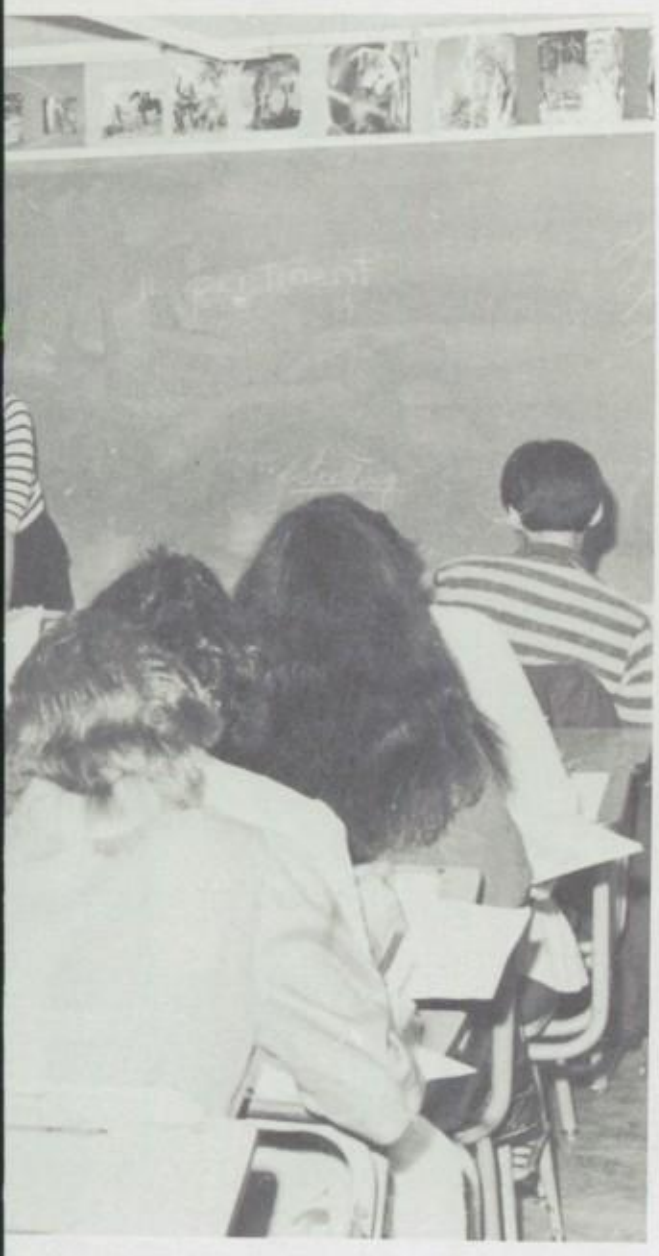
Classes such as basic English Literature and math were taught. These classes were being taken by students to receive a high school diploma or for college credits. But many people took these classes for their own personal satisfaction.

Industrial Arts with courses in auto mechanics and metal shop were given during the day. These types of classes helped us to train people for possible careers or to avoid costly repair bills in the future.

Classes in Home Economics were also offered, giving men and women an opportunity their culinary abilities.

The students who attended these classes were often overlooked and tended not to be included as part of the school, but without a doubt, they provided an essential piece in educating the public.





FINISHING UP A TEST, adult night school students rack their brains to get done in time.

PREPARING CHERRY FILLING, students at night school learn how to bake pies in cooking class.

AUTO MECHANICS gives this student an opportunity to work on his own car and cut down on repair bills.

COLLEGE ENROLLMENT CENTER SECRETARY, Grace Stravas finishes off a day's work.

WORKING ON THE LATHE, Miguel Echeverria takes his time in his ROP class to make sure that everything is just right.

Academics

Without the director, a theatre production would never get off the ground. The same thing goes for education. The directors being the teachers, administration and the rest of the staff.

The Administration organizes things and makes sure that the school as a whole runs the way that it is supposed to. They are irreplaceable.

The faculty members are what makes the school click. For they carry out all of the intentions of the school system.

The Counselors give careful guidance to students and treat them as individuals ready to face the world on their own.

The output (high quality education) is directly due to the dedication and long hours of work that the staff puts in. Thanks to the staff, the school functions with vigor.

Taking Charge

Making the school run effectively and smoothly was the job of the administration and secretaries. Being able to organize and supervise was necessary in getting the job done.

Dealing with problems such as budget cuts and finances, the administration had its share of hard work. Many decisions were made that affected the school and faculty. Cuts were made on some sports, but no major problems arose. Another important change was the six weeks progress report system. The administration had its say in whether to have the system on a trial basis or not.

Seen working in the offices were the busy secretaries. They held up the school by doing jobs that students took for granted. They were seen typing the bulletins, checking the absence list, and sometimes figuring out answers to unsolved problems.

Working Towards A Future

Rebuilding cars, designing houses, and printing textiles was something a person might do for a living. Many students took classes like these, never realizing the potential future until they did it themselves.

For some it was just a credit, but for others it became a basis for a lifetime career. Hours after school were spent making a project a little better than it had to be. Making a screen as big as life or spending extra time on a wood project wasn't necessary, but students did it anyway. These were just some of the things that were done in industrial classes.

Kearny, the center of industry, offered classes in automobile skills, drafting, and electronics. R.O.P. classes provided entry-level skills for students off- and on-campus.

Women just as much as men participated in these classes. They could be found out in the shop fixing cars and designing future homes.

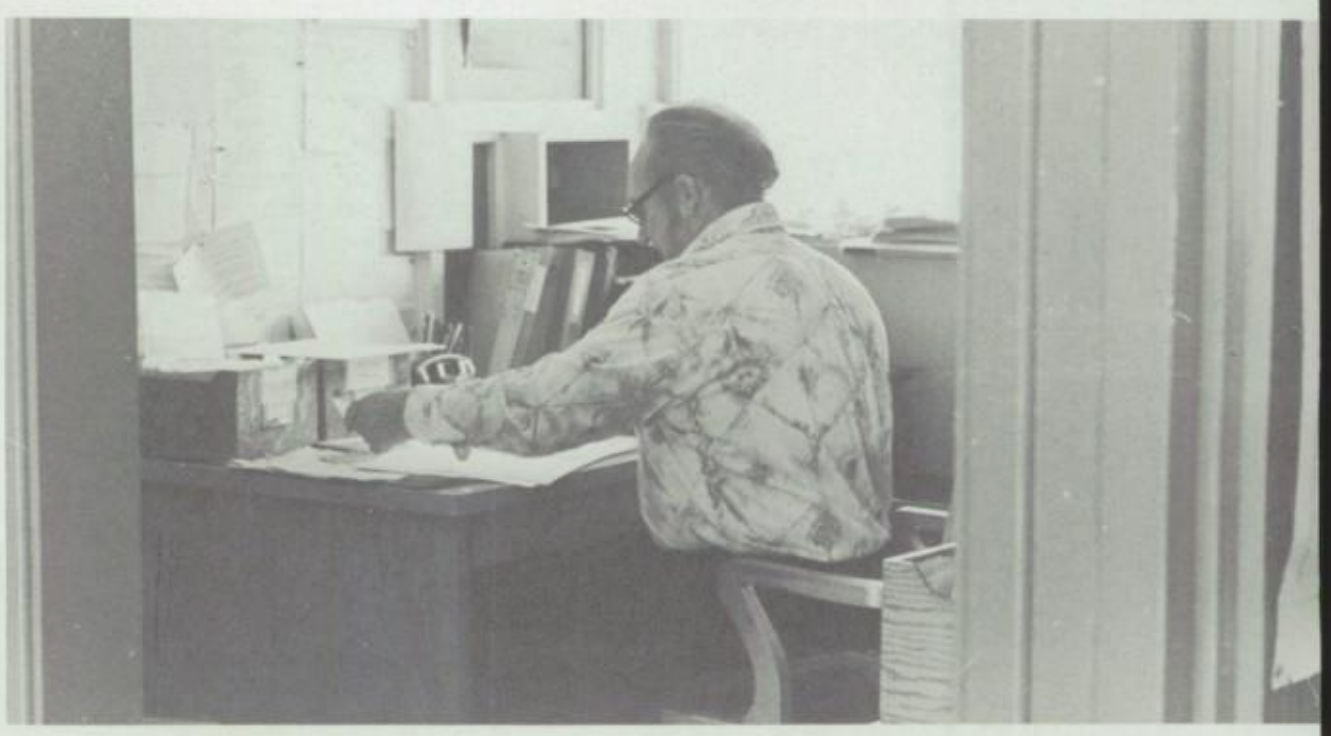
MRS. PALMER CONFERS with a student over his credits and requirements for graduation.

DILIGENTLY WORKING, Mr. Arnold reschedules classes for a student.



Here To Help

Planning a future for oneself is serious business. It is a problem that lends itself to everyone at least once in their lifetime.

Counselors are here to help students with this matter. They helped choose classes geared for the future. Getting good grades was an asset that counselors looked for and encouraged. They advised early graduaters about their requirements. They made sure students had enough credits to meet graduation requirements.

Another job the counselors had was aiding in personal problems. Schoolwork, affected by truancies and bad behavior, concerned counselors. Not all problems were solved, but counselors were there to help as best possible.

Counselors worked hard to see that every student was satisfied in their position. They were available to help in time of need.

BREAKING DURING CLASSES. Mrs. Leslie and Mr. Seal talk over the day's happenings.

QUESTIONING A STATEMENT. Mrs. Bellis and Mrs. Netzel discuss the problem.

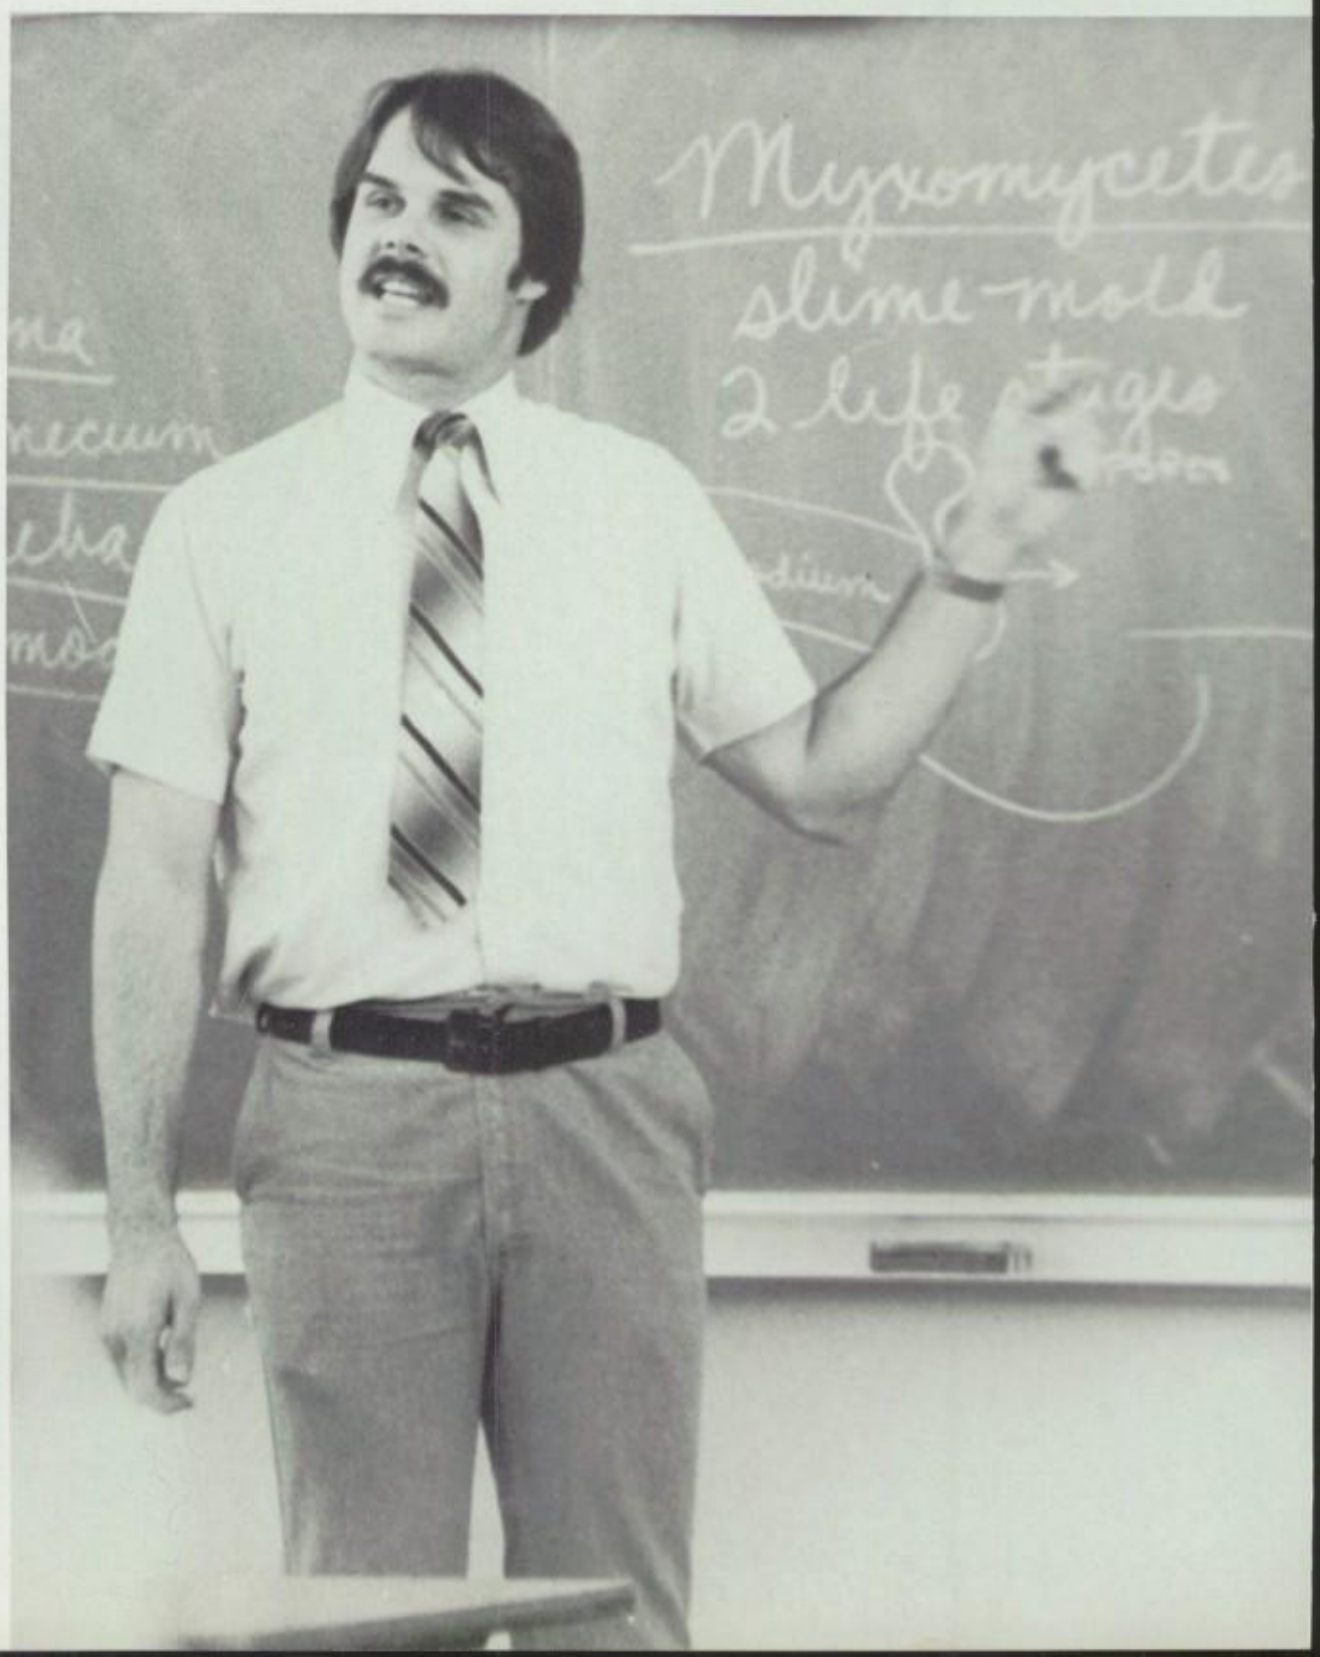
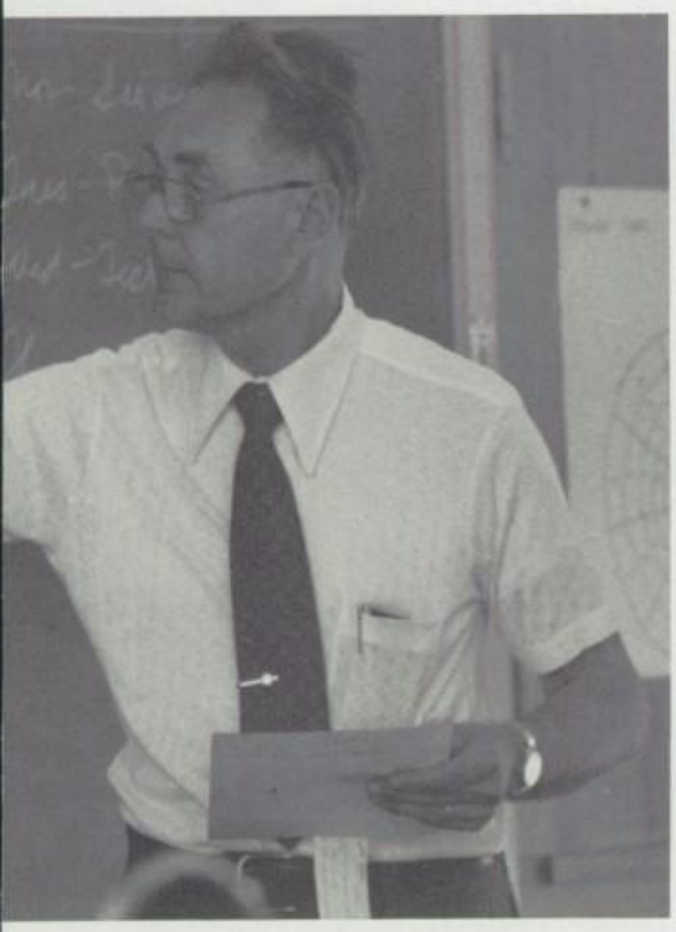
DISCUSSING MYXOMYCETES, Mr. Howard answers questions about the different characteristics.



Science Terms



Being able to think for oneself was a must in any class. Science classes, such as Biology, Chemistry, and Physics, required a little extra work and time to be helpful to a student.

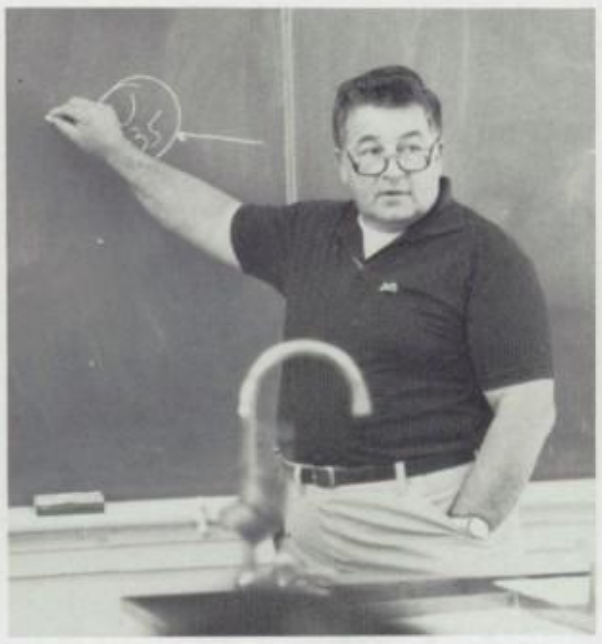
Semester Projects, term papers, and oral reports were just a few of the assignments asked of the students. Labs and discussions were part of everyday classroom activities.

Even though only two years of Science was required to graduate, many students could be found in a science class. Science went hand-in-hand with math classes. Formulas from math could also be used in science.

Science is both beneficial for the student's education and knowledge. You learn a little about yourself in the process.

EXPLAINING ELEMENTAL figures, Doc Shannon shows how to use them in finding proportions.

SEATED IN FRONT of class, Mrs. Slowiczek leads a discussion on cell division.



GLANCING FROM THE BOARD, Mr. Warner listens to a question about Uranium.

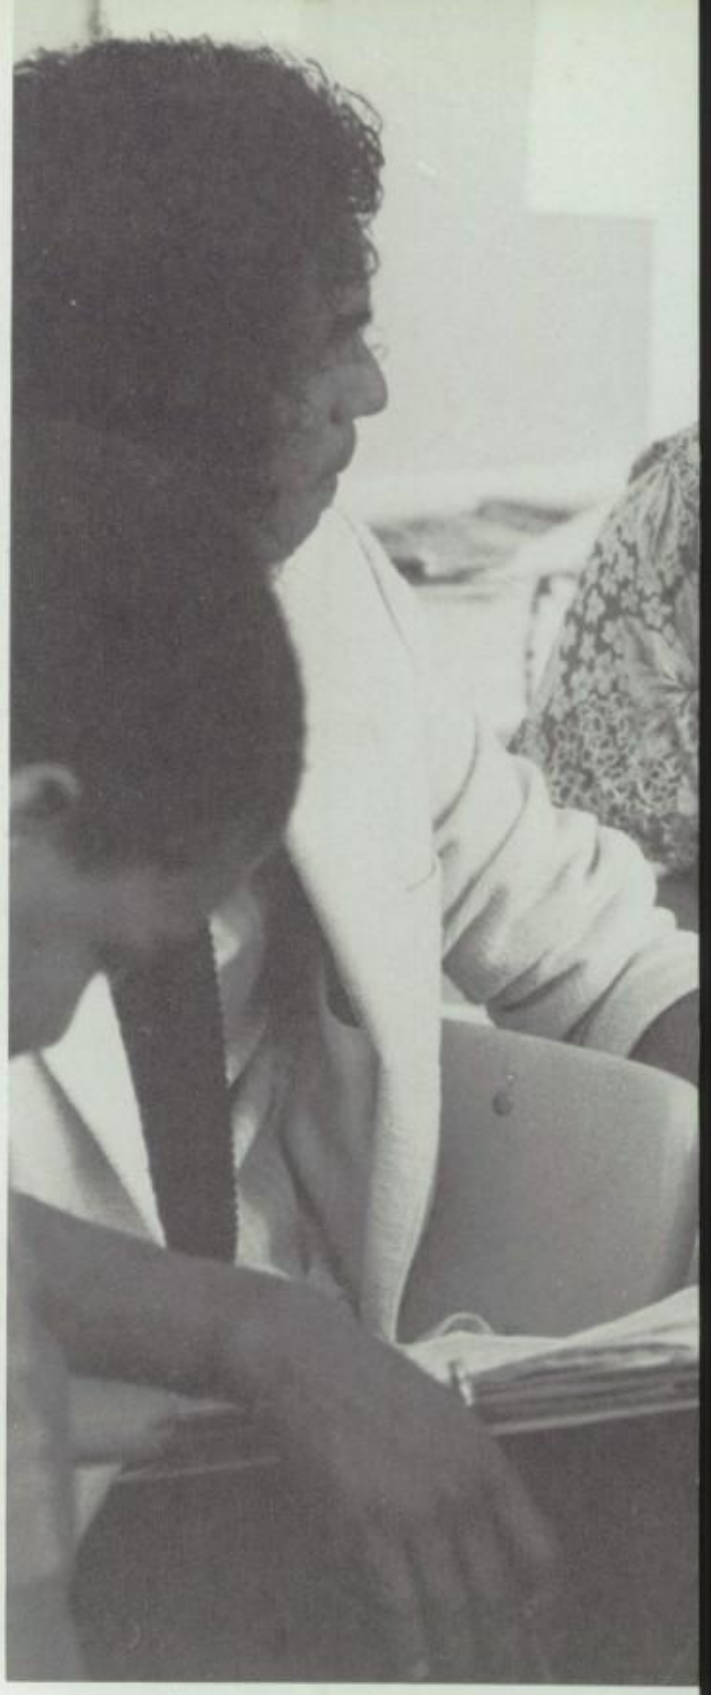
Back In Time

Remember the biggest book you ever carried? It was probably your social studies book. With the required 3 years of Social Studies, almost everyone could be seen with the heavy book.

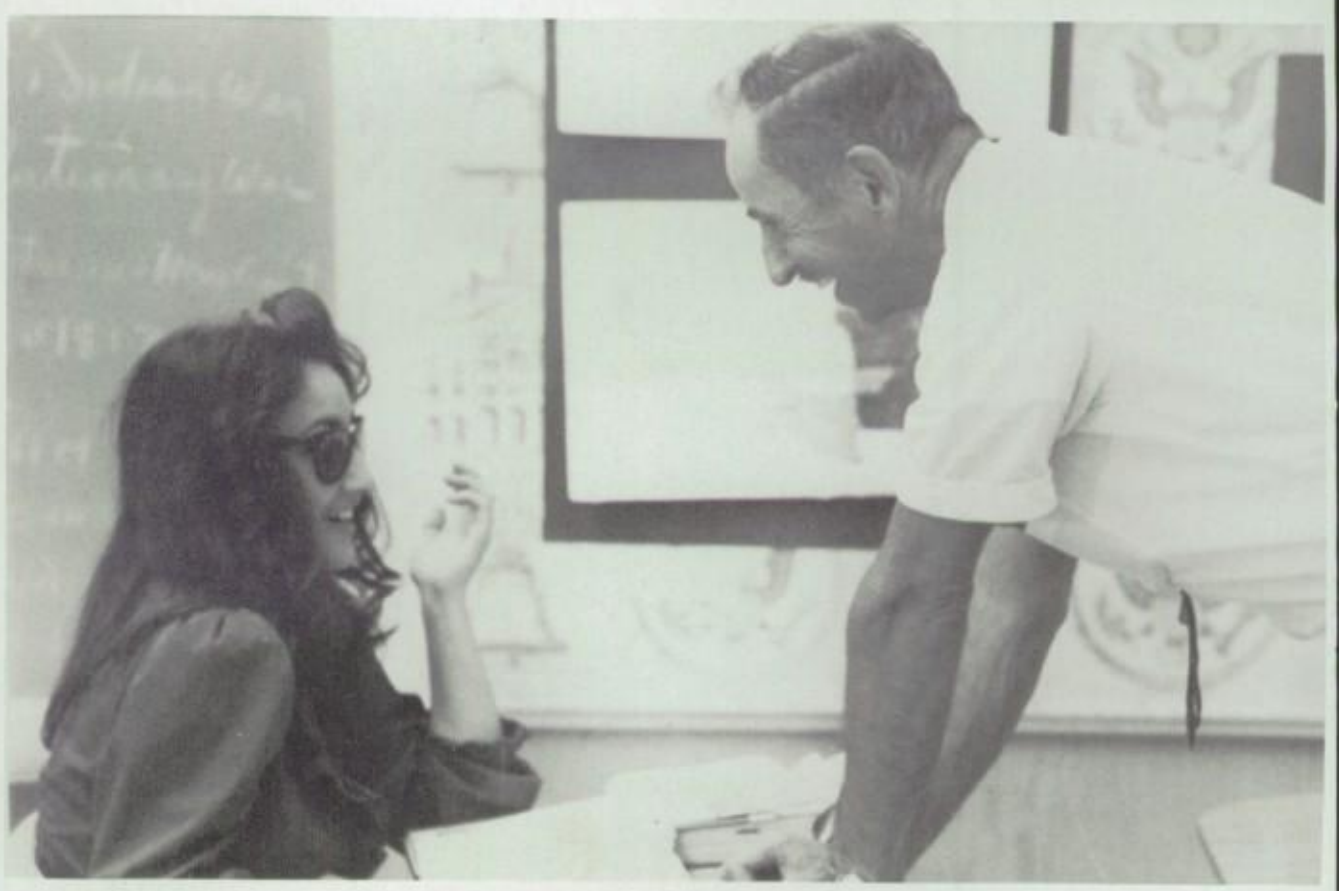
Most teachers spent long hours lecturing about important dates to remember. By the time students left high school, they knew a minimal amount of the past. But besides history, students took psychology, law, economics, and anthropology.

Learning about events and the causes of these events might not seem like it's important, but this knowledge might benefit a student in the future. There are many jobs that require the learning of history, such as historians, lawyers, and teachers.



EMPHASIZING A POINT, Mr. Short talks with Chanti Burks and Brian Smith.

DURING CLASS, Mr. Poulin laughs over a joke with Gina Oliveri.



DISCUSSING DATES, Mr. Norman talks about the causes of the Civil War.

CHECKING OUT A BOOK for English, Elizabeth Biggica makes sure she has the right book.

CONSULTING THE CARD CATALOG, Rosalind Mitchell finds the books she needs to finish a paper.

JOTTING SOME NOTES DOWN, Jenny Egemo finishes homework needed for her next class.

LISTENING TO A QUESTION, Mrs. Crusberg looks for another source for a research paper.

Searching And Researching

A research paper? Due when? These were familiar questions asked by English and Social Studies students. The school library was the first place most of the young writers looked for resources.

The card catalog provided a fast and easy way to find out where to look for a certain book or subject. It also contained information about the vertical files. These were located in a large file cabinet in a corner of the library. In every file there were newspaper articles, pamphlets, and other important resources on different topics. Each topic had at least one folder full of information.

The library also contained many types of magazines, ranging from GLAMOUR to SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN. To keep them under control, a system of checking out books was made for easier access to materials. Older issues were printed on Microfiches, thin sheets of transparent film.

By teaching the students to make use of the research aids, librarians can spend their time running the library more efficiently.

Art We Wonderful?

Enjoying the finer things in life was the hidden objective of a few elective classes. Classes such as Band, Choir, Drama, and Art showed that fine arts could be beneficial to many students.

Music was heard almost daily. The Band could be heard as you sit in class. Choir helped spread spirit by caroling around school before Christmas vacation. The simple sounds of a guitar could be learned in Beginning Guitar.

Drama brought out the inner talents of prospective actors. Learning to be certain characters wasn't easy, but the actors showed off their abilities from the start. Their first play "The Subject was Roses" was a success.

Crafts and Arts needed creativity to make projects. As the clay and paint were worked on, they turned into definite objects.

Nothing could be finer than to finish a task, and get the feeling of accomplishment. These fine arts classes helped get these feelings.

ENTERTAINING the crowd, the Band performs at the Voters Turn Out.

PLAYING THE guitar, Mr. Norman joins the class in finishing the song.

SHOWING THEIR talent, Mary Goldkamp and Michael DeLeon act out a scene from the play "The Subject was Roses."

ROLLING OUT a piece of clay, Elizabeth Contreras prepares to start on her project.

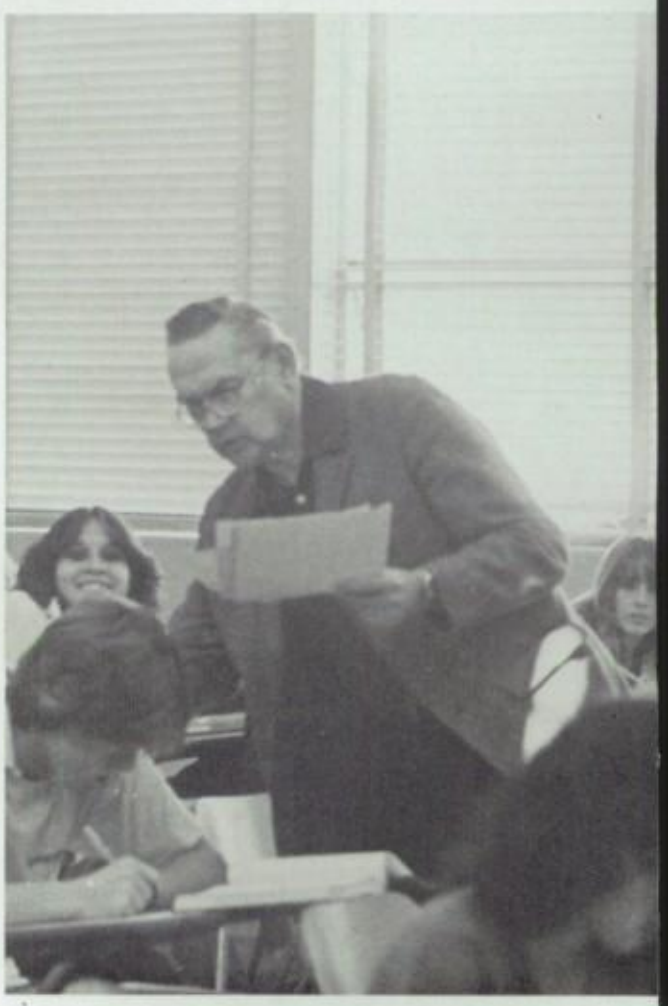
SHOWING THE CONCEPTS OF A TRIANGLE, Mr. Olson leads the discussion about congruent angles.



PASSING BACK TEST PAPERS, Mr. Bergstrom asks if any question needs to be explained.

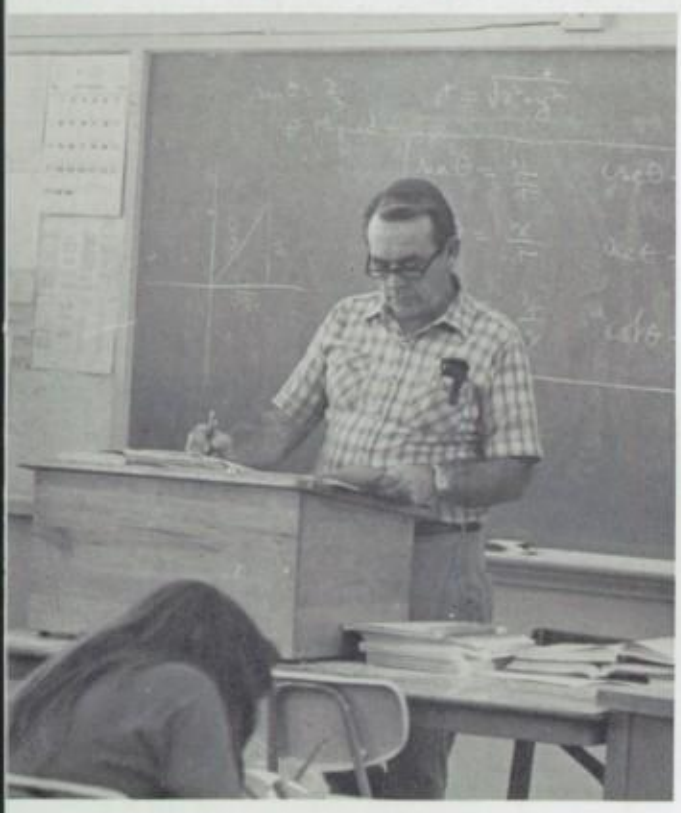
Figuring Sines Of Life

Checking grocery prices, balancing account books, and figuring out mileage use only the basic of math. It is useful in doing most anything, from cooking dinners to building bridges. Math is needed to function in society.

About 10 out of 12 school years were spent in class working out math problems, such as adding and multiplying polynomials, finding sines of a triangle, and calculating the area under a curve. These were only just a few of the problems done.

Math application classes were offered to help students develop basic skills in society. Computer Science was for those who were interested in programming and running a computer. Math for College Entrance, Trigonometry, and Analytic Geometry provided a background for college-bound students.

Math is needed just as much as the language arts and social studies are. At least 2 years of math in high school are required to graduate, and more to enter college. Math is an important subject that is both needed and beneficial for the future.



TAKING TIME TO ANSWER A QUESTION, Mrs. Holley demonstrates the use of a computer for working a math problem.

More Than Just Communication

Communication: Expressing oneself through the use of words. That's what languages are all about.

Various languages can be heard as you pass through the halls. English, Spanish, and German are just a few classes offered at Kearny. Due to lack of enthusiasm however, not many students took advantage of these classes.

GOING OVER HOMEWORK, Mr. Dibos tells Karen Roller why she got the grade that she received.

Some students took a language class because it was required to graduate, while others took languages for granted. There were some students to whom learning English was a struggle. Such classes as E.S.L. and Learning Handicap gave students better opportunities to learn. These classes were designed for students whose native language is not English.

Languages are important to everyone, and can be rewarding and useful in the future.

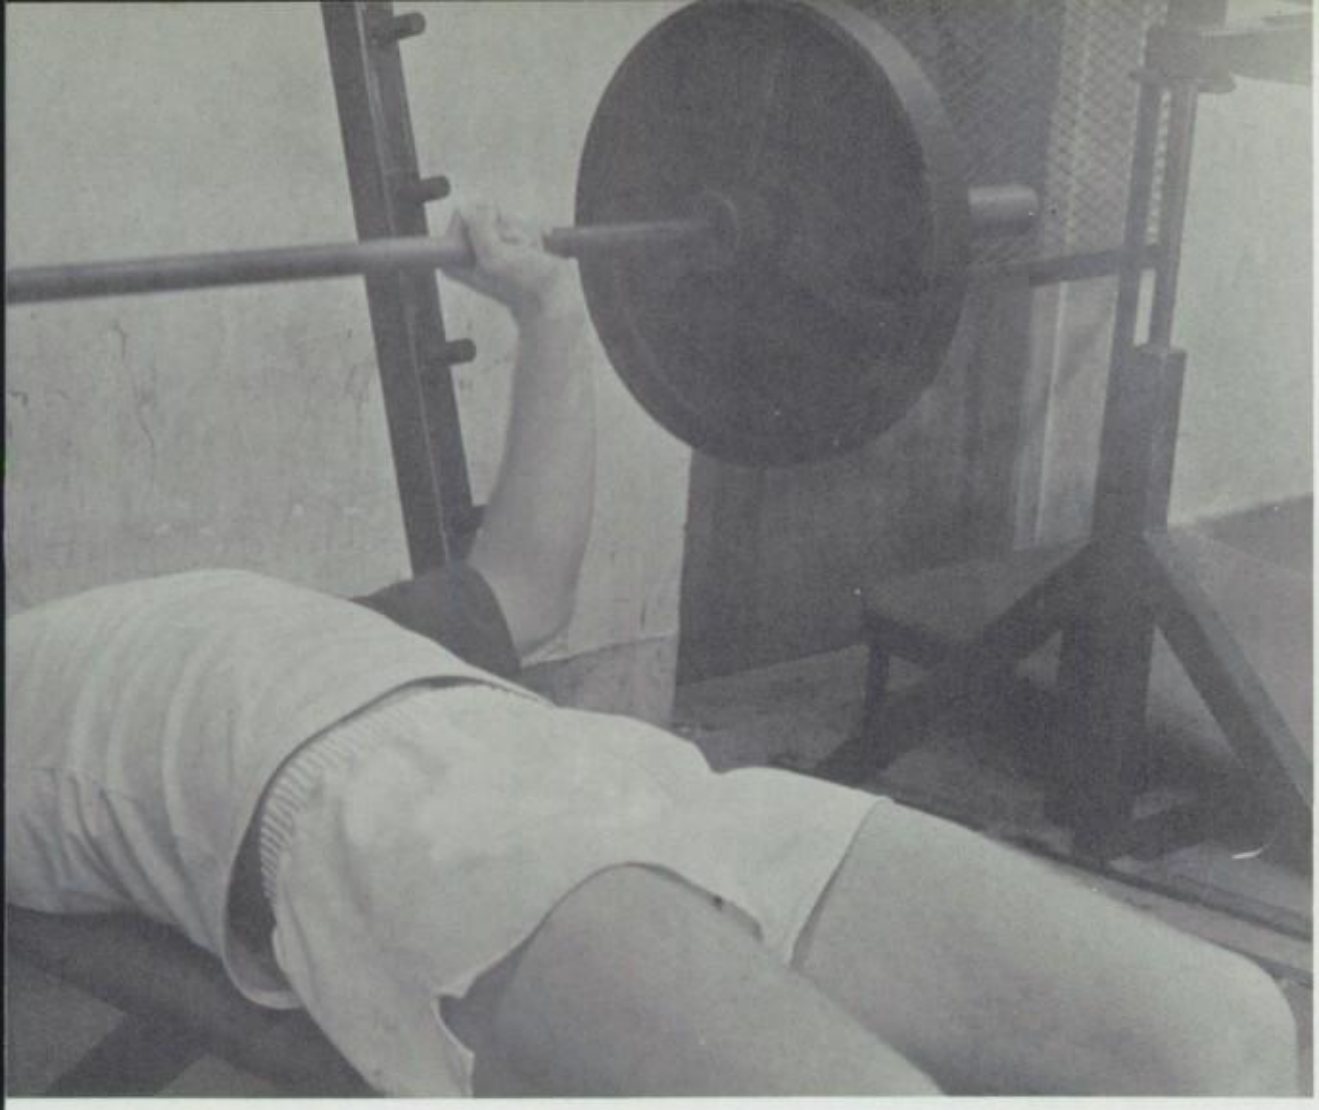
Sporty Break

Again Kearny broke tradition. Seniors for the first time chose whether to take P.E. or take a class in its place. It is now not mandatory, and many Seniors took advantage of this fact.

This left an open period for those who would benefit from another class. Credits could be earned that may be needed to fulfill the graduation requirements. Or classes could be taken that will be helpful for college or the future.

In spite of this change, many Seniors still took P.E. Racquetball, tennis, volleyball, weight training, and archery were just few of the classes offered.

P.E. could be considered a stretch out period from many hours seated at a desk. Students could relax and enjoy their favorite P.E. sport without worrying about turning assignments in.



RETURNING to position, Bonnie Breese prepares to serve to Jack Pearson.

STRETCHING AS far as he can, Brad Strawn swings at the oncoming ball.

Food For The Hungry

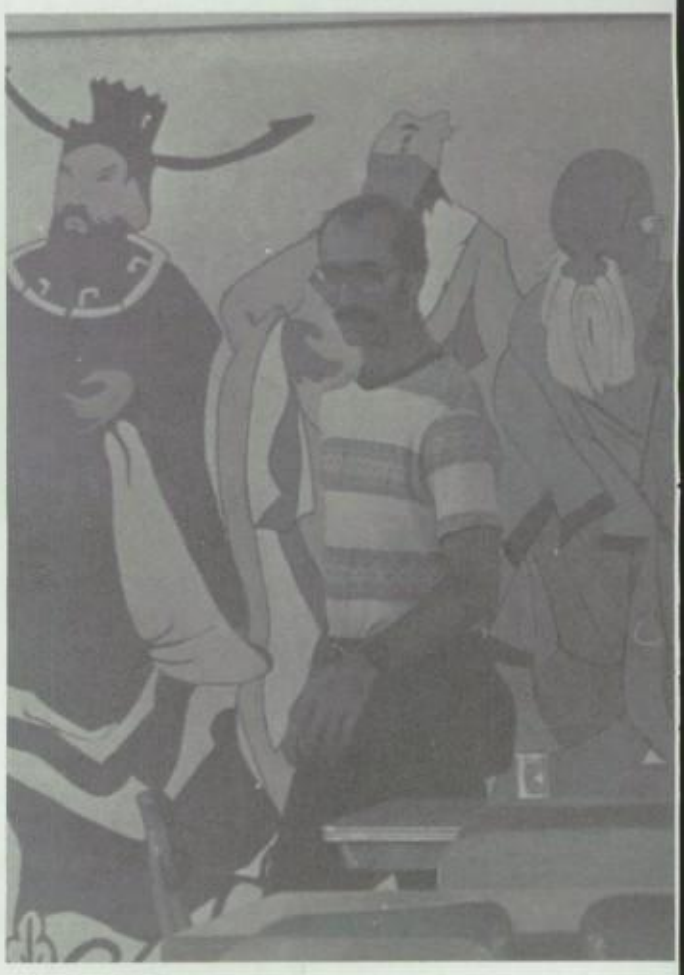
Making food for a team of hungry students was no easy job. The meals had to be balanced and edible. The aroma of lunch drifted out of the kitchen as early as 7:00 and as late as 4:00. The meals were started early for the next day. The cooks not only had to provide lunch, but breakfast also for early risers. There were lunch cards to be handed out the first days of the week. This was the responsibility of the cafeteria workers. Overall, they had a very busy year.

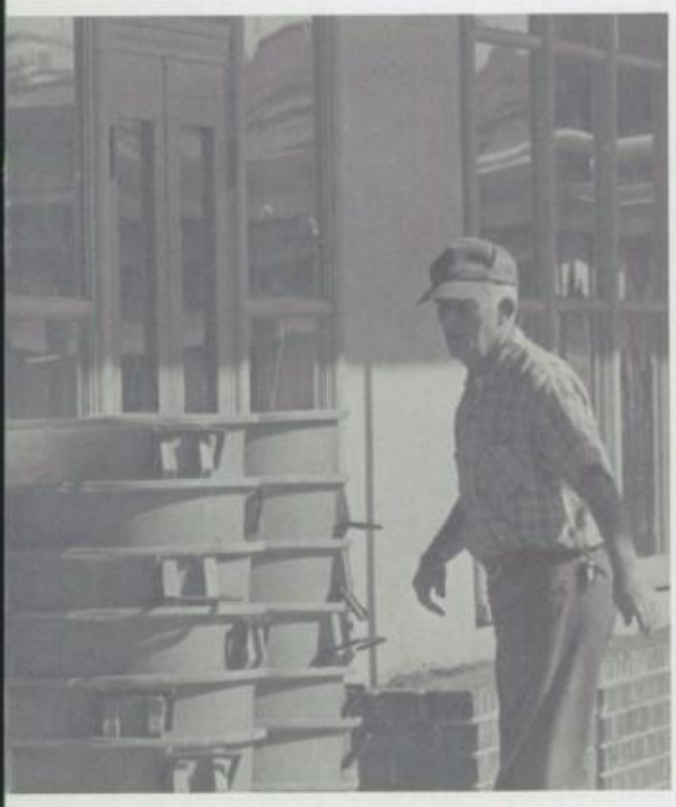
While the cafeteria workers were busy, the custodians were frantic. Students still left their empty wrappings scattered around school, despite pleas from faculty and A.S.B. The custodians were a big help during the week that the Campus Beautiful Committee was checking schools. The Committee awarded the school 29.4 points out of a possible thirty.

FILLING CUPS for teachers is just one of the extra jobs that Lynette Cook did.

TALKING TO Dr. Kirk and Mr. Stofer, Joe Fagg keeps them informed of the school's clean up services.

MOVING THE TABLES, an afternoon custodian cleans up the cafeteria.





CLEANING THE LUNCH AREA, Murray Fogelstrom empties all the trash cans.

AFTER A BUSY LUNCH HOUR, Virginia Doering cleans the dirty dishes.

Seniors

One of the most memorable years in a persons life is their Senior year in High School. It is the end of their thirteen long years of public education and a time where they start to be accepted as real adults in the society.

Many decisions are made by Seniors. Among them are the choice of college and career. For those who chose college, they face yet another four years or more of schooling. For those who choose to go directly into a career, they face rising unemployment and scarcity of jobs.

As the oldest members of the school students the Seniors are designated as the leaders. They are being prepared to be leaders in life.

CONSTRUCTING A MODEL HOUSE for his third year drafting project, Chris Acera takes his time.

We've Come A A Long Way

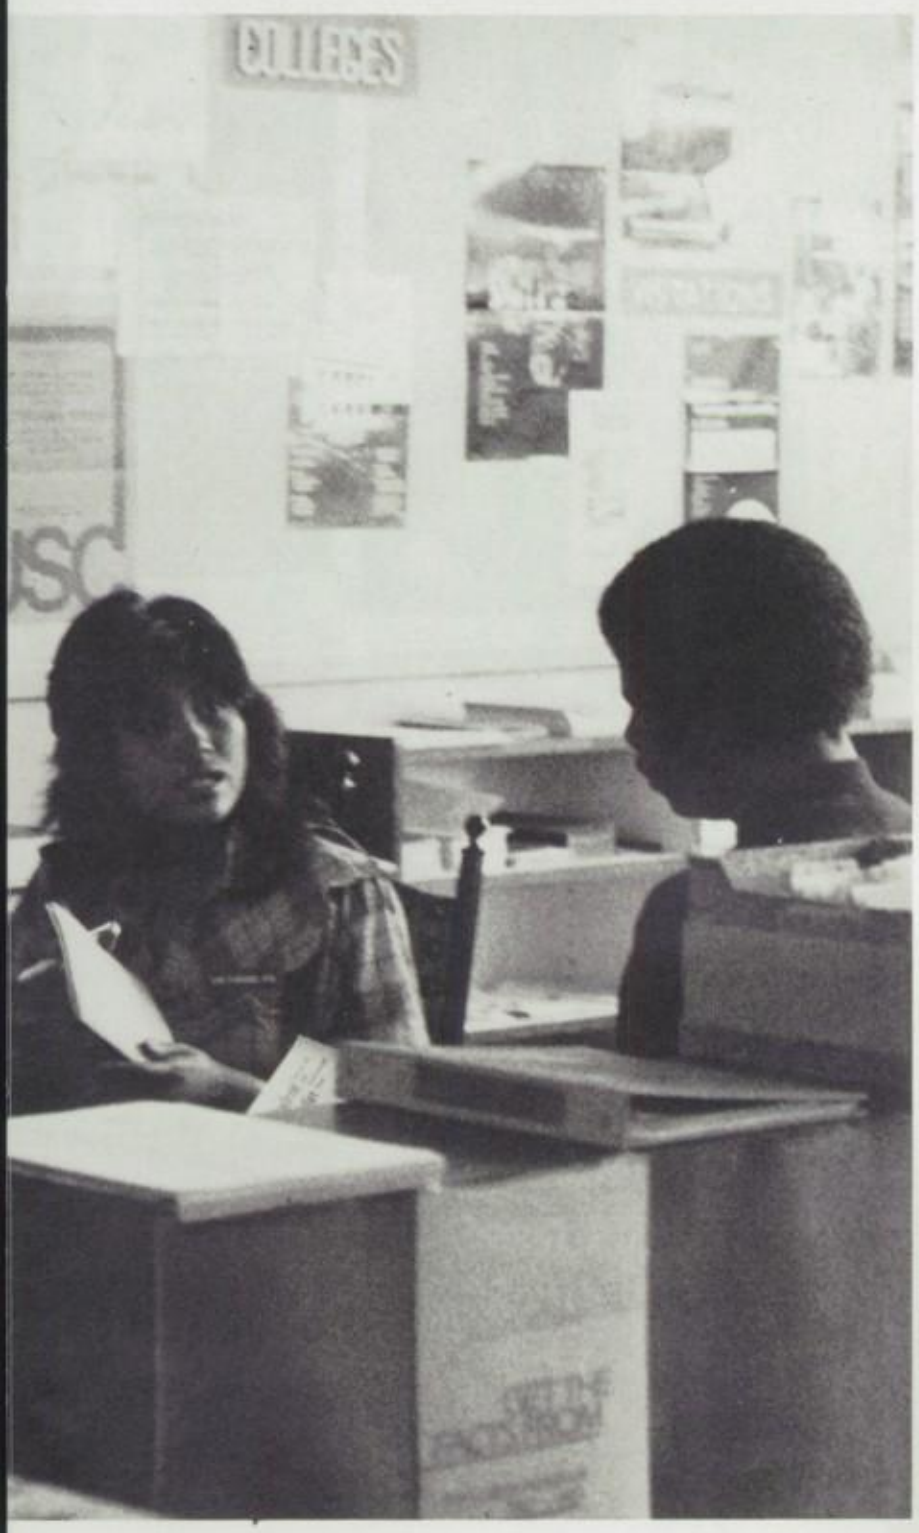
Looking back at the past when they were only little kids in elementary, made seniors realize that they came a long way. Most felt that it seemed like "it was just yesterday". There was no finer way of ending their journey than with a super, fun-filled year. Thanks to the senior class council, this final year was a memorable one for the graduates.

The council was kept busy all year making arrangements for the Prom, Grad Night, the trip to Magic Mountain, and the style of the graduation invitations. Fund-raisers such as the sale of walletizers and candy helped raise enough money to support these special events which awaited the seniors at the closing of the year. There was a shortage of money in the treasury in the beginning of the year, but with the great teamwork of our A.S.B. and senior class, they cleared away the problem and had a terrific year.

LOOKING AT THE SENIOR ANNOUNCEMENT examples, Madeline Bucsit and Rosalind Mitchell choose which is the best of the many selections.

DURING LUNCH, Felmar Mationg gives his sales pitch on the walletizer to Mary Palomino and Betsy Clark.

SENIOR COUNCIL: R. Mitchell, Sec.; C. Young, V.P.; B. Bolden, Treas.; M. Bucsit, Pres.



"Where Do I Go Now?"

Looking hard! Searching for the right college and the best career was something that kept most seniors busy all year. Next to parents, the most concerned and helpful people were the counselors. During the students' entire stay at Kearny the counselors have helped them to pick the right classes to prepare for their futures.

Tests of all sorts were among the demands placed on twelfth graders. Tests included the ACT, SAT, ACH and other college entrance tests. These tests weren't mandatory but were helpful in gaining acceptance to a college.

An annual College and University fair was held at U.C.S.D. and attracted a great number of students. Another helping hand was the Career Center which provided information on colleges and careers.

One thing can definitely be said about many students leaving Kearny, they will be leaving more prepared for life than if these programs didn't exist.

The College and University Fair, held at U.C.S.D., included many local colleges including Point Loma College.

The Career Center was a valuable asset to the campus. Counselors and aides could answer just about any question.

There were so many tests to take and applications to fill out, a student could get extremely confused if they weren't careful.

The Lunch Bunch

How was the half-hour between fourth and fifth period spent? At lunch of course. Lunchtime was a break away from classrooms, books and teachers. A time to relax and be with friends.

School spirit was best shown at lunch with pep rallies, where school cheers were chanted in preparation for a big game. During spirit week, lunchtime events included showing off costumes and class competitions.

Lunchtime gave a chance to catch up on homework, study for a test, or to go to the library and check out a book.

Of course the main activity at lunchtime was eating. Near-by restaurants were packed every day with hungry students. Others either went home or stayed on campus to eat their lunches.

As the end of lunch quickly approaches, students hang out in front of Pippins, a haven for video game and ice cream lovers alike.

How to Get There is The Problem

Upon deciding where to go, there was always the question of how to get there. Traveling by car was an evident answer among students, which could be seen just by looking at our school's filled parking lot. Almost everybody wanted the privilege of driving. It just seemed to be the easiest way to get around despite the bureaucracy of getting a license.

Taking the Health and Safety class was the first step. Then came the learner's permit followed by a series of hectic driving lessons.

Soon students were lured out onto the streets. Their set of wheels took them to school, parties, the beach and anywhere else that they wanted to go. Yes, being able to drive was an advantage, but things were not always perfect. Gasoline prices emptied wallets as well as repair costs.

Those who didn't use a car, still managed to get around by using less costly ways such as a moped, bike, or by foot.

Whatever ways were used to travel, there wasn't much that could stop a fellow Komet from getting around.

One of the cheapest forms of transportation, motorcycles and mopeds were used in abundance as a way to get to school.

"Say Cheese!"

Click! click! click! went the busy cameras at Busco-Nestor Studios all summer long. Throughout the entire summer vacation, fellow Komets took a trip down to the Hillcrest area to have their senior portraits taken. Since 1950, Busco-Nestor Studios has worked closely with Kearny and its annual staff.

The studio supplied materials for the school such as film, paper, and chemicals. They also enlarged pictures for the yearbook.

From time to time, professional photographers came to Kearny to take special shots of the staff, underclass and special activities such as football games and spirit week.

Obviously this yearbook could not have been produced without pictures. We here at Kearny wish to express our gratitude to all the people who work at Busco-Nestor Studios.

Best Buy in Town

The Student Body Shop did many things for Kearny this year. It served as a meeting place for the A.S.B. who accomplished many things for the school. Such as Spirit Week planning and graduation plans. In front of the shop there was a bulletin board where notices were posted to inform students of weekly activities.

Another feature of the Student Body Shop was a small, school oriented store. A great convenience for students, the store sold often needed supplies such as pens, pencils, locks, and folders. In addition to those items the store sold clothes featuring the Komet logo. Such items promoted school spirit and were worn in great amounts at ball games.

The Student Body Shop was a definite asset to the school and made the year good for everyone.

Snacks and stickers were among the fastest selling items, while the more expensive items were worth saving your money for.

Visit Your Future

Portland University representative, Judy O'Neill, discusses financial aid as Troy McLaughlin listens intently.

"What is the tuition at UCSD?" This was one of the many questions that students asked College Representatives. Reps visited from about 30 different colleges and universities. They came from as far as Boston to help college-bound students decide which college would be best for them.

University of San Diego, Loyola Marymount, and UC Irvine were just a few of the colleges that visited. They gave information concerning tuition, majors and requirements.

Most visitations were held in the Career Center. Students signed up and were called in on the visiting day. Usually 3 to 15 students showed up.

For those off-campus visitations, transportation was the "fly in the ointment", according to Ms. Peterson, the Career Center aide. Getting a car or bus to transport students to other campuses was a slight problem.

The College Reps gave answers to many of the students' questions and helped them to make one of the most important decisions of their lives.

High school dances are great fun for everyone. They give students a chance to have a good time and help to finance other school activities.

The money earned from ticket sales, in addition to paying for the band or D.J. that played at the dance, went to the A.S.B. for further use.

School dances were held for many different occasions. The two major dances were Homecoming and the Senior Prom. The Homecoming festivities, filled with pageantry, were climaxed by the nighttime dance.

The last dance of the year was the Prom. It was a very special time for many of the seniors and was the last time to be together with some of their fellow students.

Dances were made to please everyone. They provided different types of music so everybody could enjoy themselves. Despite the lack of attendance at many of the dances they still seemed to have that memorable quality.

Eye catching signs such as this one were seen all over campus before any dance.

The Career Center, A Helping Hand

"How do I apply for college?" This was one of the often asked questions that were answered in the Career Center. Our multi-purposed facility was co-founded in 1972 by Mr. Fred Cheever. It served as a guidance and resource center for both students and staff.

The well-staffed center included Mr. Hurle, the career counselor and Mrs. Stewart the counselor for scholarships and the gifted. The helpful aides in the Career Center were Ms. Peterson and Mr. Kroeing. They were always ready to help anybody who came in.

Seniors became very familiar with the SOAP aides, Rose Gobaton and Craig Cucci. Throughout the year, they helped 12th graders prepare for college. Every day, people came in to study and to find information about colleges, R.O.P., and school activities. The wide variety of resource materials certainly made this possible.

Concerned for the students, Mrs. Peterson calls the bus company to reassure the survival of the afternoon bus.

Survival Course

Not all courses taught in high school are in preparation for college or careers. Many of them are courses designed to teach survival when one lives by themselves.

What courses could they be you ask. Homemaking courses of course. Sewing and cooking classes teach both young men and women skills that will be valuable when they move out on their own into the real world.

The Homemaking program has been at Kearny for many years and even though its classes are electives, some people feel that they are necessary classes to take.

Practicing kitchen skills, Dawn Andrews, Sheila McNelis and Chandra Kilgore prepare themselves for their single lives.

Stuck on Stickers

"Don't follow her end, follow mine!" Many thoughts like this were seen all over Kearny's parking lot, stuck on bumpers.

Bumper stickers let drivers express their opinions and beliefs. This was especially evident during the November elections when VOTE stickers covered bumpers across the nation.

Bumper stickers have always been a popular form of expression and probably never be a thing of the past. They are a very useful method of getting an idea across to people.

Popular movies such as E.T. spawn a whole family of bumper stickers. "I love E.T." or "E.T. phone home" are just a couple of them.

Bumper Stickers are timely, and as fads change from year to year so do the decorations found on the backs of thousands of autos.

Native Californian students express pride in their state by displaying blue and gold stickers resembling license plates.

"Take Two!"

Many questions came up throughout the year. Probably the most often asked question was, "Why were two senior class mob pictures taken?"

On October 6th, the first mob shot was taken. Seniors were to be let out of their fourth period classes at 11:40 to meet out on the upper field for the picture at 11:45.

Many students however, didn't get out to the field on time (for various reasons) and they were not included in the picture. By the request of the Administration, the second picture was taken one week later.

The senior class mob picture is a tradition here at Kearny and this year it was twice as fun as in the past.

Standing proud and looking pretty, Komets pose for the first of two senior class mob pictures.

Time Out!

On Friday, you drag yourself into your sixth period class, and look up at the clock. "Thank goodness . . . one more hour and I'm free!"

From Monday to Friday, hardworking students looked forward to the weekends for rest and relaxation away from all the hustling of busy schoolwork.

Some students spent an entire Saturday or Sunday surfing, water skiing or just laying out in the sun on the beach. Shopping was also a ritual reserved for the weekends. University Towne Center, Plaza Bonita, Fashion Valley and Mission Valley were just a few of the places that shoppers went to.

Eating out, dancing and meeting new people were most common for party-goers. The burden of homework also killed off the weekends for many hard-working students.

Weekends were spent in different ways by different people, but looking forward to those free days was something that all students had in common.

While spending the weekend at the Colorado River, photographer Mike Hull captured this picture of a friend skiing.

The Maroon and White Craze

Spirit was an important part of everyday school activities. Wearing the maroon and white on campus was a real spirit mover and showed our pride and honor in our school. Exciting everybody, pep rallies were an important element arousing Komets.

During Spirit Week the school really went crazy. Despite the unfortunate weather, the students thoroughly enjoyed themselves. Activities such as tourist day, 50's day, and Halloween costume day, were perfect opportunities to be daring in the name of your school.

In the past, school spirit has been lacking on campus. That was not the case this year, and the revival of spirit was a definite plus in making the year fun for all.

At one of the many lunchtime rallies, cheerleaders introduce Matthew Cronkhite and Gloria Espinoza as Mr. and Mrs. School Spirit.

The Future is Now

High school is the time when young adults start preparing for the future. Many students take classes that stress skills needed for their chosen career. Kearny offers such classes as typing, shorthand, computer science and lab sciences. Students also have the chance to take courses at other schools. R.O.P. classes give training for a wide range of occupations, and offer on the job training.

Skills learned in high school are used throughout life. Whether one chooses to go on to college or to leave their education at the high school level, the knowledge that they have gained in school is forever useful.

Working through a typing exercise, Tammy Sanders practices what is a truly irreplaceable skill.

Organizations

A student can really pick out a part for themselves at Kearny. Because there are so many different kinds of clubs and organizations offered.

Organizations can be found all over the campus at all times. Many of them are actual classes such as Choir, A.S.B. and the Galaxy Staff. While others are extracurricular in which students offer their own time to participate in activities.

Whatever a student's interests are, they can certainly be satisfied by joining one of the many clubs here at Kearny.

The Marquee Club, under the watchful eye of Mr. Winans, the advisor, put on plays that were entertaining for the students as well as for the parents.

One of the activities performed by the students included a winter production of the Pulitzer prize winning play The Subject Was Roses. Another was a Supper Theatre spring production entitled Let Us Entertain You.

The Marquee Club was invited to perform a scene from The Subject Was Roses at Occidental University for the High School Theatre Festival in January.

Parts of the Supper Theatre production were performed in front of various junior high school audiences.

Many hours were spent in preparation for these plays. The actors worked hard in making this their best year.

Talking Heads Talk Back

In Glory, the Speech Team continued their romp over the other schools of the county. Even though half of the team were novices, they still placed first at the Problem Solving Speech Tournament on Nuclear Arms.

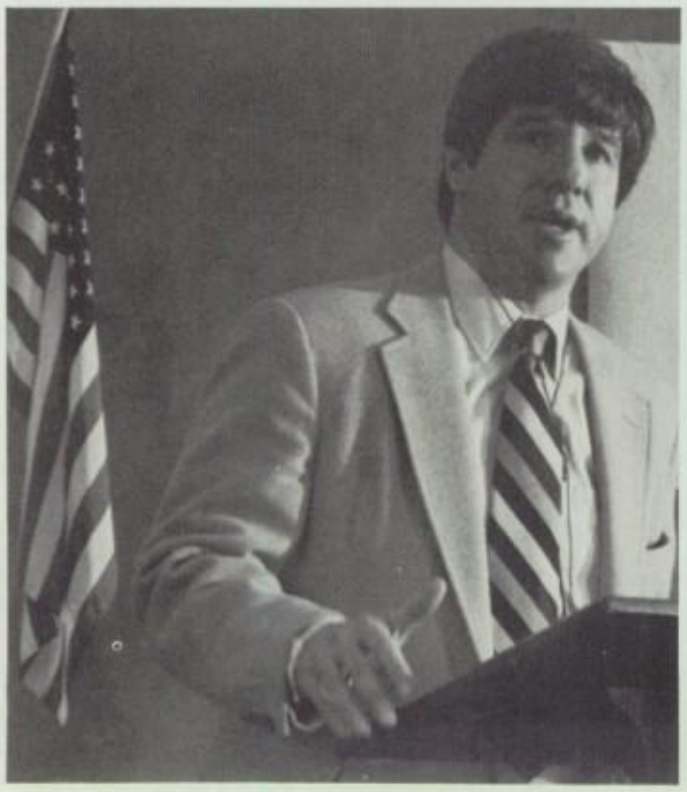
At the invitation of Mrs. Singer, the team's coach, Congressman Bill Lowery visited the speech class to give them some useful tips.

In addition to training long and hard for speech tournaments, the team was involved in several fund-raising drives to be used as scholarships for outstanding speech students.

An experience unique to Kearny was the Reader's Theatre. Traveling around the county, this group of students performed and conducted workshops. Their purpose was simple; to motivate youngsters to increase their reading, writing and oral skills. An additional bonus were the relations that were built up at each performance.

The School District supplied all the necessary tools for R.T. (i.e. revolving stools and music stand) and the students supplied the rest, which is the talent and love to inspire children.

When asked about both groups, Mrs. Singer stated, "The Reader's Theatre troup is the best ever and those enrolled in speech have discovered that although talk is cheap, intelligent talk can really pay off!"



WHILE VISITING THE SPEECH TEAM, Congressman Bill Lowery explains techniques of speaking.

Deadline?

Today?!

Long hours, dedication, and a lot of liquid paper were just some of the things that went into this yearbook. The dedicated staff under editor Scott Dempsey put everything in its place. Their job was simply to make a book of 240 pages by meeting all deadlines, getting everything right and of course staying within a budget.

Under the guidance of Mr. Jones, the advisor, the editors proofread the pages for perfection. Throughout most of the year three inconspicuous photographers, Rudy Manahan, Chris Chapin, and Mike Hull took all sorts of pictures from pep rallies to sporting events. In addition to their long hours of developing and printing in the darkroom. Proofreading and typing copy was mainly the job of Mary Carmona and Anne Pilgrim.

When the year started there were eleven new staff members and many of them found out the hard way just how fast deadlines can approach. In charge of scheduling photos and putting the ad section together was Valerie Hardy, who always helped by having a pleasant attitude.

As they say, "The proof is in the pudding" and you're looking at it.

The Spreading of The News

"I think we have a real good staff this year," said Teresa Lontos, co-editor of the school newspaper, The Galaxy. "We really want to appeal to the students so that they will read the paper," said Mike Gross who shared the editorship of the paper.

The Galaxy contained more creative writing this year and more poetry. There was less emphasis on opinionated articles. Though the staff was not very experienced in the field of journalism at the beginning of the year, they learned quickly and were able to meet their deadlines.

The Galaxy staff with the help of their advisor, Mrs. Broaded made some improvements in the paper's format. Such improvements made the Galaxy a truly informative and enlightening paper.

Crowd Control

We made Varsity Cheer! From the day these spirited girls found they were to be the Varsity Cheerleaders, they diligently spent every day over summer practicing in the morning. As school approached, they practiced twice daily. In August, they spent a week at a NCA camp learning the finer points of cheerleading.

The cheerleaders, Varsity and two Junior Varsity were able to demonstrate how hard they had practiced. In a Voter Turn Out Competition, Sandy Skinner revised a cheer on which they spent many hours rehearsing. With this cheer to influence the voters, they went to Crawford to compete against the Colts and Hoover. They took 1st place in their division. The final competition was against all division winners with winner-take-all stakes. Our girls' efforts went towards $10,000 for our school. Head Varsity cheerleader Debbie Waggoner said "We didn't win that one, but we had a lot of fun. Hopefully winners next year." Varsity and Junior Varsity Cheerleaders consisted of 13 cheerleaders and 2 mascots.

Raising Spirits

Inspiring football players to do well in their games was the job of a group of girls called the Secret Pals. They accomplished their job by supporting them with Thursday lunches and other events.

In charge of Secret Pals was Lynn Sarmiento who said, "(It) keeps players wondering who their 'pal' is. They have something to look forward to every Thursday and at the end of the season when they finally meet their secret pal."

The Secret Pals held many fund raising events to finance their organization. Some of the events were selling Halloween messages and two-year daily planners.

The Secret Pals didn't have enough members to match with all of the players but the devotion of all the Secret Pals was appreciated by all involved.

JV PLAYER, Jay Edward receives his lunch. The Secret Pals included as many JV'ers as they could.

Marching To Victory

Participating in the Old Town Parade set the Marching Band and the Girls Dance and Drill Team onto a good start. Competing against five other schools, the Marching Band captured a first place trophy.

In charge of training the Marching Band was Drum Major Rudy Manahan. They practiced every morning in preparation for up-coming parades and tournaments, as well as for school games and activities.

Mr. Norman, their advisor, guided and helped prepare the 59 members of the Marching Band.

The Band participated in many parades such as the Mother Goose, P.B. Christmas, St. Patrick's Day, Carson City, and the Alta Dena Parade.

Accompanying the Marching Band in many of its activities was the Girls Dance and Drill Team. Leading the group of 16 spirited girls was Margaret Pino, their colonel, and two captains, Michelle and Darcy Stevens. The group performed at school games, in addition to many different parades.

Assisting and training them was their advisor Ms. Rico.

ON TO VICTORY, the Band prepares to march for the Old Town Christmas Parade in which they placed first.

Singing Up A Storm

The A Capella Choir consisted of students who were highly motivated and talented. Led by Mr. Norman, the Choir accomplished many successful concerts and performances.

They performed at two festivals, one of which was at Garden Grove for the State Festival. The 50's and 60's came alive with the Choir's rendition of the music of that era.

One of the highlights of the year was the Spring Concert. Unfortunately, the Winter Concert was canceled due to the illnesses in the choir.

Other concerts and activities included Christmas caroling, visiting Mercy Hospital, and making a Homecoming float.

JROTC Keeps In Line

"Building character and responsibilities is the main goal for JROTC," said Cdt. Capt. Joseph Cagle, who is also the Battalion Commander. JROTC offered many extra-curricular activities to its cadets such as a rifle team, a softball team, a drum and cymbal corps, and fancy drill teams.

An Annual Formal Inspection was held in December, in which each member of JROTC was required to participate in. For the AFI, military inspectors from the United States Army came to inspect the performance of the cadets.

The JROTC fancy drill teams gave various performances throughout the year, such as in the Old Town Parade, Homecoming, and at U.S.I.U. During Easter vacation, many students went to Camp Pendleton to participate in a miniature boot camp. Another highlight for JROTC was its formal Military Ball held at the Scottish Rite Temple.

JROTC was more than what civilian students believed it to be. It benefited the cadets in many ways and prepared them for a promising future.

Taking Care Of Business

Working on many projects to improve the school, as well as student life, the A.S.B. demonstrated their capabilities and determination. They accomplished a gain in attendance at dances, sporting events, and other school activities.

Fund-raisers were successful in helping the school. The Alumni Basketball game, Christmas pictures with Santa and candy sales were just some of the many profitable activities that the A.S.B. sponsored.

Said President Jon Shigley, "The A.S.B. is a close-knit family and has achieved in everything attempted this year."

Trying Education

Two groups that promote student participation and education are the Mock Trial team and C.S.F.

The Mock Trial team went into competition against several other area high schools. The competition consisted of each school presenting themselves as the defense or prosecution teams in a court case. They made up their own strategies and lines of questioning. After four rounds, the competition ended with Kearny being edged out of first place by three points. The team, made up of students from Mr. Short's Law and American Government classes, were interested in the workings of law.

C.S.F. is a state organization promoting scholarship and service among high school students. Eligibility for membership is based upon grades earned each semester, and membership allows competition for scholarships to colleges and universities.

As a club on campus, C.S.F. also holds a number of annual fundraisers and helps out at school functions, in addition to the regular meetings.

Can You Relate?

Dedicated to making the school a better place was a class called Peer Counseling. When new students registered at Kearny, the Peer Counselors introduced them to their classes and tried to make them feel welcome at school.

During the year, the counselors went into classrooms and ran Human/Race Relations exercises to help with student to student relations and student to teacher relations on campus. The exercises were designed to bring about self-awareness to our campus community and to help create a more pleasant atmosphere between students and staff.

An event that the Peer Counselors were involved in was the Youth Conference for San Diego City High Schools which was put on and sponsored by Kearny Peer Counselors.

Overall the Peer Counselors have been very successful in the Human/Race Relations Department.

Laurie, well mija I finally made it! I'm so glad we had a chance to become good friends, you made my life a bit funner. I've enjoyed partying with you even though we had our ups and downs but like they say what are true friends if there ain't ups and downs. I hope we become closer friends cause your a real sweet person to have a friend ship with. Remeber all the fun times we had together, drinking, parcing and all the other crazy things we did together. Don't forget camp even though we didn't talk much to each other but like I said we had a couple down days. I hope we can forget all about those down days and look ahead and hope for up days, but most of all hope our friendship grows stronger in the future. I really hope we can party and cruise in our low rider Remeber my car is your car and your car is my car. HA! HA! Laurie I want you to take the right steps in life and don't look back at others. Because if you do you will find yourself in lots of trouble. And I wish you all the luck in the world. But most of all I hope you, I mean I really hope you accomplish what you want out of life. Good luck with you and manuel. and as for you don't let that good thing go, you have to hold on strong. I know your saying to yourself this chic ain't got no room to talk but remeber I went through hell to get out of this school. So you better takes someone advise. Well mija one more year for you and I hope to see you in your cap and gown. I want you to know that I cherish you as my sister so if you have any problems you be sure to tell me. I want to thank you for all the times you helped me and I'll be sure to tell you mine. Well what more can I write when I say your face everyday. take care

Sports

Sports here at Kearny are very wide spread. Many students participate and others have at least gone to an event or game.

When one tries out for a sport, they usually find out that if they devote many hours of hard practice, they will improve themselves. Those people who aren't that dedicated fall behind and end up dropping out.

Students who participate in sports gain many things. They gain an attitude of sportsmanship, physical fitness, possibly a Varsity or J.V. letter and a sense of belonging and importance.

Sports plays quite a role in today's society and it all can start in High School.

STARTING UP THE FIELD, Ron Osbourne begins what will turn into an eighty yard romp up the field ending in a touchdown.

EXTENDING AS FAR AS SHE CAN, Diane Pearson reaches for the birdie in a match against Claremont.

Komet Power Drives On

A lesson can be taken from the Varsity Football Team. Even though winning may seem very important, the drive and ambition that it takes to just play, makes everybody a winner.

Starting off the season with a win over Bonita Vista 21-0, the Komets were off running. They played well against Torrey Pines and Sweetwater, but major fumbles cost them both games. The Komets weren't going to give up so easily. They came back with two wins. The first over Serra 13-7, the second over Patrick Henry 15-14. This was the second consecutive year that the team has beaten the mighty patriots.

The game against Madison had the team hoping for a spot in the play-offs. But unable to come away with a win they were left stranded. It was a well played game but Madison won 15-0.

The new quarterback, Troy McLaughlin, who entered the season as the county's number one passer, and wide receiver Tony Griffin led the team through a well played season. When asked about the team, head Coach Tom Barnett said, "It's a good group, a good team."

DEFENDER JOHNNY HOPER tries but fails to stop Brian McKenzie from receiving a perfectly thrown pass.

CATCHING A SCREEN PASS, Senior Charles Gilmore gains another five yards.

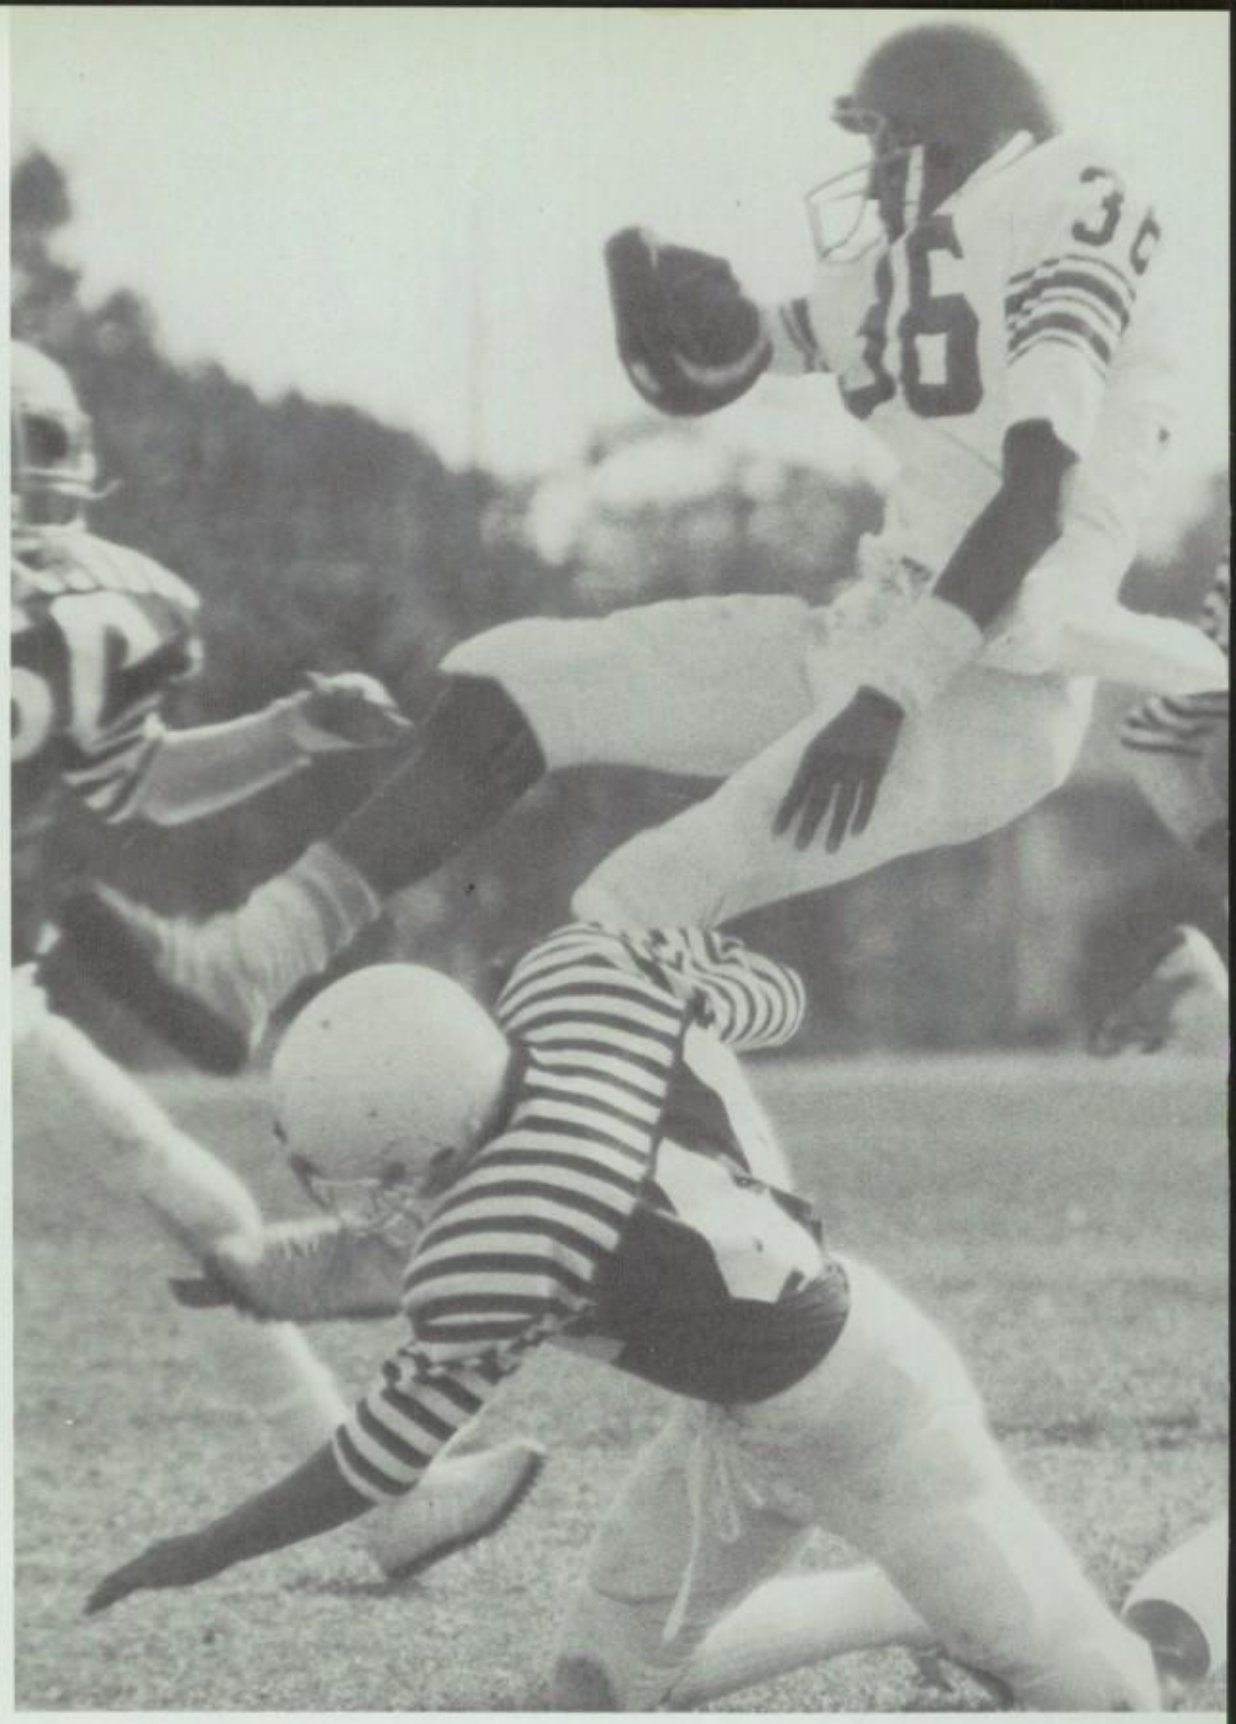
DEFENSE IS THE KEY as Eric Epenesa stops Patrick Henry's quarterback Kevin Eiselman from getting the ball off.

Grid Iron Grizzlies

After a grueling Spring practice, the J.V. football team came together under the new head coach Marvin Warner. It looked as if they could have had a great season when coach Warner had to leave the team due to a schedule conflict. To the rescue came back Tom Flemming who had been the coach for many years.

As the first week of school came so too did the first game against the tough Bonita Vista team. With a strong defense and one good offensive drive, the Komets were able to score on a one yard run by Thomas Abeyeta to win the game 6-0. In their next game against Torrey Pines the ill-prepared Komets fell to the Falcon's 24-16. Game after game seemed to slip from the hands of the team. Many due to just plain bad luck.

The coaching staff headed by Tom Flemming, defensive coach Ray Beatty and ofensive coordinator Brad Matear have put together a good team for next season.



TRIPPED UP BY Pete Sgourdimous a Serra receiver is denied a first down.

MAKING A MIRACULOUS CATCH, the Komets threaten to score.

SACKED BY KOMETS, Patrick Henry's Quarterback feels the pressure and loses yardage.

DEFLECTING A PASS, Roderick Dillard helps the team hold the opposing offense on third down.

Close But . . .

Sharing the Eastern League title with the tough Warhawks of Madison, the girls volleyball team failed to succeed in the C.I.F. playoffs.

Led by junior Liz Ugaitafa and her sister Lagi, the setting and hitting was awesome. Coach Dahms was very proud of her girls as they raised their league record to five wins and two losses.

Traveling to Madison for the final games of the regular season, the Komets proved to be no match for the fired up Warhawks as they were swept over two games to none. The only two losses of the season.

Next year should prove to be interesting. There will only be three returning players.

The Junior Varsity had a fine season as well. The team consisted mainly of sophomores. They did a very good job under their new coach Lynn Burmeister. The M.V.P. award was given to Lucy Rydelski, one of the top spikers and co-captain of the J.V. team.

On The Road Again

Beating the defending C.I.F. champions Santana, the Cross Country team took off to a good start. Joe Manuel came in first and Pat Castro and Luis Leon came in second and third.

There were finishes of all sorts when the Komets faced other teams. Coach Griswold projected a tight meet against Patrick Henry who won 30-28. Rival team Madison fell to the Komets 12-34, but on the same day Mira Mesa defeated the team 40-19. Close meets came down to the last man, such as the meet against Hoover in which Kearny won.

Coach Griswold commented that a 1-2-4 finish against Henry would've put the team in second place overall, but he was content to finish third just as they did last year.

The Girls were led by Vicky Burgess and Betsy Clark, who had some of their best times this year.

A BAY RUNNING PAIR, Luis Leon and Pat Castro take second and third place to win the meet against Crawford and Santana.

A Chance With Janc

The girls' tennis team saw a change of command in 1982. Due to the heavy schedule of Coach Addona, she was unable to resume her traditional position. The team looked toward Coach Janc, the boys' tennis coach, for the leadership and guidance which Coach Addona had been able to dedicate in years past.

The season was considered a rebuilding season as a result of losing its top seven players the year before. The team's 7-9 record and third place finish in the Eastern League reflect the spirit and effort the girls gave to the team.

A few standouts on the team included Missy Darnell, the number one singles player, and Jennifer Gerrard and Debbie Infantino, the top doubles team. Coach Janc looks into the teams future with optimism.

All You Need Are Fins

All but eliminated by the axe of budget cuts, the water polo team survived due to funds raised by the players to rent a pool. For the first time in the school's history, the Clairmont pool was used rather than the Kearny pool.

The team was coach by Mrs. Kohr and assistant coach Royal Nelson, a former Komet goalie. Although late in starting the season, the team progressed and ended with a big win, as they defeated Patrick Henry 8-7. The win was the result of goals scored by Mike Kovacs, Mike Green and James Zamora with four, two and one goals respectively, not to mention teamwork from all of the players.

The outstanding players were returning seniors, Captain Mike Kovacs, Mike Green and Jeff Geil. Junior standouts were David Young and Raul Castillo who was voted to be the most improved. Sophomore Dean Zamora was given the coaches inspirational award.

Commented Mrs. Kohr, "I would like to praise these young men for their ability to overcome adversity and for being socially mature enough to stay with their sport through victory and defeat. In our society, success is measured by your win and loss record, however clean competition and fellowship are rewards which can never be gained, created or purchased for the price of the material rewarded for winning. Success means meeting failure without being discouraged and then doing all you can to improve yourself to achieve your goal."

The Bird Watchers

Displaying their abilities were the co-ed players of the badminton team. Former teams lacked experience, but with returning players and incoming sophomores, the team made up for this. The team finished at 7-7. Returning players, Leslie Martin, Rob Jennison, Diana Withrow, and Carmen Munnelly, helped the team with their knowledge and experience. The untiring perseverance of the Indo-Chinese carried the team a long way.

Though co-ed, the team was short on players. Team effort made up for this shortage. With big wins over Clairemont, Lincoln, Mission Bay and rival Madison, the team past all expectations. Coach McMillan commented that, "this was something of a promising year. Every year, they get bigger and better with more talent."

Badminton isn't the most popular sport, but it still requires team effort to strive and reach that goal of being on top. The team fell short of CIF, but still had an exceptional season.

Stickers Strive On

Question: What is a game played on a grass field between two teams of 11 players each, with the object being to make a goal? Answer: Field Hockey! With Third year players Michele Segal, Judy Mansfield, and Sharon Mayer plus 2nd year players Leslie Martin and Jennifer Gerrard, the team had much experience.

Both Jennifer Gerrard and Judy Mansfield shared being co-captains and showed that they could pull their weight. New members such as Sylvia Perez and Cecilia Yung were eager and ready to learn.

Practice, dedication, and team spirit led the team to a season of close games. The team however was not made up of all seniors. Juniors such as Diane Raimondo, Irene Kimbrough, Erin Rooney, Debbie Russ, Joanne Skinner, and goalie Bernadette Santos contributed greatly. "It takes the entire team's effort to win," said Coach Douglas.

Taking it to the Hoop

As the season began, Varsity Basketball coach Bill Peterson stated, "We should be better than we were last year but we may not win as many games. It all depends on how dedicated the players are because our league is awesome."

The team had better overall height this year with 6'7" David Williams transfering from Mt. Carmel. Eric Epenesa at 6'3" and Lionel DeMorst also at 6'3" manned the forward positions while 6'2" Shawn Hicks, who made all league, and 6' Troy McLaughlin, played the guard spots. Top reserves for the team were Troy Griffin, Paul Warren and Mike Kovacs.

True to Coach "Pete's" prediction, the Komets beat some top ten teams; Hoover, Pt. Loma, and Monte Vista, but in the long run, they lost more than they won and finished the season with a 9-13 record. Shawn Hicks and Eric Epenesa led the team in scoring with both of them averaging a little over 13 points per game. David Williams was the leading rebounder and Troy McLaughlin recorded the most assists. Lionel De Morst and Russell Hutchinson were the best Komet defenders.

LOOKING FOR AN OPEN MAN, Russel Hutchinson sneaks a peek behind him at Troy McLaughlin.

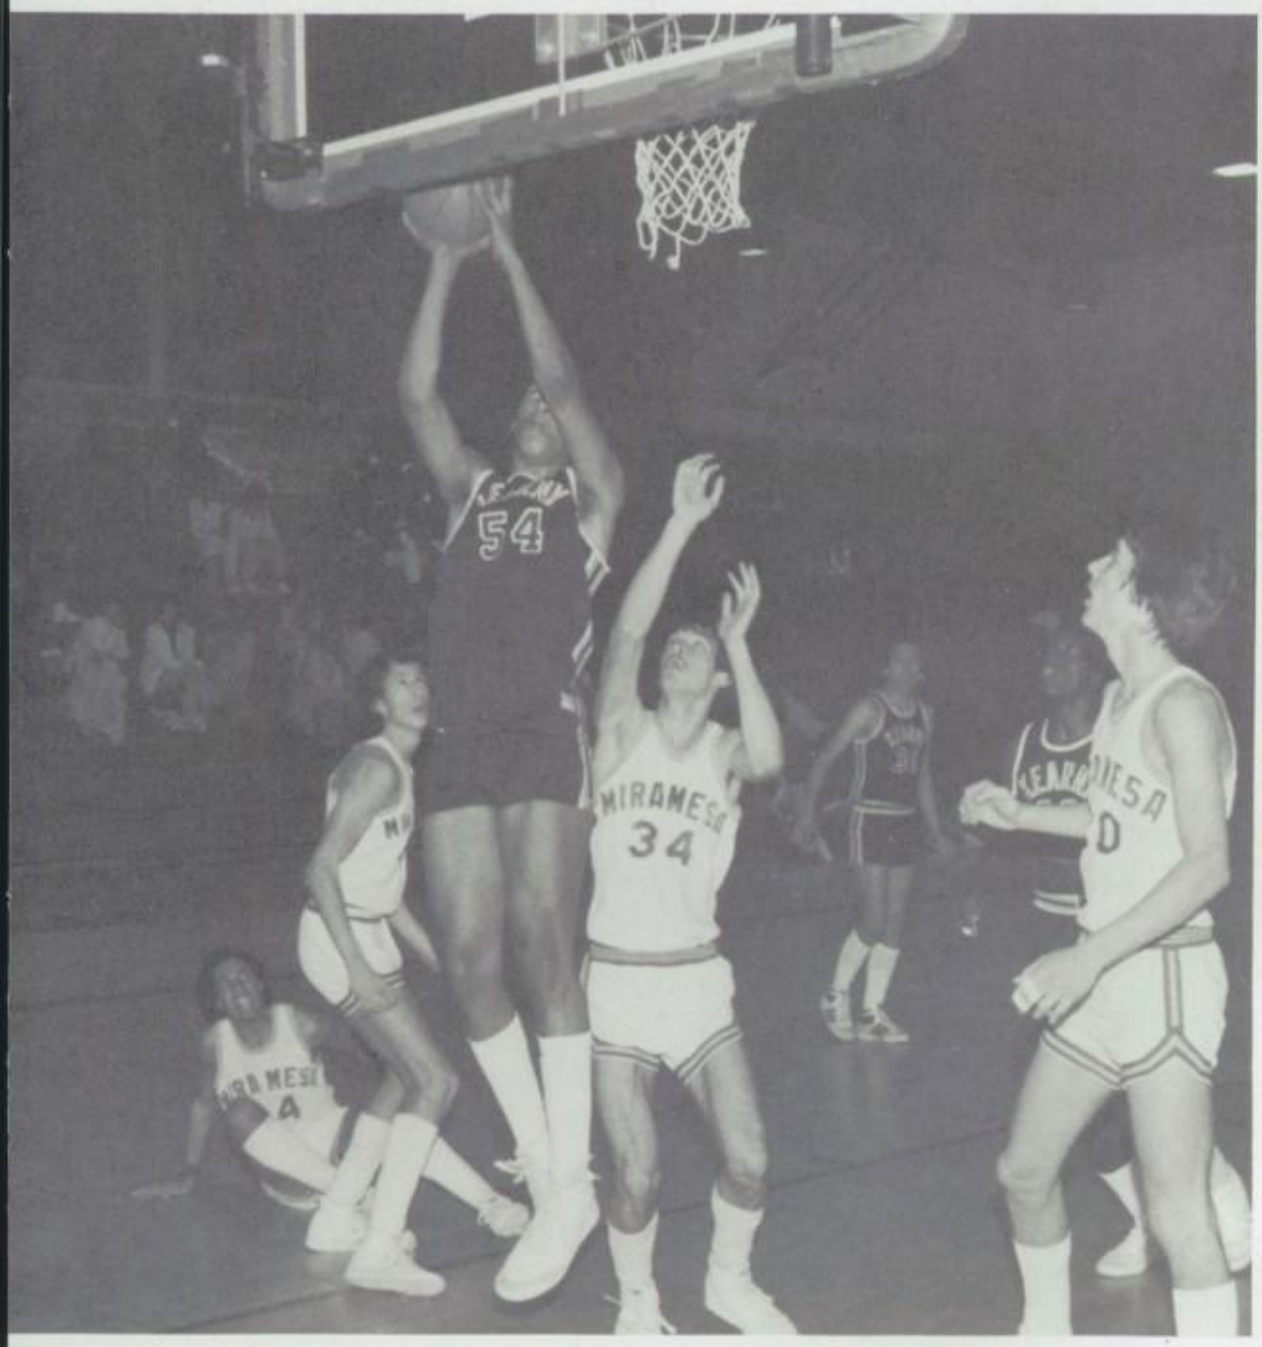
EXTENDING FULLY TO THE NET, Shawn Hicks stuns Morse with a fast lay-up.



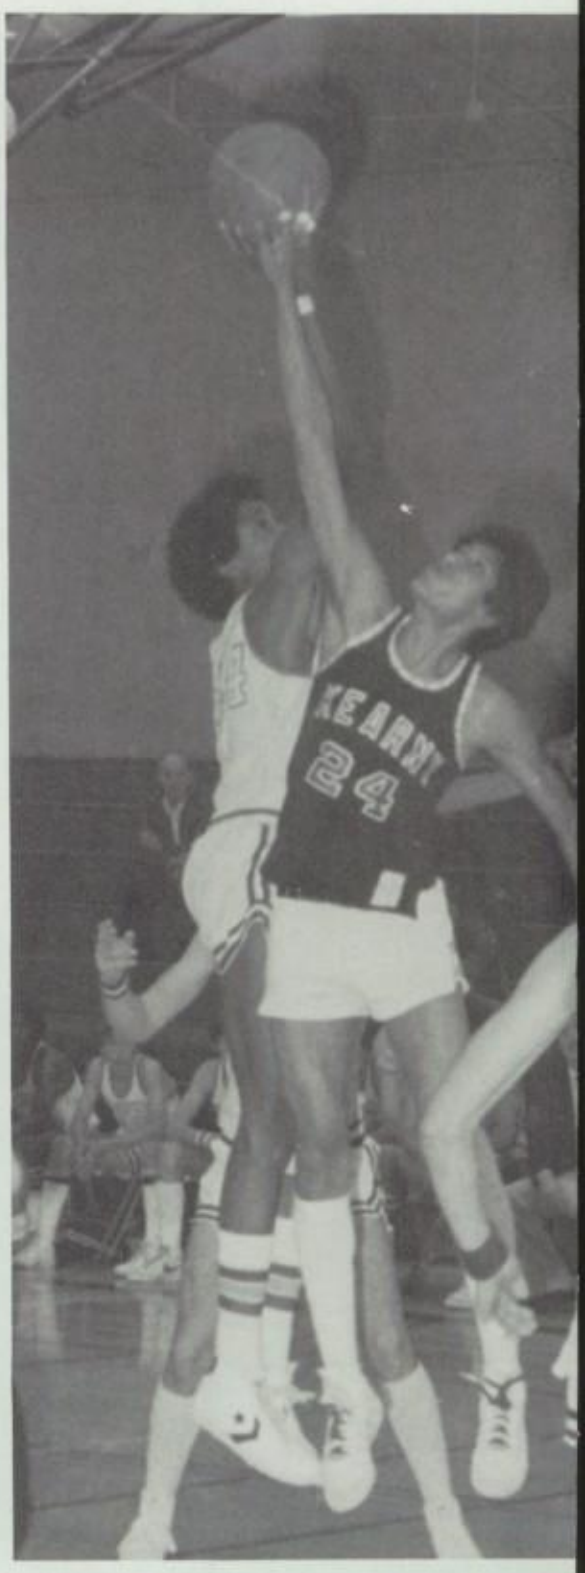
WEEDING THROUGH THE MIRA MESA DEFENDERS, Dave Williams goes up for an easy two points.

Hoopla: A new Meaning

The J.V. basketball team had a highly successful year finishing at 15-3. As a group they were very intelligent, hard working, and unselfish. The team was led by Carl Jarmon, Pat Castro and Brad Milhoan in the scoring department. Gus Pimentel commanded the boards with help from Lionel De Morst. Marlin Christensen provided steady and consistent play in the backcourt. The bench made up of Parry Moss, David Baker, Brent Rummell, Cam Luu and Mark Madore was the best in the country.

During the pre-season, the team accumulated a sparkling 9-1 record. The only loss was a setback to Poway in the finals of the Poway Tournament. The highlight of the tournament was a 82-49 thrashing of a highly reguarded Mt. Miguel team.

In the regular season, the J.V. team sported a 6-2 record which was good enough to finish second in the tough Eastern League. In the second half of the regular season, the team was unstoppable, rolling over its Eastern League rivals by an average of twenty-five points per game. This achievement entitled the team to be considered as one of the three best J.V. teams in all of San Diego County.



FIGHTING FOR CONTROL, Gustavo Pimentel goes for the jump.

WITH GREAT SKILL AND determination, Thaboua Lanol controls and drives the ball past the defenders.

NOTICING THAT the keeper is out of his goal, Phrahalsinh Viniyaroug tries to squeeze the ball past their opponent's defenders.

Ball Control

Having ball control in this game of soccer is very important. Special maneuver techniques are needed to be victorious. The leading scorer was Junior Phrahatsinh Viriyarong with 13 goals. The team had strong midfield players such as Gerald Klein, Phetsamone Rassavong, and Mike Hull. Their offense had support from wingers Joe Moreno and Katanyou Phommonorysay.

Defense was led by Amphasouk Thammavongsa and Bobby Blackwell. The team showed strength and speed, and they accomplished much.

Wins over rival Patrick Henry and Morse brought up spirits, but a tough loss to Madison caused Kearny to miss the semifinals. Competition was tough, and at times discouraging, but the team never gave up.

Outstanding players were Phetsamone Rassavong, Vansomphong Sirisack, Amphasouk Thammavongsay, Gerald Klein, and Phrahalsinh Viniyaroug.

WITH ALL INTENTION of scoring, Halfback Phetsamone Rassavong drills the ball.

No Success Without Stress

Starting out the year was anything but easy for the wrestling team. The number of competitors was down and a major part of Coach Varner's efforts went into recruiting members. But finally the team came together and put together a fine season.

The smaller size of the team was a definite burden on the team especially when they had to forfeit points which cost them some meets, losses that should have been victories.

The team did well at the Morse and Patrick Henry tournaments, with second and third place finishes by George Putnam and Jeff Basham.

Strong underclassmen such as Simon Espinoza, Devin Polk, Joe Basham and Robert Hilbert make for a promising season next year and hopes for the return of the Eastern League ran rampant at the close of this season.

Dominating The Range

Two sports that many people didn't realize existed or were misinformed about were the rifle team and the golf team.

There were many different types of rifle teams, each competing against various other schools in San Diego. The different teams were mixed R.O.T.C.; Boys, Girls, Varsity and J.V.

The Varsity Rifle Team had only one returning letterman, Joseph Cagle. A common misconception that many students had was that the rifle team was only for R.O.T.C. members. This caused a low turnout of non-R.O.T.C. students.

The rifle team didn't finish as well as anticipated; however, they plan on building a stronger team next year with returning lettermen.

Golf, the other sport, had its ups and downs, also. The team started out slow, because of the confusion over whether or not golf would actually start. The team was finally organized by Mr. Perpich, their coach.

Despite the slow start, the team had a good season playing against their toughest competitors such as the well-financed team of La Jolla. The backbone of the team were three returning lettermen: Senior Steve Gondolfo and two Juniors, Greg Gondolfo and Scott Reed. The three had an exceptional season, which in turn led to a successful season for the team.

Sensational Sluggers

Starting off with a good pre-season, the girls softball team was looking for a third place finish in the Eastern League.

The team was strong on leadership. The team was led by seniors Norma Klemaske, Kim Brown, Dawn Tipton and Carol Banks. Their leadership resulted in good teamwork. "They pulled for each other and never gave up," stated Coach Blum proudly. A few comebacks at the beginning of the season proved that this team had guts and didn't quit.

As for the J.V. team, Sophomores filled in the necessary areas. Both Julie Green and Denise Madden were batting close to or over .400, while the team as a whole batted around .300.

Big wins came against Morse (25-2) and La Jolla (15-3), but a hard loss to take was against top-ranked Madison.

Full of character, both the Varsity and J.V. Softball teams showed their opponents and spectators that they were ready to take anybody on.

Still Strokin'

Flash! May 1982 — The San Diego City School Board dropped all aquatic sports from the athletic budget. Reason: The cost of pool rental was too high. Thus was born the San Diego City Aquatics Booster Club and the KHS Aquatics Booster Club. Swimmers raised the money needed to rent the pool and had their sport reinstated.

There was a new location for practice however. The pool at Miramar was used because the city pools were too expensive. But when concerned parents approached the City Council they successfully got the team into the Kearny Rec. Pool at a price they could afford.

The Men's Swim Team began the season with the Girl's Team and for a month they both practiced at Mirmar. This cut down on possibilities for a large team and curtailed their water workouts. They had weighlifting workouts in the morning and went to the pool in the afternoon.

Under such adverse circumstances, it would have been easy to quit, but the team lead by third year swimmers Mike Kovacs, James Zamora and Mike Green went on to achieve a winning season. Other outstanding swimmers were Jeff Geil, Mike Schott, Derek Pasnak and Eric Waggoner.

The season was a rewarding experience. The team's success came only because of a great desire to improve and a positive approach to the sport. They set goals for themselves and with the help of their parents, friends, and coaches they achieved their goals. Commented the team's coach Mrs. Kohr, "Through this type of learning experience we can set a pattern which will help us to be dedicated to our life-long goals no matter how difficult they may seem."

Mermaids Make a Splash

The Girls Swim Team had an adverse beginning. Money was the main problem. Due to the cost of pool rental, the School Board wanted to eliminate the aquatics program, but coaches, parents, and athletes agreed to raise the funds needed to rent the pools and the School Board decided to reinstate the program.

The team however was unable to use the Kearny Rec. Pool because of cost and for the first month, the team had to travel to Mirimar. During this month the KHS Aquatics Booster Club went to work on the City Council and finally obtained a new contract for the Kearny Pool. Through this ordeal, the team learned a great deal about the city's red tape and being patient.

The season was changed from Fall to Spring, the girl's team was combined with the boys team, and there was no Junior Varsity. Led by seniors, Kim Brown, Natalie Riddle, Jackie Estey and Carol Coffey and with the help of other returning third year swimmers Michele Segal, Helen Pasnak, and Stephanie Spears, the team maintained a positive attitude and worked hard throughout the season which was a great success.

Thunder and Lightning, problems with transportation to Mirimar, taking showers with the boys, and assistant coaches Carolyn and Tom will be remembered by all involved.

A sincere thank you must be given to all of the parents who worked so hard to raise the money that the team needed to gain access to the Kearny Pool. A special thanks must go to Mr. Nelson, Mr. and Mrs. Riddle, and Mrs. Baker for attending numerous meetings, writing speeches and letters, and putting enough pressure on the City Council so that the team could use a pool that was nearby.

Commented the team's coach Mrs. Kohr, "If we believe that through tribulations we gain patience, experience and hope which will strengthen us so we can succeed, then our swimmers will be very successful in life."

GLIDING THROUGH THE WATER, Kim Brown does her backstroke with ease.

Tracking Down Champions

Torrential rains that devastated much of the county in late winter also affected the Men's Track Team. The team had to cancel meets against Morse, University City and San Diegito. These cancellations made Coach Griswold worried about the teams spirit, but returning athletes such as Charles Gilmore, Craig Lowe, and John Weber helped to put the team's spirit into high geab.

With the exception of Charles Gilmore, the relay team was brand new. It consisted of Gilmore, Matthew Bossier, Harry Taylor and Cedric Osbourne who all went to the Michelob Invitational Track Meet for the 640 relay where they placed second.

Third year discus throwers were Mike Malone and Daryl Portwood who threw 140 feet and 160 feet respectively. Senior Paul Warren had his second record for the high jump with a leap of 6'4½".

Distance runners were Luis Leon, Shawn McNelis and a promising Sophomore Pat Castro. Middle distance runners were Seniors John Weber, Edward Borgens and quartermiler Craig Lowe.

"New members are always welcome," commented Coach Griswold on getting Eric Epenesa, Johnny Eady and Brian Lopez for shot-putters.

Looking over the season, Coach Griswold enjoyed running toward CIF again.

Lady Komets

Positive expectations came early for the Girls Track Team when they went to the Michelob Invitational Track Meet for the 640 Relay. Not only did the team, who consisted of Kris Anderson, Renee Barrow, Juanita Beverly and Annette Roberts, finish third but they broke the school record.

But due to bad rain storms, four meets and two relay meets were cancelled. Coach Griswold commented, "The rain has really hurt us as far as motivation is concerned."

Composed of mostly Sophomores and Juniors, the team was quite young but was competitive in meets.

Standouts for the team were Junior Caroline Vallejo, Sophomore Anita Torrence, Junior Kris Anderson and Senior Sue Bakke. Returning athletes included Vickie Burgess, Jeanette Ordanez and Davina Deadwiler.

Both the standouts and the important returners helped the team to enjoy the shortened season.

WITH GRACE AND STYLE, Jeanette Ordanez goes over her hurdle while Karen Davis follows close behind.

Toughing it Out

Due to a drift of players to other teams, the Girls Basketball team started the season with one of the smallest teams in the school's history.

The season started with a defeat by the Morse Tigers which soon made the squad realize that it was going to be a rough season. They had yet to take on teams such as, Madison and Patrick Henry. The team was made up of four returning players: Vickie Moore, Norja Whitfield, Belinda Sturkey and Maria Soloman who all supplied the experience and first year players were Tami Fatilua and Michele Caliver.

With the attitude of effective players like Vickie Moore and aggressive players like Tami Fatilua, the team pulled the tough season.

Commented Coach Blum, "I can't wait for next year's Basketball team and I hope more girls will support the school by taking up the sport."

WHILE PLAYING DEFENSE, Belinda Sturkey tries to start a fast-break.

AFTER STEALING THE BALL and running down court, Vickie Moore makes a lay-up for a quick two points.

Up To Bat

Starting the season out at Carlsbad with a 2-0 victory, the Varsity baseball team got a good 7 innings from the pitcher, Ted Bauer. In addition to all around good fielding from Nick Paruleski, Brian Cain, and Troy Stant, and some fine catches from Cedric Osborne, Mike Adams, and Gerald Klein. Although their gloves were good, the bats left much to be desired, but they managed two solo homeruns by Brian Cain in the 3rd inning and Nick Paruleski in the 6th.

The Komets fifth game was against Chula Vista in the Hilltop/Chula Vista Tournament. It was a game that they lost by a score of 3-2. The game was tied 2-2 all the way until the bottom of the 7th inning, when the game was lost on a mental mistake. On the return from Easter vacation, the Komets started league play. The chief competition in the league was composed of almost every team. The Eastern League was one of the strongest in the country.

The strongest part of the team was the defense, which had a solid infield and outfield. The pitching was a weak part of the team.

The season came down to whether or not the team was mentally or physically ready, and whether they were aggressive enough to challenge their tough Eastern League Adversaries.

Junior Varsity baseball started out with a lead over the first few games. Starting pitcher, David Portugal had some strong pitches, and was backed up by a good defense. The team consisted mainly of sophomores, and had several outstanding players, such as Greg Hedgecoth, Milton Gentry, Parry Moss, David Hearndon, and Brian Dumas.

The team showed much potential, and proved themselves to be future assets to the Varsity team.

Tennis' Menaces

The Men's Tennis Team entered the spring season rather hesitantly. Its schedule was one of the toughest it ever had. Coach Janc explained that the difficult schedule was beneficial because it gave the team the experience needed to be successful in the CIF playoffs.

For the second straight year the tennis team sent a doubles team to the Ojai Valley Tennis Tournament. The prestigious tournament consisted of top tennis players from Southern California high schools. The doubles players from Kearny were Romeo Matias and Chris Acera.

A second place finish last year and vast improvements over league rivals provided the motivation needed to carry the team. Being contenders for the Eastern League Championship added no pressure to a team full of experience. With seven returning players and exceptional newcomers the team had more talent than any other team in the past.

The team was comprised of specialists. There were those that consistently played singles and those that played doubles. The singles players included: Romeo Matias, Thong Phabmixay, Marlin Christensen and Butch Olivier. The doubles players were made up of: Chris Acera, Felmar Mationg, Rob Jenison, Bing Yen, Art DeJesus, OUTSTRETCHED AND CONCENTRATING, Thong Phabmixay serves for a winning point.

Underclass

Of all the years of a person's life, the ones spent in tenth and eleventh grade will be hard to forget.

Tenth graders came into the school from junior highs, fresh and ready to venture into their new world of high school.

Although there were hints of having optional physical education for the Underclass, it wasn't so.

Much of underclasser's school time was spent in classes such as Geometry, American Literature and U.S. History. Getting these and other required classes out of the way was the objective of most of the students.

Throughout their sophomore and junior years, students grew up and became responsible individuals who were ready to lead their school in their senior year.

BUSINESS EDUCATION was a class that was taken by many students.

THE SENIOR PATIO was a meeting place for Seniors and Underclassers alike.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION was a class that was required only of the underclass.

At The Movies

Keeping up with the latest movie scene was a common interest to Kearny students. The nighttime movies were favored most over the afternoon showtimes. By that time, students were done with their school work and household chores. All they wanted to do after a hard day's work was to kick back and have a good time.

There was a lot of fun spent with a group of friends or just being alone with someone special. One of the top rated movies, "E.T." turned out to be the craze of the year. Many of Kearny's students were big fans of the adored alien, and many other favorite movie characters. Even though the films may change from year to year, movie watching will always be a favorite pastime.

UNCERTAIN OF WHAT TO WATCH, Mary Carmona and Chona Lagasca check out the posters.

You Have a Pass?

Do these words sound familiar? To most students they sound very familiar. Because these words were often said by the newly appointed hall guards of the school.

Day after day, these men roamed the hallways during class time making sure that students were where they were supposed to be.

Besides looking out for out-of-class students, the guards looked out for the safety of the lockers and made sure that all was well.

Throughout the year, the hall guards may have earned the reputation of being a bunch of "mean guys." But really they were just normal people out doing a job.

AN INTIMIDATING Ed Francis stops Ronnie Bradford in the halls and asks him for a pass.

Relating With Others

Headed by Mr. Franklin, the Human/Race Relations class learned about relating with people of other ethnic groups. The class was taught by facilitators, peer counselors who were students of the school. Being taught by people their own age helped the students to open up to each other.

Another part of the Human/Race Relations department was Peer Counseling. The Peer Counselors were students that had previously been in the Human/Race Relations class. The Peer Counselors held a canned food drive for local families at Christmas time. Students who brought in cans of food were able to erase tardies and truancies.

The school definitely benefited from the Human/Race Relations department and so too did the community.

DISCUSSING PERSONALITY, Mr. Franklin instructs Michelle Whipple and Peter Anderson.

32 Long Years

For many students, first period was a time to relax and catch up on some sleep. But for one group of students it was a time for marching and playing music. They were the Marching Band under the direction of Barney Norman.

In December this group of determined students participated in The Old Town Christmas Parade, which was a band competition where other local High School bands came and participated.

Participating in the Christmas spirit the band was decked out in maroon and white with sparkling tinsel on the horns and drums.

When it was all over there was an awards assembly on the parade route. When the winners were announced Kearny walked away with first place. All of those morning workouts had finally paid off.

FOLLOWING THE BANNER bearers, the marching band exhibits their performance to near perfection.

for students who were trying to raise mon their time and effort arranging fund-raising pulling them through successfully. The effort to make year exciting for Kearny students introduced the need variety of activities such as dances and trips. These called for a need of more money in the class treasuries. Many different things were sold, but overall, most of them were related to the current holiday, since special events were found to be the most profitable times of the year. Food was the main thing sold, simply because it was accepted by everyone. Baked goods and delicious candies such as candy canes and Hershey Kisses, were always successful money raisers. A great deal of teamwork was involved in the campaigns this year. The Kearny Komets did a good job working together and they helped to keep the school spirit alive.

Service

...he school year was the new report ... was asked to try this program by the ...isory Committee. This program has been in ef... three years in other schools in the district. Kearny this ...ear gave it a trial run.

The program was voted in by the PAC, ASB and the PTA. The new system was basically a progress report. In the program students received a warning and were shown their progress, good or bad. It was also a way to help in communication with the home.

Student reaction to the new program were split. Some agreed with the new system because they were more aware of their progress and had something to work towards. Others felt that there was not enough time given to establish a grade.

Until the results of the trial run can be evaluated, it won't be known whether the system will be used in the future.

EXPLAINING HIS PROGRESS, Mr. Norman counsels Paul Vanderbilt on ways that he can improve.

Smooth Start For Sophomores

With the diligent efforts of the class officials, the sophomores made their first year at Kearny both a memorable and a successful one. The sophomores got involved with many of the things going on around school. They showed spirit in class competitions and even entered a sophomore class float in the Homecoming Parade.

The Council planned many successful activities and fundraising events which included calendar and candy sales. Even though it was their first year at Kearny, they seemed to adjust and manage things pretty well. Class president Khanh Le was busy making plans to make their year a good one.

Time To Work

To many students lunch was an important part of their everyday life at school. Some spend their lunch time enjoying tasty foods but others had to catch up on homework. This was a familiar sight on campus.

To many students doing homework, that is due fifth or sixth period, during their lunch break was all but uncommon. Others liked to read books or study for tests.

Since the lunch hour had been cut there was less time to catch up on homework and many students complained about this.

As long as there will be homework assignments there will be a need for time to catch up on it.

HURRYING TO FINISH his homework, Brian Waterman works alone at lunchtime.

Influential People

Full of enthusiasm, the Reader's Theatre Group performed many worthwhile shows for children. With the use of only a few props, they've put on fantastic plays which impelled the children to learn. Their goal was to do their best to help the kids increase and expand their knowledge on verbal, reading and writing skills. There was a demand for hard work and dedication in the group's job. They have worked hard rehearsing and preparing for each performance. However, since their task was aimed for a very good cause, there was a sense of fulfillment in what they did. Our school was very proud of having such an inspiring group. Their concern and service has set a perfect example for other students to follow. The Reader's Theatre Group has done a great job throughout the year.

HAVING FUN, Danny DiCarlo, Florence Knights, and Michele Miranda rehearse a story by Dr. Seuss.

The Main Issue

Informing the students on the latest highlights was the job of the school's Galaxy newsmagazine. Besides news info. its monthly publications included a student's dedication section and a funny page. All this was produced by Ms. Broaded's journalism class. It was distributed around school by the Galaxy staff for a price that was suitable to its readers.

This issue has been in circulation for many years and still continues to serve at its best.

CAREFULLY GOING OVER the Halloween Issue, Joel Nauton examines his artwork.

Universal Language

Variety was shown in many different ways at Kearny, but one of the most obvious things was music. Generally, music was divided into soul and rock. School dances were greatly affected by the controversy of what type of music should be played. The A.S.B. council did their best to make the dances enjoyable for everyone by balancing out the types of music. At most dances, the music entertainment was divided into two parts. During the first half of the night, a soul D.J. played, and then a rock band took over for the rest of the time. This method proved to be satisfactory for the students. Despite the separation of tastes between students, there was still a sense of unity among the Kearny Komets.

SPINNING ANOTHER one for the crowd, the disc-jockey for the Homecoming Dance plays from a Foreigner album.

Keeping Watch

What do you know about our school's security? To most students, very little. School security guards were hardly seen around campus, but when problems arose, they were always there on the spot. They stayed on duty during school hours and were always parked out in front of the school. Watching out for ditchers was one of the things they did to help keep things under control.

Throughout the year, Kearny students didn't cause much trouble. Sure, there were a few problems, but overall, they were well-behaved.

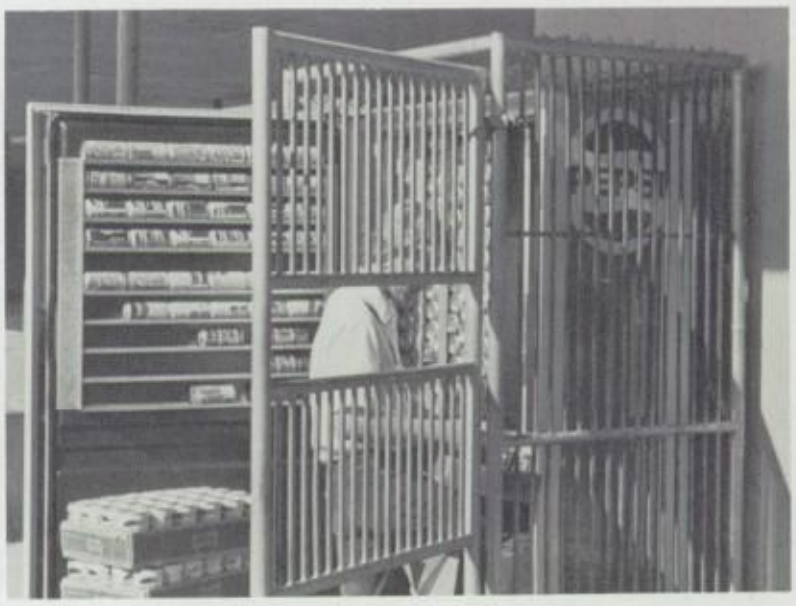
Snack Time

While traveling from one class to another, a sudden urge of hunger would come upon students. To relieve this hunger students made a quick stop at one of the many snack machines. These machines proved to be great for curving an appetite, but they did cause a few minor problems. Tardiness, eating in class, and for some it ran into quite a bit of money.

With the new change machine, getting change was no problem. Lunch was the best time for this. This was shown by the long lines and satisfied students.

PEPSI-MAN John Robbins stocks up the drink machine while the students are in class.



The Cash Stashers

With all of the miscellaneous expenses that accompany a high school education, unless a student is independently wealthy, they need a source of income.

From Babysitting and lawn mowing to working at one of the local fast-food restaurants like McDonald's or The Yogurt Cup, students did just about anything to earn money.

Even though the purpose of having a job was to help a student through high school, the hours put into working sometimes caused students to neglect their studies.

To help students work more freely, there was a program called Work Experience. Under Counselor Tom Hurle, the Work Experience program made it legal for minors to work past 10:00 P.M. and to work more hours a week. In addition making things legal, the Work Experience program gave students high school credit for working.

Whether working while going to school was good or bad, one thing was evident, working for some people was necessary.

Helping The Office

By delivering passes, attendance and counseling office monitors did their share of work throughout the year. Monitors were much help to secretaries who had a great deal of work to be done everyday. Delivering passes, a task that had to be done quite often each period, was the job that monitors were best known for doing.

They also did other helpful work such as filing and answering telephones. With the help of the monitors, secretaries were able to accomplish all the work for the day, and more.

SEARCHING THROUGH THE FILES, Air Thaboua gets out passes that need to be delivered.

Parting is such sweet sorrow

As Graduation Day approached, students looked forward to it with mixed feelings.

The joy of completing yet another year of school was widespread. Students, tired of books were looking forward to three easy months of sunshine, rest and relaxation.

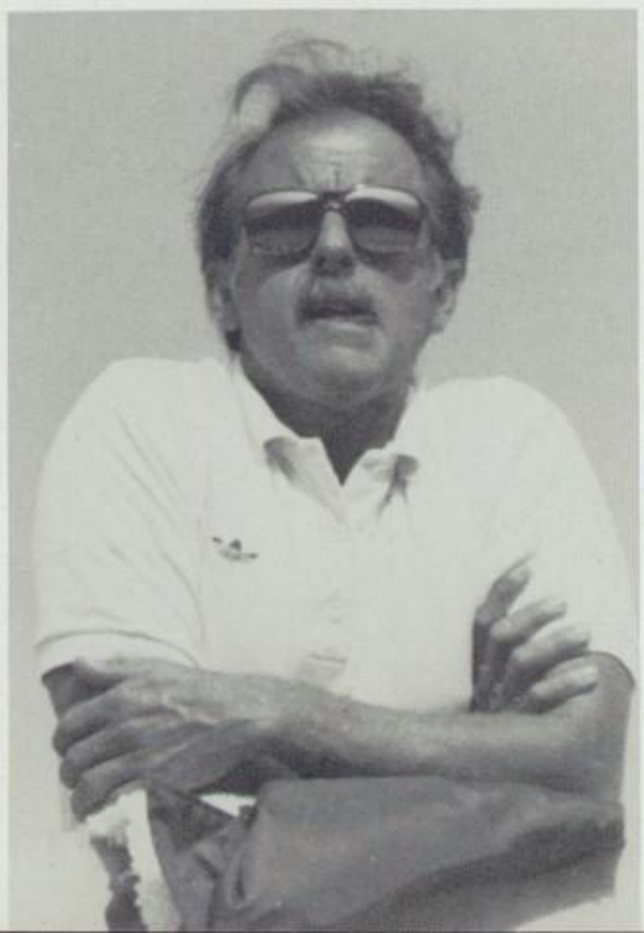
Some seniors were filled with anxiety. Ready to take on the working world or the fast-paced world of college education, these seniors were ready to put their thirteen years of public education behind them.

But a feeling that was inside all of us, more prevalent in some than others, was sorrow. Sorrow, because many school friends possibly would not be seen until next year or even worse, ever again. Yes, for all of us parting truly was such sweet sorrow.

REACHING NEW HEIGHTS, Cheerleader Valerie Hardy tries to scale the goalpost in Mesa Bowl.

AVOIDING FIFTH PERIOD, two friends take extra time out for lunch.

EXHAUSTED, Troy McLaughlin tries to do another sit-up.



CAREFULLY SCRUTINIZING the game, Head Counselor Mr. Blair watches the football team in action.

MAKING A HUMAN MUSICAL instrument, band members goof off at lunch time.

VOID OF ANY STUDENTS, the halls, scattered with trash from emptied lockers waits for the next year.

INTIMIDATING A FELLOW student. Ralph Tristan exhibits his spirit week apparel.

ANYTHING OTHER THAN JUST A LIGHT TOSS, practicing after school for the Cheerleaders was often strenuous.

Laurie,
Well chicadee this year
is gone and so are your grades!
It's been fun getting to know you!
stay trippy, crazy, and keep on partying! Have fun in the summer and don't be a stranger!

Love ya.

Laurie,
Well chick, it's nice to get to know you. Your a pretty cool girl. Your best shape up in school! Me too, huh?
Have nice summer and keep out of trouble! Take care?
